Joint Meeting Set For Area Plan Panel Heads

A joint meeting of the plan commission chairmen of nine area villages is being organized by Raymond McArthur, chairman of the Schaumburg Plan Commission.

McArthur said yesterday he hopes to form a permanent organization with regular gatherings of the commission chairmen in which mutual planning matters can be discussed.

The first session would be held in Schaumburg sometime after New Year's Day, if the other municipal representatives react favorably to the idea, said McArthur.

"It's up to the chairmen of the other plan commissions. If we all agree that we can get something out of it, there is no reason why it shouldn't be a continuing liaison," he said.

Communities to be invited, some of which already have been contacted, are Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Roselle, Bloomington, Hanover Park and Bartlett.

The subject of the first meeting will be transportation problems through and between villages, said McArthur. The aim will be to coordinate traffic "in and out of all the villages in this area." Road problems are "sure not going to get any better unless somebody does something," said McArthur.

Among points he mentioned for consideration at the meeting was coordinating street patterns so they do not dead-end at village lines, but instead connect with through streets in adjoining villages.

May Urge Disannex From Mosquito Abatement Dist.

Planks supporting disannexation from the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and continued cooperation with other municipalities may be added to the platform of Schaumburg United Party (SUP) for the April village election.

Those planks and two others were suggested at the first party platform hearing Monday in the Great Hall. A second hearing will open at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

The platform is to be the basis for the party campaign with planks coming to a vote of party members at the Nov. 30 convention when candidates also will be chosen.

The other newly proposed planks would support continuing use of a merit system for selecting village employees and obtaining donations of land and other compensations for school and park district.

PARTY MEMBERS also discussed possible changes of wording in a plank dealing with support of environmental and aesthetics committees and means of implementing a plank supporting communication within the village.

"SUP believes that inter-village cooperation in areas of common interest should be encouraged, and areas of possible mutual assistance should be studied," was suggested as the wording for one of the new planks.

Raymond McArthur, a platform committee member, proposed it be adjusted to include the words "to continue." The plank itself was proposed by Tom Kosin.

McArthur, chairman of the village plan commission, noted it is difficult for the mayors of villages to arrange meetings. But he said it is unnecessary if the heads of commissions and subordinate boards maintain communications. Members of village plan commissions from the area will meet soon, he said.

THE VILLAGES already cooperate on fire and police protection and now are joined in an emergency paramedic program, members noted.

Very Detailed Hospital Study

by STEVE BROWN

An in-depth analysis of the recently released report on the assessment of health care needs of the Northwest Cook County area reveals that planners went into much greater detail than had been planned in reaching their conclusions.

Originally planned to include Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover townships, the preliminary draft of the report indicates the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst increased this area sizeably.

The enlarged area is bounded by the Cook-Lake County line on the north, the Cook-DuPage County line on the south, Rte. 53 on the east and Rte. 59 on the west. Two other sections, the Village of Roselle in northern DuPage County and portions of North Barrington in Lake County were also included.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm said the area was enlarged because the initial study area did not include all of the hospitals which served the study area, and allowed planners to obtain a clearer picture of where residents go to receive hospital treatment.

THE PRELIMINARY study area includes the villages of Barrington, Barrington Hills, Inverness, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Bartlett, Streamwood and Roselle.

The study, which lists the need for two new hospitals in the area by 1975, observes that presently residents of much of the study area are forced to travel some distance to reach acute medical care facilities.

The proposed hospital sites, at Barrington and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg Township and at routes 59 and 22 near North Barrington in Lake County, would reduce the travel distance, the report states.

While the report does not directly comment or evaluate the proposals by Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center and a group of physicians to build two hospitals in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates respectively, it stated, "this (Continued on page 3)

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Pass Sewer Connection Law

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has enacted an ordinance requiring local communities to make inspections for illegal connections to sanitary sewers.

The district board approved the ordinance last week and will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1973.

The law will require local communities to inspect homes and businesses in areas served by separate sanitary and storm sewers for illegal connections.

The ordinance gives each town one year to complete inspections of all separate sewer areas, although there is a provision for a year extension if the MSD's chief engineer feels a community has shown satisfactory evidence of progress. Any extension beyond a total time of two years would require a hearing by the MSD board of trustees.

THE FINAL form of the ordinance was amended by the MSD board to allow for extensions after officials from Elk Grove Village, Northbrook and Wilmette expressed concern that they could not complete inspections and require illegal connections to be eliminated within one year.

The MSD also took into account an objection from the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District and revised wording of the ordinance so developers in unincorporated area could not bypass the local sanitary district and seek permits for sewers directly from the MSD.

But the board enacted the ordinance despite objections from Palatine and Des Plaines that municipalities have questionable legal status in enforcing disconnection of footing drains that were legal when the building was constructed. The board based its decision to leave the ordinance requirement on an opinion from MSD Atty. Allen S. Lavin who said, "Corrections are within the purview of the villages and illegal connections could be corrected as public health is involved."

THE MSD BOARD also approved the ordinance without holding public hearings that were requested by the village of Palatine and the City of Des Plaines.

Several communities in letters commenting on the ordinance had expressed concern that the law would burden municipalities with inspection work and clerical work in reporting progress every three months to the MSD.

Under the new provisions, the municipalities must "inspect all structures within their jurisdiction or control and ascertain whether any downspouts or roof drains are connected directly or indirectly to sanitary sewers. Any such illegal connections shall be corrected by causing the downspouts to discharge to the ground or to authorized storm sewers, wet wells or ditches."

The ordinance applies only to separate sewer areas and gives municipalities until Jan. 1, 1974 to complete the inspections and force owners to make corrections by legal action if necessary.

Other changes also require municipalities to check the separate sanitary sewer systems visually for storm water entry through such things as leaking manholes, cracked pipes, illegal inlets or connections, or problems at creek or ditch crossings.

THE ORDINANCE says municipalities should make inspections during both dry and wet weather periods to make comparisons to help in finding illegal entry of storm water into sanitary sewers. It is illegal connections which cause sanitary sewers to back up into homes during heavy rainstorms.

The ordinance allows the district to make its own inspections and take legal action to eliminate illegal connections.

Other changes include raising the fine for violation of the sewer permit ordinance from an automatic $100 to a fine of from $100 to $1,000 per day.

The changes also include a provision to allow the MSD board to waive requirements of the ordinance in specific cases "where conditions so warrant" and "after a hearing."

Another change approved by the MSD board will apply detention requirements to residential plats which are resubdivided after Jan. 1, 1972. The requirements do not apply to property for which plats were recorded before Jan. 1, 1972, but do apply if the property is resubdivided.

She's Knee-Deep In Township Fight

by JULIA BAUER

Local government is where it's at for Ann Scollay, the League of Women Voters spokesman who is knee-deep in the battle to abolish Palatine Township government.

She has been attending township meetings for nearly two years, and by now, she's convinced that the area could get along better without that level of government.

For one thing, Illinois has too many taxing bodies.

"If you're going to eliminate one level of government, it should be the one who has limited functions and already duplicates services provided by other bodies," Mrs. Scollay said. That description fits Palatine Township perfectly, according to the local LWV.

THE PALATINE chapter voted in June to challenge the need for township government. In their resolution, the LWV members stated they "believe all township residents should be provided with necessary services without the expense of the township level of government, and should pay in fair measure for those which they receive."

All township residents, including those in the villages, pay taxes to their township. But village residents also pay to the village government. Very few other states have this kind of "unfair set-up," according to Mrs. Scollay.

"In general, if you're living in a city, you don't have to pay taxes to the township," she said of other areas. And Cook County is the only county commissioner-township auditor combination in Illinois. Other areas are ruled by either the county or the township, but not both.

Although Mrs. Scollay and her fellow township observer, Alice DeViney, aren't precisely the wild-eyed radical types, a crusading gleam in their eyes can be detected when they get on the topic of Palatine Township and its inadequacies.

HOW DID MRS. SCOLLAY get so involved in the township and its problems? "Where do you start? You can't complain about state and federal government spending if you have your own local ball-tick of inefficiency," she said. "Local government is where you can really effect changes for the good."

Effecting those changes is taking longer than most league members would prefer. A petition drive requesting a referendum on the township issue succeeded in August, but township auditors refused in September to allow the referendum on constitutional grounds.

No form of government has been designated by the state legislature to take over if the township government is voted down. Township attorneys claim the referendum can't be held until this matter is settled. But league members say the vote should be held as the right of the Palatine Township electorate.

Airport Feasibility Committee To Meet

Schaumburg Airport Feasibility study committee will meet Thursday in the Great Hall (conference room) at 8 p.m.

Details of federal and state funding for a consulting engineering firm's investigation of the advisability of developing and expanded, municipally owned general aviation airport will be discussed.

Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago consulting firm, has been chosen to perform the study which is expected to take about one year from funding approval to completion.

All airport committee meetings are open to the public.

Most 'Key Precinct' Voters Undecided

by TONI GINETTI and JOANN VAN WYE

A survey of voters in Rolling Meadows Precinct 13, which has been designated one of 100 "key precincts" in the state by ABC-TV, shows an overwhelming number of voters still have not decided for whom they will vote in the three major races next Tuesday.

The poll also indicates that what was thought to be a traditionally strong showing for Republican candidates has not yet manifested itself with only one week remaining in the campaign.

According to the results of the Herald poll conducted yesterday, 51 per cent of the respondents have not yet made a choice between President Richard Nixon and Sen. George McGovern. Of those who had made a choice, 33 per cent said they will vote for Nixon and 16 per cent said they would vote for McGovern.

In the senatorial race between incumbent Republican Sen. Charles Percy and Democratic challenger U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, only half the persons questioned had decided for which candidate they will vote. Percy received 39 per cent of the votes, Pucinski only 9 per cent, while 52 per cent were undecided.

SIMILAR RESULTS were reported in the race for governor, in which more than half those answering the poll had not decided between Gov. Richard Ogilvie and Democratic challenger Daniel Walker. Of those who had decided, Ogilvie received 28 per cent and Walker received 20 per cent.

Of those who have made decisions in the three races the poll reflects a tendency toward ticket-splitting rather than straight party voting. Most of the respondents said they preferred to vote for the man rather than for a party label.

Only five persons contacted said they would not go to the polls at all on Nov. 7. A number of the voters responding indicated only lukewarm support for their presidential choices. "We don't particularly care for Nixon but we prefer him to McGovern," Mrs. Donald Brown, 2500 Park, said. "If the Democrats had put up Humphrey or Muskie, we would have voted for them."

Mrs. Gunnar Jacobsen, 2600 Park, called the presidential race "a matter of the lesser of two evils," although she called herself a Democrat who will probably vote for McGovern. Mrs. Otto Novak, 2601 George, indicated a similar reaction, but also said she would most likely be voting for McGovern.

Mrs. Esther Grunwald, 2503 South, said she would be voting for McGovern "because of the war."

James Anderson, 2501 Park, said he was voting for McGovern "because I want to see him President," but Mrs. Joseph Mesch, 2406 Park, said she intends to vote a straight Republican ticket. "They blame the Republicans for everything and they've only been in the White House 12 years out of the last 40 years, so who are you going to blame for things?" she said.

Mrs. Robert Ebenroth, 2411 George, said she would be voting a straight Republican ticket because "I have always voted Republican and I guess I'm too old to change."

IN THE GUBERNATORIAL race, the results do not indicate the kind of suburban strength Ogilvie is said to have. Walker received a number of votes from persons who said they would be voting for Republicans in other races.

"I like some of the things Walker has said and I think he should be given a chance," Mrs. Daniel Prekel, 2402 Park, said.

Mrs. Christian Sittner, 2604 Park, said that although her family plans to vote for Nixon and Percy, they will vote for Walker "because we like what he says." But Mrs. Rowland Ecker, 2501 Sigwalt, said she was "disappointed" that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon had not won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and would probably vote for Ogilvie as a result.

Respondents indicated far greater familiarity with Percy in the senatorial race than with Pucinski, the long-time representative of the 11th District in Chicago. Percy, like Walker in the governor's race, seems to be the recipient of Democratic cross-over votes, with a number of persons who said they would vote for McGovern and Walker saying they planned to vote for Percy rather than Pucinski.

Complete results of the poll in the presidential race were:

Nixon — 33 votes ..... 33%
McGovern — 16 votes ..... 16%
Undecided — 51 ..... 51%

In the gubernatorial race the results were:

Ogilvie — 26 votes ..... 28%
Walker — 19 votes ..... 20%
Undecided — 49 ..... 52%

The race for senator polled:

Percy — 35 votes ..... 39%
Pucinski — 8 votes ..... 9%
Undecided — 48 ..... 52%

Scouting News

Halloween was the theme for the first meeting of Cub Scout Pack 393, Oct. 29 at Dirksen School.

Before the fun festivities began, 22 new boys were officially welcomed into the pack with a ceremony staged around an imitation fire. Chuck Case wrote the ceremony and played Akela, the Indian Chief of the Cub Scouts and Webelos.

The ceremony will become a permanent part of the monthly pack meetings.

The evening's Halloween activities included a mask contest, a pumpkin push relay race, and an apple bobbing contest.

The six winners in the mask contest, one from each den, were: Bob Panattoni, first place winner with an elephant mask, Dave DeGasperis with a paper sack funny-face mask, David Monk, with an astronaut helmet, Dan Wallis, with a lion face, Siegfried Doerdelman, with a zombie mask, and Chris Kindy with a witch mask.

The boys made the masks at the meeting out of paper plates, plastic jugs, bags, ice cream containers, and papier mache.

Hospital Study Very Detailed

study is intended to provide an objective basis for the evaluation of these proposals and other alternatives to providing quality health care to the residents of the area both currently and for 1975, 1980 and 1985.

KASTEN DID HOWEVER state that the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Lukes facility was "too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and would neglect a large area to the west." The site, which just west of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is about three miles from the site recommended by the study.

The fact that the preliminary draft does not recommend either of the already proposed hospital sites, could result in difficulty in obtaining state and federal funding. Various governmental health planning agencies would probably place much emphasis on the study when awarding any grants, several committee members said.

Neither of the proposed hospitals have indicated that efforts to obtain government funding would be made.

Some members of the study committee, which include representatives from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Alexian Brothers Medical Center and Northwest Community Hospital, suggested that the population projects, which foresees 550,000 persons in the area by 1985 were too low.

Kasten admitted that the tremendous growth of the study area makes it difficult to estimate population so far into the future, but he said the statistics presented should be considered reliable.

"I would assume that additional studies will be made in the future in order to better estimate the needs for the 1980's," Kasten explained.

In establishing the general locations for the hospital, Kasten told the committee that a number of factors were used to construct a model of the medical care needs for the area.

THESE FACTORS WERE:

—These hospitals may be located within the study areas in a way that would substantially reduce the driving time for much of the study area populations.

added to the platform, but may instead be left as an issue for candidates to use individually. It was suggested by Village Trustee Herb Aigner, who predicted "the mosquito situation will become an issue."

Should we not leave some ideas for the candidates to speak about for themselves, rather than as a party?" asked McArthur.

The party members also predicted flooding and the location of street lights throughout the village will be issues of the campaign, and said these had been left out of the platform specifically because they will be issues. There may be efforts to add a plank on flooding the night of the convention, said McArthur, adding, "You're going to have to vote those down."

The other additional planks also were suggested by Aigner. He said "Schaumburg is quite proud of its merit system of employees and the fact we don't have a patronage system," and citizens may not be "aware of what the village has done in obtaining land for parks and school districts."

The party members agreed to add the words "the concept of" to a plank previously pledging to "continue to support the committees on environment and aesthetics for betterment of the people of Schaumburg." The phrase will be inserted after the word "support."

Among ways of improving communications within the village, the party members suggested having a least one trustee and other village personnel available to residents every Saturday morning and offering the services of village officials and employees in a speaker's bureau. Members agreed these would not become platform planks, but would be ideas available to candidates to offer as their own proposals while they campaign.

Weaver Trial Delayed To First Of The Year

The trial of indicted Schaumburg state Bank Pres. Ward Weaver will not start until after the first of the year according to an assistant U.S. attorney handling the case.

A date for the trial was to have been set last week, but other court matters forced the government's attorney Frank Murtha to request a continuance. He said he is involved in another trial which may take several months to complete.

Weaver, who has taken a leave of absence from the bank and Erwin D. Gosting were indicted in May by a federal grand jury. They have been accused of altering bank records concerning loans allegedly made to a Kankakee firm.

Both men have pleaded innocent to the charges.

John A. Graham, Republican

2nd District State Senate

John A. Graham: 'Seniority Helps The District'

by DOUG RAY
Residents of the Northwest suburbs know John Graham. A large man with a crop of distinctive snow-white hair, he is a year-round campaigner, shaking hands on village street corners, speaking at coffee and dedications.
For the past 14 years, voters have sent him to Springfield as a member of the Illinois Senate. And Graham speaks rather confidently of another term, although

The sprawling 2nd Legislative District touches the Northwest suburbs in Des Plaines and Barrington and then sweeps south in a great arc to encompass the city of Elgin and a portion of DuPage County.

The new district has an incumbent senator, however, in John Graham of Barrington, one of the most senior senators in the chamber.

Challenging Graham is Clifford Leverage, the Democratic candidate who has taken on such projects as a suit against the State of Wisconsin and a float trip down the foul Fox River to dramatize its pollution.

his 2nd District now extends from West Chicago through Palatine and his hometown of Barrington.

"I have communication with the people... I talk to them and they know me." But more than the Graham recognition, he cites his accomplishments during a long tenure in the Senate.

—A record of supporting legislation to improve health care.

—Protection of the state's ecology.

—Protection of education on all levels.

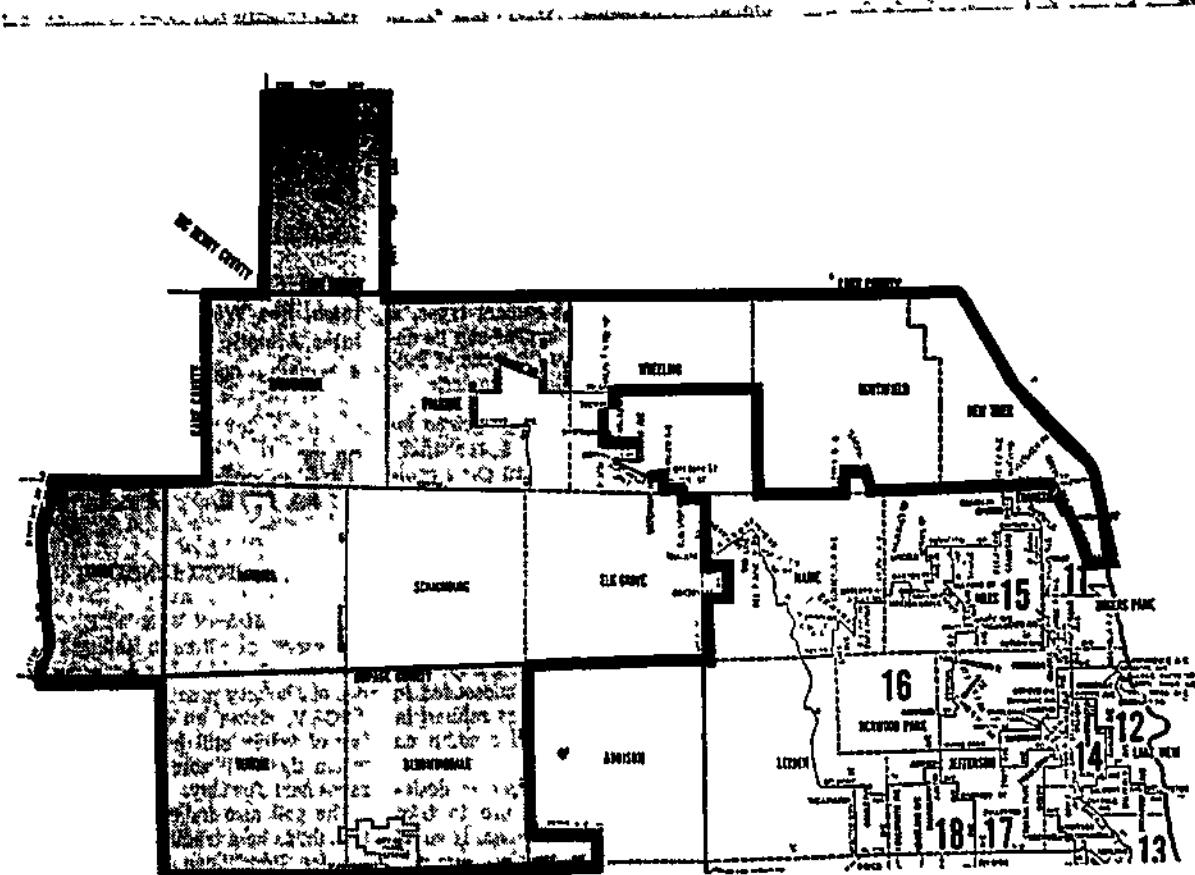

—Protection of the average citizen from an unjust burden of taxation.

John Graham has touched all the bases in Springfield, and he says his seniority will place him at the helm of key legislative committees. "Influence and additional responsibility are a benefit to the district," he said.

He will be the No. 2 senator in seniority in the Republican Party and No. 3 in the entire Senate chamber, if elected to another term.

BUT WHAT concerns the senior senator most these days is flooding throughout the district. He stood along Arlington Road in Palatine Township and saw the plight of a woman who could not enter her home because of four feet of standing water.

"Flooding is my No. 1 target," he said. "I have sent letters to (Cook County Board Pres.) George Dunne and Gov. (Richard B.) Ogilvie asking something be done immediately about area flooding."

Graham pledges a continued fight for implementation of the Flood Plain Act of 1971, which he sponsored in the senate. He doesn't want to stop building but "we must indicate when the influx of building is detrimental to people who live out there where flooding is a problem."

He will suggest that the governor appoint a man or agency to do nothing but study flooding and to devise a plan to prevent future flood conditions. "We have enough materials now... surveys to indicate where the flood plains are. We need another survey like a hole in the head," he said.

He admits the Flood Plain Act needs more rigid enforcement. "We need a specialist to study all these surveys and do something about the situation."

HE BELIEVES the move by League of Women Voters Chapters in Niles, Maine and Palatine townships to abolish the township form of government is premature. "You never shoot a horse until you have another to ride."

The alternative to township government presently is Cook County control, which Graham says "does not have a great deal of efficiency, especially in the area of public aid. It shows that bigness is not necessarily good."

Graham vows to oppose any pay increase for legislators during the next session. However, he added: "Good legislators are entitled to fair monetary reimbursement, but it would be politically immoral to go down there and support a raise after the election."

He suggested rather than a pay increase, representatives be given more liberal expense accounts. "Do it on a voucher basis," he said, "with guidelines set up so people can't divert the money elsewhere. But I will do anything I can to defeat a pay increase."

Regarding revenue sharing, Graham says there should be a method whereby federal funds be spent in the best interest of taxpayers. "Everyone needs guidelines... so even a bad administration can't waste taxpayers' money."

JOHN GRAHAM is the master of common-sense politics, the square deal and down-home campaigning. A stroke has slowed him a bit since his earlier years in the Legislature.

He now walks with a cane, his pace less hectic. But he feels the handicap is not necessarily a liability. "Sometimes it helps to slow down a bit," he said. "Take a look at what's going on around you."

He was born and reared on a farm in Montgomery County, and was the owner of a television and appliance store in Barrington. Now he devotes all his time to being a legislator.

"I'm a senator for the people. I answered 20,000 letters on parochial alone. And I'm looking to the future."

Clifford E. Leverage:

'If A Majority Wants Something, I Think I Should Vote For It No Matter What I Believe...'

by TONI GINETTI

Since winning the March Democratic primary fight for the 2nd District senatorial nomination, Clifford E. Leverage has not changed his opinion about what his primary concern as a legislator would be.

"I feel any political representative should have communication with the people because he must realize there are people with other points of view. You should have to abide by the feelings of the constituency."

Leverage, a Democratic precinct captain for 11 years who is seeking his first elective office, said he decided to run for the Senate because he wants to provide a communications channel between government and residents of the district. "I was unhappy with what I had seen in the way of bills coming out of Springfield. The individual is not being represented, and we should be representative of the people."

He cited as an example of the lack of communication the defeat of a bill that would have provided one hour a week of school to be set aside to teach Spanish-Americans their native language. Latins in Elgin wanted the measure approved, Leverage said, and if he had been a senator he would have honored their wishes and voted for the bill.

"If a majority wants something, I think I should vote for it no matter what my personal views might be," Leverage said. "Why should the people send me to Springfield to express my opinions?"

TO FIND OUT what issues concern voters most, Leverage sent out 48,139 questionnaires to the 85,000 registered voters in the district, asking them to indicate what problems they felt were of the highest priority. He said 50 per cent were answered either by mail or by phone.

The three issues most often mentioned were pollution, flooding and taxes, Leverage said.

Concerning flood control, Leverage said the problem could have been averted this summer if officials had heeded warnings eight years ago. He said buildings need to face stiffer penalties for using flood plains as construction sites.

"At the present time if a builder wants to build on a flood plain, he can get a permit to build relatively easily. There has to be coordination between the township and state officials warning builders that they can't violate regulations. Fines are not enough to deter a builder because he pays the fine, builds, and then leaves while the homeowner is left to suffer the consequences."

"Local governments have to get tougher. We need stronger laws to back up the Department of Waterways. More regulation and enforcement of that regulation is needed and not just a slap on the hands of builders."

LEVERAGE BELIEVES "some kind of graduated tax" is necessary, but it must be coupled with some form of tax credit for individuals. "Either we have to cut our budget or increase taxes to provide more services. If we can eliminate overlapping of jurisdictional services, we can tighten up a little bit on spending."

"We cannot be just spend-free. We have to realize we have to get back on an equal plane again because the individual is not receiving his fair share of services for what he's paying. We will have to find another way to give tax credits to individuals."

"We should, for example, be giving senior citizens a break because they don't require the same amount of services that young marrieds do. We should not be penalizing the senior citizen because of his age."

Pollution is an issue upon which Leverage has taken a strong stand, particularly in regard to the Fox River. He intends to bring legal action against industrial and governmental polluters of the river, and began Oct. 16 by filing suit against the state of Wisconsin. Leverage said Wisconsin is the worst polluter of the river, and whether or not he is elected he will continue the action filed against the state.

"We didn't file the suit to get money; we filed it because this is a river in the 2nd District and we feel it should be a source of pleasure for people there. This concerns everyone in the district, not just people in Elgin (nearest the river)."

"We need stricter fines for polluters because existing agencies don't have the teeth to prevent violations."

LEVERAGE SAID he would not favor abolition of township government because he feels local governing units "realize better what the problems of an area are." He thinks that instead of doing away with township government, residents should take a greater interest in that branch's affairs.

He sees a need for a uniform urban mass transit system for the suburbs, but he thinks funds for such a system should be provided by a portion of the gasoline tax rather than a new tax. "We have enough highways and tollways. We need to relieve the congestion on highways not only for pollution's sake but for the sake of efficiency."

"I don't think it should be an organization like the CTA that should manage this, however. We need a meeting of the minds of the railroads to operate this. I would like to see a uniform transit system to eliminate transferring costs. Why should a person pay $3 round-trip train fare to get downtown and then have to pay an extra 45 cents to go a few blocks?"

If elected, Leverage said he would support the equal rights amendment defeated in the General Assembly during its last session. "But I'm in favor of equal rights for all, not just women. Women are entitled to fair wages, and there is no question that they are being discriminated against, especially in practices like the distribution of credit cards. Prices are the same for women as men, so why shouldn't they receive equal pay?"

ABORTION IS a matter that Leverage thinks should be confined to the discretion of a woman and her doctor. He said he is in favor of therapeutic abortion, but not of "abortion on demand."

Leverage said he supports the concept of state aid for private schools provided certain controls are enforced and a separation of church and state is maintained. "Without private schools, there would be an overwhelming burden on the public schools. I don't think we should sacrifice a child's education because a school is in financial crisis."

The aid could be provided in two ways, Leverage said. One would be in the form of tax credits to parents of children in private schools; the other would be to provide some kind of tax credit to the school itself.

Of the role of the legislator, Leverage said, "I think a senator should represent his district throughout the year and not just three months before an election. The people should get fair representation from a senator whether they are Republicans, Democrats or independents."

"It seems like whenever we're involved in a crisis, we can find a solution," he added. "Well, we're in a crisis now and we need to find some solutions."

Walker Campaign Changes In Style

by BOB LAHEY

Dan Walker has discarded the rumpled look that he wore during those long months walking from the tip to the top of Illinois.

He looks very much the candidate for governor these days.

On what must have been about the 712th day of his very intense campaign for the highest elective office in the State of Illinois, Democrat Dan Walker once again looks very much the corporate attorney.

The rumpled khakis and red bandana he lived in on his 1,300-mile walk across the state have given way to a wrinkleless steel-gray suit, white shirt with subtle gray stripes and solid-blue necktie. The ruddy-red farmer-in-the-field complexion has turned to a deep and seemingly permanent tan. The sandy hair so long tossed by the prairie winds of Illinois is now neatly cropped and groomed.

IT HAS BEEN A long trail — perhaps the longest campaign any potential governor of Illinois has ever conducted.

The carefree spirit that pervaded his campaign when he was trudging the pavements of Southern Illinois more than a year ago have given way to a dogged determination as he enters the last week of the two-year trek.

Which is not to say he doesn't expect to win.

"We're in good shape," declares press aide Norton Kay. "If we just don't louse it up in the last week."

And so they are out covering all the bases. The day starts with handshaking in the early-morning gloom at suburban railroad stations. Then on to Maine West High School in Des Plaines, where hundreds of students turn out in their free time to applaud Dan Walker when he argues against legalization of marijuana and for beer for 18-year-olds.

"IF YOU'RE OLD enough to be killed in Vietnam, you're old enough to drink beer," he says. "If you're mature enough to make a choice for president of the United States, you're mature enough to handle a can of beer. And, besides, I don't know any 18-year-olds who haven't had a can of beer." Laughter and applause.

He fields questions for half-an-hour, slugging at Republicans ("Do you think George McGovern would have countenanced the Watergate affair?"), ducking now and then ("I will take no stand on abortion until the Supreme Court clarifies what latitude the states have.") and generally assailing the administration of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

En route to his campaign headquarters shortly after, he is informed of the magnitude of the tragedy of the Illinois Central train crash, and the partisan voice becomes muted for the rest of the day.

While Walker confers with aides at his headquarters on what to do on this day of death and disfigurement, reporters trailing him wander through the relaxed chaos of his campaign base in downtown Chicago.

IT IS LITTERED with empty cartons, dirty coffee cups, campaign posters, souvenir postcards, and pictures of Dan Walker glaring intensely from every empty space on the wall. A bulletin board near the sign says "5 more days to election," has scraps of what somebody thinks has significance for the staff.

There is a volunteer-enlistment card with the message, "I am going to help Dan Walker every way I can, but I do not dare openly sign my name and address." From some intimidated resident of one of the River Wards? No. It is postmarked Macomb, in McDonough County, downstate Republican territory. You think of Dan Walker's charges about a Republican machine every bit as fearsome as the Daley Organization.

There is a letter from a downstate county sheriff, addressed to other law enforcement officers knocking Dan Walker for his "police-riot" Walker Report. It is accompanied by a letter from another Downstate county sheriff to Walker, keeping him informed and indicating not all law enforcement officers dislike him.

Conferences over, Walker and his crew assemble the trailing reporters and inform them that the prepared speech at the City Club luncheon will be dropped in deference to the mourners of the train crash victims.

INSTEAD HE makes only brief remarks about the need for excellence in government, the need to work with the people, the need to restore government to the people.

But there are questions, and Walker fields them.

No. He would not abolish the sales tax and replace it with a raise in income taxes. But he would give relief in the form of tax deductions to people earning under $15,000 who pay taxes on food and medicine.

No. He has not changed his views on machine politics, despite what that Chicago newspaper said. But let's be fair. How about vote fraud Downstate? And why doesn't the U.S. attorney respond to his plea for policing elections in Republican counties?

Yes. A metropolitan area transportation system is a dire need. It is "hazardous" to continue without one. The jobs are moving to the suburbs, and we have to get the people from the inner city out to where the jobs are.

THE QUESTIONS GO ON, and Dan Walker answers them forcefully, knowledgeably, but without the flair and the enthusiasm that he had a year ago or six months ago. It is not because of disinterest. It's just that he has been answering them for so long.

Then it's back to the car, with an extemporaneous stop at Cook County Hospital to answer a plea for blood donors, 40 minutes added to an already crowded schedule, and it will mean skipping a planned visit at a suburban factory gate later in the day.

His car careers out the expressways, closely pursued by the station wagon full of reporters, to the suburb of Northlake where some 80 residents of the Villa Scallabrid Nursing Home are assembled to greet the candidate for "gubnator." Then there is a meeting with the villa's lay advisory board, representatives of 40 Italian-American organizations who carry great influence with voters in their territories, and the inevitable food-laden table and red wine.

SKIP THE PLANT gate and go on to the Jefferson Park "L" station to shake a few hundred hands in the gathering dusk. Back to the city for a series of ward meetings with the Daley faithful who have consented to work for him and whom he needs badly now with the race so close and so near the finish line.

Tomorrow there will be a plane trip, covering the state in hours rather than in months as when he did it by foot.

Now seven days to go, and on the eighth, he will awake a governor-elect, or a footsore corporate attorney.

A Day In The Life Of Senator Percy

by BARRY SIGALE

Chuck Percy, golden boy of national politics, was using that old charm, that old intuitive moxie that thrust him to Washington a half dozen years ago.

With charismatic aplomb, Illinois' senior U.S. senator whirled through nine hours of speeches and personal appearances covering more than 100 miles and encompassing factory workers, students and Chicago's near north side liberals.

In each instance, Charles Harting Percy, 53, the business world whiz who made a substantial mark at Bell and Howell and who slew the Democratic giant Sen. Paul Douglas, in 1964, knocked 'em dead.

It is evident Percy has learned well the art of politicking in such a short time in public office. And he used his impeccable image to sway his varied audiences.

THIS TYPICAL DAY begins at 8:30 a.m. as the senator bounds down the bright red carpeted steps leading to the lobby of the fashionable Racquet Club on Dearborn Street along Chicago's near north side.

The club reflects the Percy wealth and his association with the rich and influential establishment of Chicago and the rest of the nation. It is so plush there that the posted directory at the hotel does not read, "Mr. and Mrs. Somebody," but "Mr. Somebody" on one line and his wife, "Mrs. Somebody," separately underneath.

Percy has just finished breakfast in the hotel dining room and looks fit and ready to tackle the day's schedule. He is wearing a grey suit with brown pin stripes, a white, button down shirt and brown shoes. He strides briskly out the front door, passing a bulletin board with a posted invitation to "a celebration of the president's reelection, $7.50 per person."

Before sitting in the back seat of his brown, LTD Brougham, Percy acknowledges to one of five reporters traveling with him that her story about him in the morning's paper is excellent. He did so by yelling across Dearborn Street as the morning traffic whizzes by.

IN THE SEAT next to Percy is his large briefcase, containing speeches to be reviewed, correspondence to answer and campaign suggestions. One of the reporters is seated in the back seat with him. The car is driven by an aide. A speechwriter is also in the car.

Behind Percy's auto is one driven by the Illinois state trooper assigned to accompany the senator. Behind the trooper's auto is a station wagon, rented so the press can keep up with the senator's schedule. The car is driven by another aide.

As the three autos glide down the Kennedy to the Eisenhower expressway entrance en route to the College of DuPage in Glen Ellyn, Percy reads the morning newspapers, answers a reporter's questions and mentally gets himself ready for his first speech of the day.

At Glen Ellyn, he tells a "Perspective on Aging" conference of his plan to get young people in the state involved as volunteers to help the elderly, saying, "While other minority groups are progressing in solving their problems, the problems of the elderly get worse every year. Their situation regresses."

HE TELLS THE crowd, which includes a group of senior citizens, that they should remain active in their later years because they will feel much better. His point was never truer. In the back row are four elderly persons in wheelchairs. Two of them are sleeping.

From DuPage, the Percy entourage moves through the western suburbs back onto the Eisenhower and south to the Western Electric Co.'s Hawthorne plant in Cicero.

As usual, a crowd is awaiting his arrival. There is a greeting of old friends, associations the senator had made over the years as an executive at Bell and Howell.

After exchanging cordialities with company officials, including Charles Zettker, mayor of Elk Grove Village and assistant manager of community relations, Percy is led to a studio the company uses to video tape messages from candidates for broadcast to its 16,000 employees.

PERCY BRIEFLY OUTLINES his successes in the Senate, his programs for the future and his record on labor. He sipped a cup of coffee while watching an instant replay of his speech.

He watches himself talk of a four-point campaign pledge, including getting legislation for increasing wages and productivity, limiting federal spending, and combating the drug abuse problems. He smiles an approving smile when the replay ends. "It sounds good," he says.

An hour later, Percy has finished a hand-shaking marathon in the company's four lunchrooms. He shakes the hands of nearly a thousand persons. He pins Percy buttons on young girls, he trades pleasantries with older women, he has man to man talks with male workers.

There are bright moments, smiles from everywhere as lunching workers gulp their food and wipe their hands in anticipation of shaking the senator's hand.

"WHY IT'S SENATOR Percy," a woman shrieks as she bumped into the senator while turning a corner.

"That's like saying that's some baby,"

Percy replies, smiling.

"Is he little?" "Is he good looking?" Then there is a confrontation, a not too enviable rhubarb with a worker, but one that Percy, nonetheless, must come to grips with. An aide says "He's not afraid to mix it up a little."

"Hello gentlemen. Is this your place?" Percy says as he strides to a table in the far corner of the cafeteria. The men look at each other with mouths full. They sense an enemy. "Is this where you solve some of the great problems of the day?" Percy walks and talks his way into a buzz saw.

PERCY LEANS FORWARD with a hand resting on one guy's shoulder. The guy is facing across the table at his friend who lashes out at the senator's relationship with President Nixon.

"I voted for you the last time. But you haven't helped the president at all. You're constantly against Nixon."

"That's not true. What you've just said is false. There is no way you could prove that."

"I put you in there to support the president. And you didn't. You and that bunch from New York."

"Do I have to follow the president on everything? I vote what I think is right, like with the SST and Carswell. And I have supported the president. And I have made mistakes."

"I'll say so."

"LET'S GET SERIOUS about it. Put up or shut up. Let's put $100 on my record."

No answer.

"Fifty dollars."

No answer.

"Ten Dollars. Five dollars. One dollar."

"I'm supporting Nixon, not you."

Later, back in his car after eating lunch at one of the cafeterias, Percy reflects on campaigning.

"THERE IS A problem, trying to shake hands with everybody. You miss some. Then they get mad because you didn't come over. I could see them in the corners, looking at me, asking, 'Is he going to come over?'"

Percy says campaigning is a necessary process to get the men and issues before the public.

"If we didn't have something like campaigning we would have had to invent it. Politics and campaigning are important. It forces you into different situations. It keeps you informed, to see what the country's all about. I wouldn't want to do it all my life. But it fills you with a great deal of humility. You learn a lot from people. A campaign can either be the most colossal money failure or the biggest learning process."

Percy says a campaign can be worth the money if only one idea comes to fruition and that sometimes ideas come from things learned while campaigning. He says candidates should, therefore, listen to their constituency. "That's why no one can say they haven't seen me in six years. I come back to Illinois every 10 days. I've made 25 visits to Carbondale and over 50 visits to Southern Illinois."

WHILE THE CAR travels northbound on the Kennedy, Percy answers questions about criticisms that he's "a man too patently on the make, too ambitious (unidentified colleagues in Ralph Nader's report on Congress)," that he's a "fabulous phony" (Jack Anderson in the Washingtonian magazine) and that senators are "pompous pontificators who get too much time on the boob tube" (U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill.).

"I don't know of anyone in politics or in any other walk of life who got anywhere or got anything done without ambition. It would be a grave mistake if we weren't ambitious. I don't think I'm too ambitious in the other sense, either. Other candidates are going across the country, giving talks, collecting due bills in other states. I don't go unless I'm asked."

"I don't blame congressmen for resenting the power and prestige of senators. That's why no one leaves the Senate to run for the house. The Senate is much more than I expected it to be when I first ran. I never dreamed I would have so much power. It's tremendous. I couldn't have accomplished this at Bell and Howell in 25 years."

"But I envy them (members of the House) too. They have a broad base. They have this unique advantage, they can specialize, concentrate on fewer items. With their disdain there is also an element that they want to be there, too."

"JACK ANDERSON was very unflattering to a lot of senators in that listing. He just had to have somebody fit all his categories. He implied that I was someone you wouldn't go to the well with, that I wasn't pulling my load. That just isn't so. Just ask Hubert Humphrey, he's not running for office. Or ask Ed Muskie. Or Scoop Jackson. Or Jacob Javits. Or William Proxmire. Or Hugh Scott. Or Birch Bayh."

"My whole life I've made absolutely sure that we got things done that we started. Our office in Washington is considered one of the best. We have been lauded for our persistence in getting things done. We've fought very hard to do this."

Arriving at Northeastern Illinois University on Chicago's north side, Percy confers with his aides about late breaking news. If there is something he feels he should comment on he'll call the media and tell them. He updates his campaign like a newspaper updates its pages. He'll incorporate it in his speech.

"Wow! Look at that!" he says as he picks up an afternoon paper at a counter in the college. There is a story about a woman confessing her role in spying on Sen. Muskie. Later, during his speech, he tells about 200 students, "This whole spying thing is a grave, dastardly act. It's reprehensible. We should go as high as we can take it to find out who counteracted it and who strategized it."

THE MEAT AND potatoes of a statewide campaign is television and its impact on the voting public, and the end of Percy's day he devotes to interviews at WBBM and WLS.

"Mr. Bob McBride, Mr. Bob Wallace,

to studio two, please!

"Mr. Bob McBride, Mr. Bob Wallace,

to studio two, please!"

That puts into action the TV-2 staff. To studio two go cameramen, producer, director and staff to meet McBride, Wallace and Chicago Today reporter Joel Weisman for a half-hour taping session with Percy. The four remained loose for the interview with banterings.

with Percy. The four remained loose for the interview with banterings.

"Senator, I'll ask a fairly innocuous question to start things off. We should have a brief answer. It's an icebreaker," says McBride.

"LET'S GET ONE thing straight," says the senator. "I won't answer any questions on Hamrah, abortion, amnesty or any other controversial subjects."

They all laugh. Meanwhile, weatherman John Coughlin is setting up his map for the six o'clock news, putting up H's for highs and L's for lows. He says tomorrow will be a nice day.

The interviewers ask the same questions covered in dozens of other interviews during the campaign. They ask about Watergate, campaign funding, the war in Vietnam, etc. Hardly a word is mentioned about U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski (D-Ill.), Percy's opponent. And McBride likes it that way.

"WE SPENT the whole half hour with Pucinski talking about Sen. Percy," he says during a break. "That may have been a big mistake on his part."

At WLS a half hour later, Hugh Hill asks Percy the same questions he's been fielding all day. He's answered the questions so often he fumbles to come up with new ways of giving the same answer. But the interview ends in 12 minutes and the fumbling ends.

All that's left this day is a cocktail party fund raiser with the beautiful people of the near north side. The booze flows as the Banjo Bootleggers provide entertainment. Then independent alderman Dick Simpson speaks for Percy.

"This man has integrity, honesty and represents his conscience and his constituency. When a man is concerned enough to listen when people talk to him we owe him something."

Percy strides toward Simpson, clasps his hand, makes a short speech and mingles among the crowd blending in quite well with Chicago's beautiful people.

The Security Men Never Get 'Bored'

In the tragedy-stricken turmoil that is recent American political history, the sight of stern-looking, intense men guarding presidential and senatorial candidates has become commonplace.

In the campaign of Republican Sen. Charles Percy, one such man is a graduate of Maine East High School in Park Ridge and a resident of that community. Illinois State trooper Bruce Brown, 26, has tailed Percy for the past six months and, like his counterparts guarding U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., Percy's opponent, has had his fill of campaigning.

"It's a very interesting job," said Brown, whose special assignment was first created by authority of the governor. "Things are never the same any two days. But I can't afford to get bored. I have to develop a renewed basis of interest in the job. I can't be lackadaisical."

KEEPING Brown from becoming lackadaisical are incidents that occur unexpectedly. Like the time at the Regency Hyatt House, according to Brown, when a drunken, heavy-set executive type wanted to meet Archbishop John Cardinal Cody and kiss his sacred ring spilled a martini all over the Cardinal's pants.

"There was the archbishop," Brown said, "shaking one leg, then the other, trying to shake the wetness out."

Another incident came last week and it was the kind Brown probably would rather forget. A Lincolnwood man was charged with aggravated assault for punching Brown at a downtown intersection.

Brown, who keeps his car behind the senator's at all times, was attempting to prevent the Lincolnwood man's auto from getting between the two cars. When the two men got out of their cars, the Lincolnwood man punched Brown in the face. Brown subdued the man, who later was arrested.

Brown said neither Percy nor Pucinski were very interested in having guards accompany them on their many campaign stops. But both finally agreed to the idea.

"Pucinski didn't want it until (Alabama Gov. George) Wallace was shot," said Brown. Wallace was shot in a shopping center appearance in Laurel, Md., in April.

"Percy didn't want it either. At first he refused. But Percy's wife is very security conscious. He wasn't concerned because he felt he was well liked."

Brown, who said that when he first began his task he wanted to retain his anonymity, to remain out of the newspapers so as not to become well-known, said he is concerned most with Percy's safety when he sees an individual who appears mentally unbalanced by today's standards.

"I'm concerned with someone who reappears at a particular event who does not appear to be related or connected or have a reason to be at the event. Those are the people who are dangerous."

SEN PERCY'S BIG mistake came when he walked over to a group of men eating lunch at a corner table at one of Western Electric's cafeteria's and asked, "Is this where you solve some of the great problems of the day?" When one of the men answered that it was Sen. Percy who was the great problem of the day, the argument was on.

Policy On Bands Needs Reviewing

by WANDALYN RICE

The ticker-tape parade planned for President Richard Nixon didn't happen yesterday, but it has had quite an impact for a non-event.

The parade was cancelled following the tragic accident on the Illinois Central RR commuter line Monday and as a result, the arguments about whether high school bands should participate becomes theoretical.

However, just because the issue is theoretical doesn't necessarily mean it's going to die. Local Democrats have indicated they might attend the next High School Dist. 214 Board meeting to question the district's policy on participating in such events.

Five Dist. 214 bands had planned to take part in the parade which was to cap Nixon's reelection drive in Illinois. They were clearly allowed to do so under a policy which says students may honor the President, two Illinois senators, governor or congressman whether those officials are campaigning or not.

THE HOOKER in the policy, however, is that students are strictly prohibited, when representing the school, to participate in any activity honoring "other elected officials." That means the bands cannot march for the junior senator from South Dakota, even if he is campaigning for the presidency.

Other districts in the area turned down the Nixon parade because it was so closely involved with politics. Those districts, particularly Dist. 211, don't have formal policies, but make decisions as questions come up.

The Dist. 214 policy, however, seems open to real question. Especially since, in 1968, the Prospect High School band played at a rally at the school for Richard Nixon (who was not then President).

District officials recall that the Prospect band was told they could not "officially" participate in that Saturday rally four years ago. Instead they could play as "individuals."

Of course, the band members did wear their uniforms, which is a problem when they aren't representing the school, but the district officials point out that, since Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen and then Illinois Congressman Donald Rumsfeld were at the rally, maybe it did fit under the policy.

THE CONTRADICTIONS and complaints make it clear, at least to me, that Dist. 214 had better seriously think about revising its policy. It may well be that whenever the subject of political rallies come up the district will get in trouble no matter which way it goes, but the present policy seems guaranteed to make almost everybody angry.

It seems as though, in revising the policy, the district has several alternatives. It could (1) ban participation in all events in which any elected official or candidate participates — a not-too-practical solution; (2) ban participation in "political" events — leaving the problem of deciding when the President is a politician and when he is not; or (3) treat invitations to political rallies in exactly the same way as all other invitations and let band members and their directors make the decision case by case.

There may be some other alternatives which I've left out, but personally I favor a slightly modified version of (3).

I think there is serious question about busing kids to the Loop for obviously political events, whether sponsored by the Republicans or Democrats. The Committee to Reelect the President, by inviting most of the bands in Cook County to a parade where only five were going to march, seems to me to have been practicing exploitation. Bands should be protected from that.

HOWEVER, IT ALSO seems sensible that when politicians of whatever party are visiting in the Northwest suburbs, particularly within Dist. 214, that bands ought to be able to play host for the event.

Realistically, does it make sense, if George McGovern or Richard Nixon come to rallies staged in one of the high schools that the band from that school can't perform?

In short, I suggest the Dist. 214 Board adopt a policy to prohibit bands and other such groups from leaving the district to perform in "political" events for any party. I don't think defining "political" will be very hard in this case, because I doubt that anyone on a truly non-political trip is going to be inviting bands to travel long distances.

However, the policy should specifically allow bands to take part in political rallies, for any party, being held within the boundaries of Dist. 214, subject only to the ordinary scheduling considerations always brought into play when decisions are made to appear at special events.

That policy, it seems to me, will keep the district out of more trouble than the present one does.

Our Choice: Abner Mikva

Voters have been treated to one of the country's most lively, hard-fought and expensive Congressional races this fall in the North and Northwest suburban 10th District.

The battle between Republican Sam Young of Glenview and U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva of Evanston, a Democrat, for the vacant House seat has drawn major national political figures to the district, caught the attention of the national news media and, most importantly, given the voters a choice of two excellent candidates.

The decision for us has been a difficult one, as we know it will be for many voters. Both men are attorneys, both are experienced in government and the law, and both have records of independent performance.

We enthusiastically endorse Abner Mikva and urge all voters to examine the record of this newcomer to the North Suburbs whose performance has made him one of the few truly outstanding men in Congress.

Mikva, 46, who moved to Evanston last year after his South Side Chicago district was sliced up by reapportionment, spent 10 years in the Illinois House of Representatives, where he fought for reform of state government, ethics legislation, consumer safeguards, a new criminal code and an end to patronage abuses.

He was elected to Congress in 1968 and again in 1970. In those four years, Mikva's record has been one of concern for the quality of life for everyone, for justice and equal rights under law, for a comprehensive approach to the problems of crime that doesn't threaten individual liberties.

He has spoken and voted consistently against the war and wasteful military spending, against the increasing problem of governmental sellout to special interests, against boondoggles that waste money vitally needed elsewhere.

Mikva is a concerned man who can be counted on to take the side of the little guy. He has fought to save Lake Michigan, introduced bills to reduce O'Hare Airport noise, backed ethics legislation and Congressional reform. He recognizes the needs of the elderly, the shortcomings of our health care system, the problems of education.

Young, 49, has a good record as Illinois assistant secretary of state in the 1950's when he was responsible for many reforms. A former corporate officer and Northfield Township GOP committeeman, Young has campaigned on his support for President Nixon and has criticized Mikva for backing Sen. George McGovern.

We must note that Young's conduct of the campaign has been a factor in our decision to endorse Mikva. Young has repeatedly lied about Mikva's record and shrugs it off as part of the game. As he did in the primary against Floyd Fullin, Young has made use of unjustified personal attacks on his opponent that he knows are wrong.

We also believe, as Mikva does, that what is best for America is, ultimately, what will be best for the 10th District. We reject the notion as put forth by Young that Congress is an amalgam of 535 men and women sent to Washington only to represent the narrow self-interest of their constituencies. That kind of provincialism has led to a Congress that is long on pork barrels and log rolling but short on solutions to the problems that face this nation.

The interests of the suburbs, for instance, are not at odds with those of the central cities. A representative who champions the cause of his constituents while ignoring the interest of the country as a whole may find it easy to get re-elected but has not made a real contribution to the nation's well being.

Mikva knows this. It is one of the many reasons he has been an excellent Congressman. We urge 10th District voters to pull the lever for Mikva on Nov. 7.

12th: No Endorsement

The Herald cannot endorse either GOP incumbent Philip Crane or his Democratic challenger Edwin L. Frank this year in the 12th Congressional District race.

We dislike having to forgo an endorsement in any political race, for we have a responsibility to offer our endorsements as guidance for voter decisions on November 7.

In good conscience, however, we cannot endorse either candidate for Congress.

Crane, 41, has served in Congress since 1969, when he was elected in a hard-fought race to fill Donald Rumsfeld's seat. He won reelection in 1970 and moved into the western half of the old 13th Congressional District when it was reapportioned last year.

Although Crane is a highly articulate and attractive candidate, we find him more concerned about such narrow issues as the private ownership of gold than with the everyday concerns of Northwest suburban residents.

His legislative record indicates he's more responsive to the conservative movement in this country than to everyday suburban needs.

His challenger, Edwin L. Frank of Hoffman Estates, is a last-minute replacement for Charles Houchins, who withdrew earlier this year from the Congressional race when he failed to gain more than token support from the local Democratic establishment.

We thought initially Frank was a man who might deal with the issues in battling with Crane. We believe the Democrats can elect a man to Congress in the Northwest suburbs, even though that doesn't appear to be the thinking of the Democratic establishment.

Frank, however, has done nothing to indicate he's a serious candidate with a solid grasp of the issues and needs of this area.

Thus, the Herald endorses neither Crane nor Frank in this race

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

'Confinement Won't Harm Cats'

To Village of Schaumburg board of trustees:

I have just read the article in October 26 Herald regarding the proposed ordinance for dogs and cats.

I wrote Mayor Atcher some weeks ago, stating my opinion concerning rabies inoculations and confinement for cats after having attended a First Aid Class which encouraged such an ordinance. I am writing again to reinforce my earlier letter.

The following is a quote from the newspaper article that greatly disturbs me: "When it was suggested that cats can create a nuisance, another member of the audience noted, 'So do children. Do you want to make rules to confine our children?' she asked."

I have heard people say that it is against the nature of a cat not to let it roam free. Is it not, for example, "against the nature" of a child not to be allowed to pick flowers even though they be in another person's yard? We do put restrictions on our children. To say that cats should not have restrictions is, in my opinion, putting them above concern for our children.

I hope the Village Board is not considering only licensing cats and not requiring them to be confined to their owner's property or on a leash. According to the Herald, a remark was made by the board that even if the animal could not be caught, the victim of a bite could see whether the animal wore a tag and could avoid unnecessary rabies shots. This would be true if the victim could be sure it was this year's tag and not an expired one. Also, I doubt very much if a small child would be likely to notice if the cat was wearing a tag in the excitement of getting bit.

Ogilvie Ode Irks A Reader

I'm writing to congratulate Mr. Griffith on his perfectly darling poem on Gov. Richard Ogilvie. I'm sure he gave it a lot of time and serious thought. All the platitudes were perfectly rhymed, too bad they don't exist out here in reality.

Please don't tell us how Ogilvie has improved education. Last year in our school system they had to eliminate special education teachers, music and physical education teachers for budget cuts. Yet Ogilvie poured more cement highways in Illinois. Please don't tell me how he has increased quality of health care.

I work in a state-supported institution where we all try to make do with the cutbacks he's made. Yet Ogilvie builds a better public relations department.

We live in an area that floods regularly and Ogilvie never saw to it that retention basins were built, tsk, tsk. I could go on and on. I wish I had the time to rhyme this into a poem and make it more readable, but I haven't. It's time for me to go door to door for Dan Walker.

Working for Walker is a lot of footwork because he believes in people to people contact, to find out what, in reality, people's problems are. The Walker campaign does not have a lot of money to spend on lavish TV productions. But when Walker is governor, he won't owe any favors to the people who bought the lavish productions.

Ogilvie jokes about Walker's charisma, while in truth he envies Walker's responsible attitude, his intelligence and honesty. Newspapers apologetically endorse Ogilvie, meanwhile stating they can't find anything wrong with Walker.

As a non-patronage, non-paid, independent volunteer worker for Dan Walker, I urge people to stop reading platitudes and start listening to the facts. Dan Walker can step into the governor's office with all his administrative ability and no political ties. He can do a job for us, the people.

Public's Issue SPECIAL

Walker: No New Taxes

Dan Walker

Dan Walker, a Democrat who hopes to become governor of Illinois next Tuesday, is the last in a series of politicians to answer the question, "What are the issues in the 1972 general election — especially in terms of the suburbs."

Already, it's been answered by Richard Ogilvie, Walker's opponent, Roman Pucinski, and Charles Percy.

Walker's been challenging Ogilvie ever since Walker announced his intention to run for governor almost two years ago. In March, the former general counsel for Montgomery Ward defeated Lt. Governor Paul Simon in the primary.

Walker's column has been edited to bring it close to the 1,000-word limit.

Illinois' state budget has nearly tripled over the past four years, from $2.85 billion in 1969 to $7.4 billion this year. To pay for this increased state spending, Ogilvie has imposed the state income tax, and has increased gasoline taxes, cigarette taxes, liquor taxes, college tuition, motor vehicle license fees, motor vehicle registration fees — and on and on.

Governor Ogilvie proudly says, "I have raised taxes more than any other governor before me." I agree with the governor on that. But, that doesn't square with his promises.

We were promised that the income tax would take the pressure off real estate taxes — and it has not happened. Real estate taxes have gone up. We were promised that the income tax would enable Ogilvie to take the sales tax off food and medicine — but he has not done it. We were promised that there would be an end to the personal property tax — but it has not happened.

The question that I have heard most often, and the main one I believe voters should be asking themselves between now and election day is, where has that money gone? Have we received a full measure on every tax dollar we've paid?

I learned a great deal from my walk through this state, and from talking with thousands of Illinois citizens over the past two years. I know first hand the depth of public disillusionment with their government.

To help bring about a new confidence in state government, I have made several commitments in my campaign for the Governorship.

Tomorrow...

EDITORIAL: Neatness isn't everything when it comes to maintaining state highways.

First, I have gone directly to the people for their support — not to the backrooms of politics. I have kept, and will keep my promise, of an open campaign and an open state government.

Second, I have pledged that if I am elected, there will be no new taxes or any additional taxes on the people of this state. Illinois now has a budget of $7.4 billion dollars — and will have approximately $2.25 billion dollars in additional funds over the next four years from existing sources of revenue as a result of look at his performance in office simply does not live up to his promise.

What has Governor Ogilvie done? In the past four years, state aid to elementary and secondary education, as a percentage of the state budget, has declined from 18.8 per cent in 1969 to 15.2 per cent in the current year. The state's portion of financial support to public schools has also declined — from 39.1 per cent in the 1971-72 school year to 37.8 per cent for this school year. And, this decline explains why the pressure on your real estate tax has increased.

A similar financial crisis has hit our state colleges and universities. Governor Ogilvie's budget cuts have caused not only a cutback in programs, but also a drop in the numbers of people being able to afford a higher education. For example, in 1971 Ogilvie used his reduction veto power to reduce the appropriations for higher education from $710 million to $652 million — $58 million less than the State Legislature had appropriated, and $21 million less than even he had earlier declared was necessary. Tuitions at state colleges and universities have been raised by 200 per cent on the average, over the past three years. In the face of this, last year Governor Ogilvie cut $3.2 million for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission's appropriation which resulted in 6,300 qualified students being denied scholarships.

I am also concerned about the recent wave of violent crime in Illinois, particularly in the suburbs. Based on my experience as President of the Chicago Crime Commission, I believe the best way to check crime, and allay the fears of physical danger, is for more police presence in our neighborhoods. Local police departments must have the support of state government to hire more policemen, and to institute training programs.

Money is available for such programs — it simply has not been fully tapped, nor wisely directed in the past. Under the Law Enforcement Assistance Act, the federal government grants money to states for law enforcement programs. The sad fact is, that Illinois ranks 41st out of the 50 states in terms of money it receives from this program — and the money we have received has gone largely for research projects and hardware instead of increased police presence.

We must speed the trial process by requiring that criminal trials be held within 60 days after arrest, except in unusual cases. Far too often, a person is arrested on criminal charges, but is let go on bond for periods of over a year before being brought to trial. During that period the person is on the street, free to commit more violent crimes. On the other side of the coin, innocent people who have been arrested, and who cannot afford bond, can be held in jail for a year or more before their case comes to trial. Both situations are wrong.

Finally, I'd like to touch on a subject of great local concern. Early last month, I related the facts which lead to the sad conclusion that the most severe ravages the recent flooding of hundreds of homes in northwestern Cook County, and DuPage County, need not have occurred. All or most of the damage could have been prevented if the Ogilvie administration had followed through on the advice of their conservation experts.

I reported the following facts: Ogilvie signed a bill to build the Busse Reservoir in 1969, but did not release the money. This delay occurred even though the Department of Public Works said the reservoir had to have first priority for construction" and by their estimates, the legislature had appropriated more than sufficient money to cover both land acquisition and construction costs.

Since 1970, the Metropolitan Sanitary District has been urging the state to take a leadership role in area-wide flood control planning — the only kind of plan that can succeed. The state has flatly refused, and that is disgraceful.

I believe substance is more important than press agency in governing. We must begin devoting the attention and resources of the state to meet the human needs of people — and spend less time focusing on the public relations campaign of accommodation.

'Rent Watch' Booklet Announced

Copies of a booklet describing the "Rent Watch" program, recently announced by the cost of living council, are now available at the Arlington Heights Social Security Office, according to Norman Thoresen, social security manager.

The Rent Watch program, Thoresen said, is aimed at preventing landlords from illegally boosting rents to take advantage of the increased social security benefits which became payable this month.

The booklet tells social security beneficiaries what to do if they receive a notice of a proposed rent increase and how to file a complaint with the Internal Revenue Service if they believe that the increase is in violation of Economic Stabilization Program regulations.

Thoresen said that in announcing the Rent Watch on Sept. 29, Donald Rumsfeld, director of the cost of living council, noted that there had been instances in the past where the rents of older people went up when their social security benefits increased.

Social security beneficiaries in Cook County may get a copy of the "Rent Watch" leaflet by calling 501-1229, or they may write for a copy to: Price Control office, 17 North Dearborn, Chicago, 60606. Copies will also be available on the pamphlet rack at the social security office, 120 W. Gastman.

Lunar Accounting

End-to-end, the 25 billion checks commercial banks will process during 1972 would reach to the moon and back almost 11 times.

More than $18 trillion will be transferred in processing, the American Bankers Association reports.

More than 72 per cent of all checks handled, those written for less than $100, will represent 2 per cent of total dollar volume, while 5 per cent of all checks handled, those written for more than $1,000, account for 92 per cent of all dollar volume.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

With well over 500 mutual funds now offered to the public, who needs another one?

Quite a few people, in the opinion of James M. Benham, who has just opened a no-load bond fund which he says is the only mutual fund of its kind in existence. And the claim appears to stand up.

The new fund will invest only in U.S. government securities and AA - AAA rated corporate bonds — nothing of lower quality. And the investor is charged no sales commission, no transaction fees, no performance fees, no redemption fees. Those two things, says Benham, make his fund unique.

Still, it does cost money to operate and manage a mutual fund. (Benham is committed by his prospectus to a maximum of 1 1/2 per cent.) Why can't the investor dollar penalties on some grain exporters next spring unless Russia steps up the rate at which it is importing U.S. wheat.

Shipment of the 400 million bushels of wheat sold to Russia in record-breaking deals last summer has been slower than expected, officials say, possibly because of delays in signing a U.S.-Soviet maritime agreement which was not concluded until last week. As a result of the delay, one industry source said it may now be difficult to clear the full 400 million bushels through American ports by May 31, 1973.

May 31 is critical because it is the expiration date for export subsidies on most of the wheat scheduled for sale to Russia. An exporter who "booked" subsidy payments last summer and failed to make his shipment by May 31 could, at least theoretically, be ruled in default and faced with a government penalty claim of up to 25 cents a bushel.

IF AN EXPORTER were ruled in default of 37 million bushels, 1 million tons of wheat subsidy, the penalty could be as much as $2.25 million.

Whether exporters actually would be hit by penalty claims if shipments are not completed by the deadline, however, appeared questionable. Agriculture Department policy, in the past, has allowed penalty-free extension of subsidy deadlines where the delay in exporting wheat was clearly beyond the control of the exporter.

George Shanklin, assistant sales manager of the department's Export Marketing Service, said two factors would have to be involved in any penalty-free extension of the shipping deadline on wheat.

The exporter would have to show he had the grain ready to go, but was prevented from moving it by conditions he could not control; and the Agriculture Department would have to be satisfied the wheat couldn't have been shipped to an alternate customer within the deadline.

In the case of Russian sales, where Soviet officials are responsible for arranging the shipping, delays might be considered unavoidable as far as the U.S. exporters were concerned, Shanklin indicated.

Edison Offers Stock

Commonwealth Edison Co. will offer holders of small amounts of the company's stock an opportunity to sell their shares at a small premium until Nov. 10.

who wants bonds buy them on the open market, without going through a mutual fund?

WELL, TAKE the "Ginnie Mae" government mortgage bonds, now yielding in excess of 7 per cent. They're available only in minimum lots of $25,000. Even then, the "small investor" who's buying only 25 bonds will get nicked by a 1 per cent spread between the "bid" and the "asked" — both coming and going. Thus a round trip in this bond market can cost the little guy 2 per cent, and he might as well have stayed with his savings account.

Other high-yield "governments," such as FHDA Insured Notes, are sold only in minimums of $50,000 or $100,000. Frankly, they don't want this market cluttered up by a lot of "little guys" with a few thousand to invest.

What about corporate bonds, now offering yields near 8 per cent on top quality? "The small investor is penalized in several ways," says Benham, who for the past eight years was a Merrill, Lynch senior account executive.

"First, new bonds are offered at a 'net price' which includes a hidden commission. The better the bond, the lower this commission is — but the best of the bonds are creamed off by the big institutional investors. The odd-lot buyer — anybody with less than $100,000 — gets the less attractive offerings, where the hidden commission can run as high as $20 per $1,000 par value. And he can receive as much as $20 less when he sells.

"ON TOP OF that, he's charged the special odd-lot brokerage commission, normally $5 per bond. Then if he's trying to sell his bonds when prices are moving around, he's subject to special exchange rules that can leave him holding the bag on an adverse sale. The bond market is simply set up to discriminate against the small investor. They planned it that way."

That's why Benham is convinced there's room for one more mutual fund. His Capital Preservation Fund, in Palo Alto, Calif., is designed, says Benham, to give the small investor an access he's never had to the market in first-quality, high-yield bonds. (Minimum initial purchase of fund shares is $1,000; thereafter the minimum is $100.)

Compared to buying stocks for a mutual fund portfolio, Benham says, buying bonds requires only a fraction of the staff and overhead. He's geared to a low-expense operation, and convinced that — in this era of 8 per cent yields — what's left over for investors, after expenses, will run 6 1/2 to 7 per cent.

It sounds as if there may, indeed, be room for one more mutual fund. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Tight Money Hurts Home Financing

Although progress has been made, it's still not clear if the United States has solved the chief weakness of its residential financing system — its periodic bouts with tight money.

John P. Farry, president of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, made this comment at a recent housing finance seminar sponsored jointly by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Spanish Housing Ministry in Madrid, Spain. The seminar was held to focus on means of attracting private capital into residential mortgages in Spain and to explore various financing methods that may be applicable to both the U.S. and Spain.

Farry, who is also president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Albert Lea, Minn., explained to his audience that in periods of tight money, such as the U.S. experienced in 1966 and 1969, the supply of mortgage credit begins drying up.

"This situation is caused when interest rates for other types of investments (as compared to rates on savings deposits) climb sharply," he said. "Families then invest their savings in anything that pays a rate of return higher than on savings accounts. When interest rates again recede to the point where savings and loan rates are attractive, the money comes in again and ample mortgage credit is available."

HE SAID THAT this has been the problem in residential financing for a long time, and that students of the business are constantly trying to devise ways and means to reduce the peaks and valleys in the money supply.

"With our expanded government secondary market operations (Federal National Mortgage Association and Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.), we think we have solved the most serious of these problems," he said. "Yet time is needed before a clear-cut claim can be made."

The federal government in the United States has contributed much to the success of the American construction industry and the improvement of American housing standards, Farry said.

Among its major contributions are: federal insurance of savings accounts in savings institutions; high percentage, low down-payment loans which were developed under the FHA and VA programs, and recent regulations which have liberalized conventional loans and opened the way for the use of private mortgage insurance firms; and "back-up" support for the mortgage market through the Federal Home Loan Banks and through government secondary mortgage corporation activities.

Wards Opens In Rolling Meadows

Montgomery Wards' first free-standing catalog outlet store anywhere in the country has opened recently at 3225 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Store Manager Richard Andregg described the newest Ward store as having 20,000 square feet of space for the sale of specially-priced fashions from Wards catalogs. An area has also been set aside, said Andregg, for a catalog desk at which customers may place orders, by phone or in person, from any of the current Ward catalogs. The company puts out 13 catalogs each year, containing more than 130,000 items.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer welcomed Wards to the community and congratulated the company on its 100th anniversary. Following the mayor's remarks, he assisted Andregg in cutting a ribbon of ten $10 bills, which was turned over to the community chest. William Glasgow, president of the Rolling Meadows Bank and vice president of the charity, accepted the donation.

Missouri's Upset Triumphs Put Jack Bastable Back In Spotlight

by KEITH REINHARD

This Friday Elk Grove's stellar quarterback Jeff Stewart will get the ball early in the game, roll around end or flip one quick pass and . . . zap . . . Jack Bastable will be knocked right off the list on top ten all-time Mid-Suburban League career total offense gainers.

Bastable won't be aware of it, of course. The former Wheeling prep star is now doing his thing for Missouri's Tigers. And he has too much hovering in his future to dwell very much on the past.

For one thing Missouri's football squad, coming off a pitiful 1971 season into a so-so '72 campaign, has now put together a pair of shocking upset wins. Down around Columbia, people are beginning to think perhaps this team, which Jack has been a member of the past three years, isn't so bad after all.

"We haven't been making the big mistakes the last couple of weeks," Bastable said in assessing the situation. "Actually, I'd have to say this is a pretty good outfit even though most everyone figured us to finish last in the conference this year."

Mizzou did finish dead last in 1971 and they were 1-10 overall. They traveled to South Bend two weeks ago at 2-3 coming off a horrendous 62-0 loss to Nebraska and just happened to knock off touted Notre Dame 30-26.

"I guess what happened at Nebraska just made us more determined than ever to prove ourselves. We knew we were better than the record showed but it was up to us to let the rest of the world know about it."

It looks like the Tigers are going to keep on growing too. Bastable pulled in one 30-yard pass against the Fighting Irish and contributed five key punts, averaging 45 yards per boot. Then this last Saturday he hauled in three more series for 29 yards and maintained a 38.7 punting average while contributing to a Missouri upset of Colorado.

"Don't think a couple of big wins like the last two aren't doing wonders for the team's confidence either," he mused. "There's even a little talk beginning to flow around now about shooting for a bowl bid."

So that's one thing on the horizon to keep Jack Bastable occupied. For another there are the Oakland A's and the very real possibility of a professional baseball career beginning as early as next spring.

"They've made a couple of offers and I've got until January and the winter draft to negotiate with them," he spoke of the now world champions.

While this channel is being left open, the alternative would be a return to the Big Eight diamond circuit for a third varsity campaign. There might not be quite the challenge remaining here since Jack is already a two-time all-conference standout, having been a unanimous choice of the loop coaches this past spring.

Jack's father Tom, who presides over the hectic (four other sons and a daughter) Bastable household in Arlington Heights and has probably seen more football games, baseball matches, basketball contests and track meets from pee-wee to collegiate level than anyone else to town over the past decade, seems to feel the pro choice is the more likely one.

"I think Jack is getting kind of anxious to begin playing for real. He's never really considered any alternative career. Sports as his life and I know he wants to get on with the business of establishing himself professionally."

The elder Bastable indicated Jack's reluctance to take the plunge thus far is probably hinged to the fact that he was drafted by the Athletics as a third baseman. "Catching is what he wants to do. Oakland made him an offer as an infielder but I think he held off hoping they'd take a second look at him working behind the plate."

Jack actually has outfield experience under his belt too. He was a three-year catching star at Wheeling who was converted to third at Missouri and then spent a good deal of time roaming center field in summer league competition.

"Catching is where I felt most comfortable though. I also think it would probably offer me the fastest route to the majors."

So that's what lies ahead of the dynamic young athlete to date. If he balks on signing with the A's he will undoubtedly be recruited by another team. In the meantime he has some crucial league football games to prepare for and then the option of regrouping for Mizzou's baseball season beginning with an opening March exhibition swing down south and undoubtedly more conference and area kudos. There could possibly be an even juicier pro offer from a different team to mull over.

As for the past, there was a tour to Japan last summer that has left a strong impression with Bastable. He went as the result of being selected to a college all-star team to compete with comparable Japanese outfits.

The competition was interesting and had its unusual facets: "I was amazed at the turnout despite the weather. We played before crowds of 6,000 to 10,000 and as many as 20,000 under rainy, wet conditions we wouldn't even dress for here in the states."

But even more memorable were his contacts with the people there. "They were extremely hospitable and helpful. It was a very rewarding experience just to get to know some of them. And I had to admire many of their customs and ways of life."

Jack made mention of an incident occurring during the tour which he and his teammates considered a tragedy but which the Japanese coped with in very contrasting fashion. "During one game a player on the other team did not slide into second on a double play ball and was hit in the temple. He died two days later and all of us on the American team went to the funeral prepared for a very sorrowful affair."

"But the Japanese treated the memorial service as more of honor and the player was regarded as a hero," Jack continued. "It made me realize how much differently from us these people view life."

Bastable's view of so many things is changing and maturing in the meantime. And while it affords little opportunity to dwell on past accomplishments, they continue to grow as he continues to excel in his athletic endeavors.

In one Missouri football game Jack shattered a 30-year old school single game record by punting six times for a potent 47.4 average.

This college record will be wiped away some day as surely as Jeff Stewart erases that prep total offense standard on Friday but Bastable is not concerned.

"The records are always great to achieve but they're never lasting things. Someone will always come along to improve on them. Over the long run, I'd have to be thankful to athletics for the self-discipline they instill you with and the friendships they provide. These are assets good for a lifetime."

(Editor's Note: Don Williams has been the head coach of Prospect High School's football team for nine years after spending one season with the freshmen and another with the sophomores. As the 'father' of 40 'sons' over each of those 11 campaigns, Williams recognizes an immediate danger, that if not corrected, could result in catastrophe at the high school level.

In a school whose enrollment has increased during each of his 11 years, Williams cites the disastrous "numbers game" that he feels has put the Prospect football program in jeopardy.

In 1971, 87 freshmen suited up for Prospect's lower level games. The sophomore class boasted 47 while the juniors turned out 41. The grim 1972 figures disclose that of the 87 freshmen, only 36 are now playing sophomore football while only 21 juniors graduated from the 45-man 1971 soph squad. The 41 juniors of

It's easier to sit back and watch. What happens when everyone and even those who get paid decide they'd rather sit back and watch?

In several years of observing the growing child, my mind takes me back to my childhood when I think of the things common to me and to those who grew up with me. To be the best bicycle rider on the street and to be able not to just pass each test in school, but to excel, was a must.

If you played an instrument, to practice more than your friend, not because you liked to practice but because it made you better than him. If you were an athlete, to be the best from your side of the street was your goal.

So as I watch today's children, I watch a group of children growing up and being satisfied with mediocrity. The challenge of competition is too great because of the possibility of not being able to accept defeat. They simply accept the fact that they are not good enough without striving and usually pass it off with a simple "that's just not my bag."

I have watched educational institutions with particular interest since my children would be and are now involved. I have seen new schools open and swell with pride. Then just as rapidly they shrink to depths of unenthusiasm as the older more established attitude prevails.

I have seen bonds and athletic teams that were once of great fame and power suddenly disappear for no apparent reason and with little or no concern by those at the institution.

Being a coach, I have watched with particular interest the athletic programs in the schools around me. The most appalling thing to me is the sudden decline of participants in the programs without a similar drop in the enrollment.

Most of the coaches are the same men who were there during the good times, yet the athletes are gone. How do you explain a school winning an important title then not being able to field a team on each level for competition the following year?

Why the decline? Do they not want to have to compete with the record of a previous year? Are they afraid of defeat?

Many people will say there are more things for the kids to do now. Some will say that the extra pressure is not good for the child, or my child must work so he can have his own car.

At this high school age, what is more important — the material things he can gain, or to guide him in learning to compete and then being able to be a good winner as well as being able to cope and bounce back from defeat?

The major winnings and defeats are yet to come. Unless we affirm our values, encourage our children to strive for the top, set goals, compete for the sake of competing and stress that good solid competition is good for the child and the community, the generation that is growing up will become a generation of quitters.

Once it becomes easy to quit in athletics, it becomes easy to quit in business and easier to quit in life. The world does not wait for a quitter. Only those who try and give their best will have the self-satisfaction of doing all they could. Who could ask for more!

Compete! Not me! That is for the guys who get paid for it.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

IF THE SKYBUSTERS and taxi hunters outnumbered the competent duck hunters over last weekend's opening of the Illinois water fowl season, few "regulars" worried about it, because the hunters also outnumbered the ducks in most areas.

Although breeding populations in 1972 were about level with last year's good crop in the Canadian wetlands, Illinois hunters spent much of their first weekend suffering from the same problems the Wisconsin gunners have been trying to cope with for three weeks.

There are, actually, thousands of ducks in the area, many of them "local" ducks that have summered here. There are also a good percentage of migrating ducks from the north. But for the most part, during this early part of the season, the ducks are rested and well-fed and anything but anxious to put down any place that looks suspicious to them.

Since flooded sloughs and farm lowlands have a plethora of food and water, and an abundance of hunters, the cagey ducks are avoiding the duck blinds and filling their craws as they rest.

Last weekend on the Chain of Lakes, in the Grass Lake management area, there were the usual hordes of long-shot artists, taxi-hunters, who arrive barehanded and empty headed, move into a rented blind and spend the day flaring ducks, and the merely inexperienced hunters who some day may learn not to blow a duck call at a duck until they've learned to properly exhale into a duck call.

We are of the school which believes that any man who breathes through a duck call and flares a duck should surrender either his duck call or his breath. And after the second such incident, he should have but 10 seconds to decide which.

On the Grass Lake refuge you can also see just about every type of decoy "set" imaginable . . . including some which you can't even imagine. There were a few blinds which seemed to have carefully planned "sets," and then there were some blinds with decoys tangled in each other's anchor line, alternately bobbing and sinking. We watched, probably with mouth agape, at four hunters standing in their blind throwing decoys around them. You can imagine the look of that spread by the time they were finished.

It also never, never fails: About 9:00 or 9:30 Saturday morning an aluminum jonboat came stealthily around a bend near our blind. The two occupants immediately brushed each other and began creeping silently up on our decoys. One of them had his shotgun leveled at our blocks. Last year the same thing happened and a guy actually shot one of my decoys. This year they were "warned" away before they harvested themselves a plastic mallard.

About noon on the same day another boat came leisurely down through the shooting area. It was powered by a rather noisy five hp. something-or-other. There were five "hunters" in the boat, four of them with duck calls strung around their necks and a shotgun at the ready. The reason we knew they were hunters is that every one of the five was wearing a brilliant, fluorescent orange hunting cap and matching vest.

This boatload spent the next half hour or so in frustration, trying to find a blindful of hunters who would allow them to park outside their decoys and wait for ducks. They never found accommodations to satisfy them and, when last seen, were motoring noisily toward the channel that would lead them to a resort.

Besides the pleasure boaters who happen to own shotguns and a hunting license, the duck callers who frighten ducks with their caterwauling, and the generally inexperienced or lazy duck hunters, perhaps the most frustrating neighbor hunter to have is the skybuster. This kind of guy also participates in other sports. He's the one who takes a 500 yard shot at a deer, who shoots into the brush at a crouching pheasant and who feels he must always have the first shot at anything.

He is the guy who would buy a radar control system for his shotgun if it were available.

He is the guy who figures if he can see the duck he can hit him. He can't keep his head down while you're calling, because he must begin sighting-in the moment the bird appears on the horizon. One of the things he will never experience is the thrill of having a duck circle overhead just out of gun range . . . call him back once, maybe twice, until he comes right into the decoys. The reason he will never experience that is because he will be banging away as soon as the bird gets within what he considers shooting range the first time.

He may also hunt but once, since he also won't be able to identify the specie of the duck in his sights. Should he drop a redhead or canvasback, one must but hope there is a warden nearby to relieve him of his duck, his gun, his license and the contents of his wallet.

But the misery of opening weekend once passed, the waterfowl season looks good this week and should be even better next week. The ducks and geese alike have pretty well stripped the fields of the leftover grain and will soon begin looking to their regular landing areas to rest and feed.

It is scheduled to turn colder in the next ten days, which will put more birds in the air. Pressure begins next week on the Horizon marsh geese, which should send a hundred thousand, or so, Canadas into northern Illinois. So, all in all, prospects are good for a decent season.

About the only thing that can prevent an excellent hunting season would be a sudden and hard freeze that would wipe out the open waters in the inland lakes. This will send the birds flying on a direct route to the Mississippi River sloughs and backwaters.

Hunters who don't have a duck blind to climb into, or a friend with a suitable hunting site, sometimes find some decent shooting during the week in the Grass Lake waterfowl management area. This area has sites for blinds that are allotted to lucky hunters in an annual drawing. Site winners are required to build and maintain their blinds on the appointed location. Most of them do.

Many of them turn the project over to others, preferring to let someone else do the hard work, in exchange for hunting privileges. All the blinds on the Grass Lake area are occupied during the weekends and many are occupied every morning during the week.

But hunters who need a place to hunt can occupy any of these blinds when they are not occupied by their owner/builder. In fact, if the owner/builder is not in his blind one half hour before sunrise, you can take over for that day.

Good sense tells you that if the owner shows up, you ought to make a friendly exit. But no one, other than the guy who drew the site location, can make you leave if you want to stay and hunt.

All you need is a boat, a license, a $5 duck stamp and a shotgun.

Arlington Boys Football

by LARRY HICKERSON
Teams from the South Side of Arlington Heights won two All-Star games as the Arlington Heights boys football team staged its season finale on the Arlington High School field Sunday.

In the Senior League All-Star game, a team of combined Lions and Forty Niners representing the South defeated a team made up of Rams and Redskins 14-4.

The South won the Varsity League All-Star game, 14-12. The South team was made up of 15-man squads from the Vikings, Giants, and Saints, while the league-championship Browns, Eagles, and Steelers represented the North.

In the Junior League All-Star game, teams aligned by standing rather than geography, it was the Red team (Cardinals, Bears, and Falcons) beating the Blue team (league-champ Packers, Colts, and Cowboys) 20-6.

NORTH WINS SENIOR
ALL-STAR GAME 14-4

John Gillen passed for one touchdown and ran for another as the South defeated the North 11-4 in the annual Senior All-Star game of the Arlington Heights Boys Football League.

After a vicious defensive battle, highlighted by fumbles, a recovered on-side kick by M. Amos, a blocked kick by J. Thornton, and a pass interception by Tom North of the South, the first half ended in a scoreless tie.

In the third quarter, shortly after R. Reeves of the South recovered a fumble, Mike Gallaway punched over for a North TD and then scored the two-point on a running play.

The decisive scores came in the fourth quarter when John Gillen passed 25 yards to Tom North for a South touchdown. Rick Sutton went around left end for the conversion. The score was tied 8-8.

With 23 seconds left, John Gillen went in for a South touchdown to put the South ahead 14-8.

NORTH WINS VARSITY
ALL-STAR GAME 14-12

In the first quarter, the Saints and Steelers fought to a standstill.

With the Vikings and Eagles confronting each other in the second quarter, Ken Badowski of the Vikings blocked an Eagle kick.

On the next play, Mike Erikson swept 30 yards for a touchdown to put the South in front.

On the first play of the third quarter, Rick

Kneisel of the Downs roared right for 30 yards to score against the Giants for the North. Score tied 6-6. After a brilliant passing display between Stu and Stan Huffer, the half ended.

With the Saints facing the Eagles in the second half, Rick Sanders put on a running performance, but the score remained tied.

The Giants facing the Steelers, Stu Huffer threw to Gary Vevang for a touchdown to put the South back in front 12-6. During this period, Mike Loch and Chris Bobowski distinguished themselves on defense. Near the end of the quarter, Gary Vevang of the Giants intercepted a Steeler pass on his own 40 and sprinted 60 yards for a touchdown to give the South an 18-6 lead.

Hard running by Brown Mike Williams highlighted the final quarter between the Vikings and Downs until a bad snap from the Vikings center went into the end zone and Dave Purkis recovered it for a touchdown. The game ended, South 18, North 12.

RED JUNIOR ALL-STARS
WIN 20-6

The Red Junior All-Stars represented by the Cardinals, Bears, and Falcons scored early to defeat the Blue team, represented by the Packers, Colts, and Cowboys 20-6.

Shortly after the Blues kicked off, Cowboys facing the Bears, Curt Roy of the Bears went to the Cowboy 10 on a keeper left. On the next play Bear Brian Wachlin swept to the right to score. The Bears added the extra points on a reverse to put the Reds in front 8-0.

After Jim Rudolph of the Cowboys intercepted a Bear pass, Darren Dreil ran straight up the middle for a Cowboy touchdown. The PAT try was no good and the quarter ended 14 seconds later.

The Colts and Cardinals exchanged fumbles in the second quarter and illuminated by defensive play of Mike Butts and Jeff Barone of the Colts, the quarter ended, Red team leading 8-0.

The third quarter between the Packers and Falcons was highlighted by a pass interception runback for touchdown by Dan Makeover, called back on a penalty, but no further score.

After intermission, the Cowboys and Cardinals exchanged fumbles and the giddy Cowboys held the Cardinals scoreless.

In the fifth quarter, the Packers devastated the Bear offense, but couldn't muster an offense of their own.

In the final quarter, Colts vs. the Falcons, a fired-up Falcon team launched Scott Anderson for a 25-yard touchdown to make it Reds 20, Blues 6. The Colts threatened, behind good effort by halfback Kurt White, but Falcon Scott Meyer intercepted a pass as the game ended.

Triton College, aided by its 20-12 victory over Harper on Saturday, has maintained its first-place ranking in the state, according to the coaches' poll of Region IV.

Five girls again rolled 500 or better as Striking Lanes defeated Doyle's-Des Plaines Lanes five points to two. Doyle's won the first game 614 to 601 as Striking came back to win the next two games with 952 and 909.

Eunice Whitmore rolled 542 for Striking, Judy Croston had 536, Sue Wentworth rolled 525 with a 200 game, and Lu Schoenberger rolled 524 with a 200 game.

For Doyle's Des Plaines Winnie Lohse rolled a fine 586 series which included a 227 game. Delores Harris fired 570 with a 201 and 203 game for Doyle's.

L-Tran Engineering continues to hold a 10-point lead as they rolled to a 5-2 victory over Hoffman Lanes.

Marlis Pleckhart led her L-Tran team with a 568 series which included a 200 and a 210 game. Vi Douglas of L-Tran had a 216 game and a 538 series and Toshi Inahara rolled a 500. Joan Christensen rolled a 540 for her Hoffman Lanes team as Peggy Harris shot 524 and Marilyn Lange rolled a 215 game and a 522 series. The Hoffman team won the first game 842 to 774 but L-Tran rolled 901 and 930 to win the second and third games and the series.

The Paddock League will see action at Des Plaines Lanes on Nov. 4. L-Tran vs. Thunderbird, Hoffman Lanes vs. Franklin-Weber Pontiac, Morton Pontiac vs. Doyle's-Des Plaines Lanes, and Arlington Park Towers vs. Striking Lanes are the scheduled match games.

Elk Grove Hockey Report

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association Midget team split a pair of games in Polar Dome action recently.

First, Elk Grove lost to Hoffman Estates 3-1 in one of the most poorly-played games of the season by the losers. Ron Checkler scored for Elk Grove unassisted for their only goal.

Elk Grove bounced back, playing well in defeating Schaumburg 4-1. The play of goalies Larry McDermott and Steve Cimino and defensemen Bill Halpenny, Robbie Goeke, Bob Brunn and Mike Tucker were outstanding. Offensively, Elk Grove was led by its third line of Bob Lamanita, Tom Balcer, Joe Danna and Larry Mitsch.

The winners dominated play in the first 10 minutes, keeping the puck in the Schaumburg zone, but could not score. Schaumburg took a 1-0 lead by the end of the period.

Goeske tied the score with an unassisted goal in the second period. It was still 1-1 going into the third period, which was dominated by Elk Grove. Joe Danna scored with assists from Tom Balcer and Larry Mitsch for the lead goal. Bob Lamanita set up Mitsch's goal to make it 3-1, and Mitsch tallied again to close out the scoring with Balcer assisting.

Other good performances were by Bob Morita, Ron Checkler, Jim Samuels, Mark Gustafson, Mark Christensen and Mark Rodseth.

Polar Dome Begins 2nd Season

Starting the week of Nov. 6, the Polar Dome Ice Arena located in Santa's Village will begin its second series of ice skating lessons.

This year, the skating programs offered at the Dome are aimed at all skaters from beginners to competitors and from tots to adults. The rink now offers to the public a well rounded program which includes figure skating, ice hockey, and public skating.

Marilyn McDonald heads the Gold Medalist staff of instructors who will be teaching the many varieties of ice skating classes. The classes, lasting six weeks, will include all of the Ice Skating Institute of America (ISIA) classes, patch and free style, and dancing. New this year are "Slim and Skate" classes which combine ice skating and off-the-ice exercise, and "Stretch and Ballet" classes to improve one's physical fitness and gracefulness.

Registration for all classes which begin Nov. 6, will be held in the Polar Dome Pro Shop, Oct. 30 through Nov. 4 from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. The Polar Dome is situated in Santa's Village, Routes 25 and 72, East Dundee. For further information on any skating program, call the Pro Shop at 426-6751.

Empty Units For Low Income?

'Housing's Already Here'

Several citizens groups, in addition to Judge Austin and Paddock Publications, have led campaigns to have "low and moderate income" housing built in suburban areas. It appears that none of the above will open their eyes long enough to see that it is already here and built and standing vacant in many cases.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development already is in foreclosure proceedings on 13 apartment buildings in the Chicago area containing more than 700 units. Another 5,863 apartment units in 40 buildings are in default on mortgage payments. It also now has 1,100 defaulted homes in its possession, many in our suburban areas, which it is trying to rehabilitate and sell. (Chicago Tribune, Oct. 6, 1972, Sec. 3, p. 9) I understand that the Veterans Administration has a similar inventory of homes.

How about the Tally Ho Apartments in Mount Prospect (never completed)? The defunct Marshall Savings and Loan Association also has a substantial number of apartments in this area, many vacant, which it probably would be glad to have taken over, perhaps by the CHA, for a worthy cause. Specifically in Des Plaines, in the Prospect and Chestnut Streets area and Sumac Drive.

All that is needed is an agency to acquire, refinance, rehabilitate, and manage these buildings or perhaps assist in selling these buildings to low and moderate income people. I suspect that apartments in this area are now either overbuilt or on the verge of becoming overbuilt. It makes little sense to build new housing, when there is existing housing vacant and defaulting on mortgage payments.

Would Paddock agree that the mood of our times is to make the best use of existing resources? Then Paddock can help by urging citizens groups and government officials to follow the faster and more economical course of using existing housing for low and moderate income people.

Dist. 25 Is Supported

I've come to realize the Herald's Fence Post letters are widely read in Arlington Heights and often quoted, whether they contain fact or not. Therefore I resent our Dist. 23 board of education and the administration being referred to as "ostriches!"

In the Arlington Heights Teachers Manual there is a directive on "punishment of pupils." Each principal strives to give guidelines to the teaching staff in his or her building on maintenance of discipline.

I agree clarification of maintenance of discipline is necessary and always an ongoing challenge. Each school contains several hundred pupils with double the number of parents. That means hundreds of individuals to be dealt with on an individual basis, realizing the need for flexibility in dealing with the individual. The school recognizes its position in dealing with the department of the student, during the school day.

Let us as parents recognize our jobs in guiding, developing and encouraging our children to be responsible for their own actions and reactions. If we work with our administration and staff in a consistent desire for wholehearted improvement in the department of students and parents, our accomplishments can be unlimited!!

McGovern Is Backed

Opportunity knocks for the American voter on November 7. A genuine choice between distinctively different domestic and international ways-of-life is offered by the presidential election.

Senator McGovern offers a leadership that seeks the truly democratic way of life. He has demonstrated his deep faith in the open society by presenting detailed proposals for a just tax system, full employment, and to combat our increasing cost of living, social hatreds and crime. Basic to each of his proposals is the renewal of good-will and concern for the well-being of all elements of our society. He has further shown that constructive criticism of his proposals are welcome and seriously weighed.

While keeping a strong defense, McGovern emphasizes the need to make our powerful American an influential example of the good neighbor that respects the life and well-being of all of earth's people. He promises that the United Nations will be given the kind of big power support that it needs to deal more effectively and objectively with international problems. Who can deny with certainty that other big and small national powers will not respond to our example so as to enhance the prospects for a just and enforceable international law.

President Nixon, on the other hand, offers a continuation of the raw power politics that has always begat violence. His leadership has, it is true, produced some unexpected pluses. Yet, it remains a leadership with a definitely restricted respect for life and human well-being. His political strategy panders to prejudices and fears that seem cynically calculated to gain him the votes of a coalition of special interest voters. He obviously thinks in terms of "enemies," both domestic and foreign. A dominant image of his administration is that of man who seek power and special privilege by devious and secret means.

Each opportunity presents a challenge to respond to it with a reasonable and fruitful action. An identical opportunity is not likely to occur twice. The vote of a concerned citizen may not again be as effective in promoting a more liveable future as a vote for McGovern can be on this November 7.

Randall Lincoln

She'll Split Vote

With the wide differences in experience and philosophy among candidates of the same political parties who will be on the November ballot, it is hard to imagine how any voter can choose to vote a straight ticket in this election.

I am proud to say I'll be moving back and forth on the voting machine, casting my ballot for Republicans like President Nixon, Governor Richard Ogilvie, and Senator Charles Percy, and Democrats like Congressman Abner Mikva and State Rep. Aaron Jaffe.

Maybe if we pay more attention to the ability and integrity of a candidate rather than the party affiliation before casting our vote, we will be rewarded with public officials who are more responsive to the needs of the people than the wishes of a party organization hierarchy.

College Prof Hits 'Dirty' Nimrod

Dear Mr. Nimrod:

I hope your attempts to "fight" dirty are as pitiable in the political arena as they are in conversation with a member of the community. On Wednesday evening, October 3, I approached you after a "debate" with your opponent for the state senate. I had never heard either of you gentlemen or your positions before. On the basis of the time I had invested to listen to your positions on issues relating to education I claimed the opportunity, later in the "coffee-hour," to speak to each of you. I advised you that I disagreed with your positions. My reading of the evidence and my interpretation of the meetings you conveyed led me to that conclusion. Because I refused, at first, to identify myself you began to walk away. Sir, you are running for office, I am not. You saw me in the audience, the only black there; your rudeness in walking away is reprehensible. Anyone who sits through two hours of political refuse is entitled to be treated with respect simply because that person is a person; labels are of no value.

I find your recognition of who my husband is, including where he works and in what profession, to be vaguely disconcerting, as I am sure he knows nothing of your vital statistics.

There is a maxim from somewhere stating that "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." I wish to alter that to "Hell hath no fury like a woman whose child has been maligned." You made reference, with no continuity to the educational issues I was discussing with you, that, did I not have a son who "had to leave" or "had to be taken out of Devonshire School." Mr. Nimrod, my son "graduated" from Devonshire sixth grade in 1965, at the same time that my older son "graduated" from Old Orchard Junior High. Their experiences after one year in a large, aggressive suburban system was not an overwhelming success. So exercising my freedom of choice and my after tax dollars I returned them to a small private school environment to which they were accustomed. Since then they have both graduated from North Shore Country Day School and the son to whom you referred is presently a sophomore in the school of fine arts at the University of Hartford in Hartford, Connecticut. Your innuendo, which was totally out of context to our conversation, was very revealing. I read your intent loud and clear. Too bad there is no justification for the intent. If this is the way you engage in political life, work and thought, I believe the constituents of the Fourth District should know something of your orientation to education, particularly the mothers.

Sir, in the words of my closing remark to you, "Come into the twentieth century and maybe your children will be able to live in the twenty-first." By the way, you have beautiful children.

Actions Beat Words

In regards to the article, "Why Is Shriver So Stodgy?" I think you brought across your point clearly.

When will all the politicians learn that action speaks louder than words. Even as a little child, name calling depressed me.

I'm sure every American citizen would rather hear what the political campaign has to say about making this country better, not what his opponents have done to make it worse!

Economics Courses Needed

Our future and that of the whole nation rests totally on the shoulders of the youth of today. We put this into their hands by giving the 18-year-old the right to vote. This is a serious responsibility and if not exercised properly it can be very detrimental to the welfare of the entire nation. We gave them this responsibility, and now it is our responsibility to prepare them on how to use it or they may abuse it.

I am 22 years old, a high school graduate and very much concerned with the future, both mine and my family's. My concern is that the youth between the ages of 18 and 22 have not yet experienced life enough to understand many of our economic problems.

While in high school I took a course on economics, which at the time I thought would be of no benefit to me later in life. Four years have since passed and in this time I have been married and out in the working world. I now feel more than any course, either required or elective, I have most benefitted from this one.

I believe that high school is a preparation for either college or work. The graduate is faced with his first major decision in life, whether to continue his

Airport Growth: Who'll Benefit?

As a Schaumburg resident and home owner, I voice strong objections to the expansion of the now existing airport or to the acquisition of land for any other airport facility.

With the feasibility study now under way, how can the people making the study possibly conclude what my tolerance or any other resident's would be to the additional pollution, noise level and the safety hazard be now or ten years from now?

Who is to benefit from the proposed expansion?

What of the sale and resale value of our homes?

How desirable will our community become?

Paint Fumes Attacked

It is obvious that the Rolling Meadows fireman's wife has never been seriously ill and in need of an ambulance.

Last July I had an intestinal blockage and had to go to the hospital. If I would have taken an ambulance full of paint cans and fumes, I'm sure I would have vomited more. Fumes, odors, and smoke can actually be harmful to an ill person.

I realize the hydrants must be painted, but use the fire chief's car and leave the ambulance free and untainted for the taxpayers' use.

Barking Dogs Defended Against Complaining Neighbors

Well, it has finally happened . . . An irate neighbor saw fit to call the County Sheriff's office with his complaint of excessive barking on our dogs, a bunch of Collies and Shelties on 610 S. Busse Road, Mount Prospect, unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township. Officer Lusske had the task of ringing our doorbell and notifying us of the complaint. However, he was not prepared to name the complainant who wished to remain anonymous. Fine, if this is the case we can only add this particular complaint to so many other threats made over the phone by people who also did not identify themselves. Therefore, those threats can mean nothing to us.

But we do wish to tell the neighborhood around us how we feel about our dogs barking and what makes them bark in the first place. First of all, both the Collies and Shetland Sheepdogs are two of the most gentle and loving breeds anyone can own and call a member of the household. They are, from way back, working dogs and their instinct as such sets them to barking if anything out of the ordinary happens. So, the noise of lawnmowers being used from early morning to nightfall, and even after dark, hurts their ears more than ours. Dogs have a noise perception level much higher than humans.

Firecrackers that are being exploded in backyards or on the streets—not only on 4th July but anytime during the year—make dogs bark because it frightens them. Sod pieces and empty beer cans thrown at dogs or in their enclosure in "their own backyard" make them bark. Cold water hoses directed at them with full stream, that will make them bark for sure. Neighbor's visitors who leave after midnight in a drunken stupor and make a racket on driveways with loud talk and letting motors run for long times before they finally leave such neighbor's premises, that too makes dogs bark (even if they are inside the house where they heard this inconsiderate noise through walls and windows).

Pool side parties, all through the summer at neighbors' properties, that never end before midnight and turn out to be annoying and cause sleepless nights to us also, they too make dogs bark. Or Halloween-masked children, any age from 2 to 16 who come across lawns and ring doorbells and make a nuisance of themselves, they, too, make our dogs bark.

And neighbors' children that ride minibikes across one's front lawn, or snowmobiles across one's front lawn or even in their own backyard, that noise makes dogs bark. Sure, our dogs bark. They have no other way of expressing their pleasure or displeasure. But what about each and every other dog that is owned either singly or among others, left and right of our property? They all bark and their yapping at any time annoys us also, (particularly when our dogs have been locked away already for the night). And what about the dogs that live with their owners directly behind our property? They all bark excessively at one time or another. Especially those that are tied to ropes and chains.

What about the property taxes we pay of which the largest part is channeled to Dist. 59, 214 and 512? Those schools are the same ones the children attend that bother our dogs, tease them mercilessly over the twice-fenced-in play area, tease them in words and deeds . . . Yes, we both work, have no children, take care of our dogs better than some parents are prepared to take care of their children.

Our dogs are, in accordance with the laws and rules of the state, vaccinated against Rabies, get DHL booster shots, are tested twice yearly for heartworm and treated for such. They live in our house, do not roam the streets or over other people's lawns . . .

We do not bother the neighbors by playing popular records at highest volume by open windows or in the yards. We do not entertain and cause nightly disturbance to the neighbors around us . . . What we have and will have for as long as we live here among these neighbors, is Collies and Shelties. Now, if any of you righteous neighbors feel that you must complain about the behavior of our dogs, right or wrongfully so, please be invited by us to sign an official complaint and we will see you in court. If this is what you want, this is what you will get. We will not be intimidated by any of you neighbors. We will not yet run away from you by a sudden move! It takes nerves for us also to stick it out among you people who threaten us over the phone and otherwise.

Wheelmen Thank Bicyclists

As Chairman of the Wheeling Wheelmen's Bikesathon for the Heart Fund on October 15, I would like to thank the many people who contributed their time and efforts for this worthwhile cause.

In spite of the extremely adverse weather predictions of "low in the twenties—high in the forties" for that Sunday, 318 bicyclists pedaled 14,683.2 miles over the 9.5-mile course through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights to raise a total of $10,670 through pledges.

We greatly appreciate the outstanding cooperation of the Civil Defense in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights. They covered the route, gave first aid for spills and manned the windy crossings for traffic control. For his contribution to the Heart Fund, David Tibbitts of The Pony Shop in Deerfield worked the whole day maintaining and repairing bicycles, patching tires and giving good advice to younger bicyclists.

It was a long day and many of the Wheeling Wheelmen, who represent every North and Northwest suburb as well as Chicago, were on duty from 6 a.m. through 7 p.m. Thirty-five members handed registrations, tallied miles, handed out tokens on cold, windy corners, and checked out riders who had pedaled anywhere from 9.5 miles up to 171 miles!

It was a pleasure to work with Virginia Hunter of the Heart Association who cheerfully and tirelessly contributed her efforts in promotion and publicity.

Thank you all!

Red Cross Blood Plan Criticized

Relative to the article in Monday, October 19, Mount Prospect Herald "Hospital Raps Village Blood Plan," I offer another reason for an individual not giving blood through the Red Cross but rather through the hospital.

Last winter my husband gave blood via a Red Cross "drive" with the understanding that by so doing each member of his family's blood needs would be covered. The Red Cross would credit the $15 per pint or a matching amount of blood used by any family member for a year. What the Red Cross did not make clear was that they would not cover the blood processing cost as does the Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan which Northwest Community Hospital is a part of. Therefore, after surgery which necessitated a great deal of blood, I had a charge of $154 for blood processing. Had my husband gone to Northwest Community or Lutheran General to give a pint of blood, our family would have been covered for blood receipt without any cost. I might also add that my surgery necessitated going to a large medical center outside our Northwest suburban area and along with a bill for $154 for the blood I received, I also received hepatitis! How about that?

By all means, donate blood yearly if you can, but go to the hospital or at least check with Northwest Community before you do. We are sorry we participated in a Red Cross Drive rather than donating blood through the Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan of the hospital. That additional charge we could have done without!

Joy Steele
Mount Prospect

Majority of the election issues relates to our economy. It may not directly be the issue but everything comes right back to what would it do to us economically. The Vietnam War, welfare, not enough jobs, taxes, price increases, wages, and nearly every other issue would affect our economy if not handled in the right manner. This is why both the college student and the working graduate need more understanding of these things before the age of 18. A course on economy would better help him to understand the effects that each of these things would have on our nation so that he could make the right decision when it comes time to vote.

I feel that if we are going to place our nation partially in the hands of the youth, it is our responsibility to see that they have the proper background to do so intelligently and carefully—and not blindly. I believe we can do so by making economy and mandatory course for high school graduation.

Spirits Rule At Sacred Heart High

Spirits were high as the classes faced off against each other in the recent Spirit Week at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

Tug of wars, tricycle races, wheelbarrow races, three-legged races and a softball game were some of the contests which posed juniors against the seniors and freshmen against sophomores.

Spirit Week, which has become a tradition at the school, also saw the girls coming to school in outfits from the '40's and '50's, letting balloons go with postcards tucked inside and the seniors putting on the annual senior skit.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan, all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get. Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds - for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Sick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

A/C, pension writer and maintenance man with part time work experience 10 years experience 713-4043 after 5:30 p.m.

Last year,
all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Dear John: Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically sent aside from his check, before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for 3 years, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Take stock in America.
New bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Computer Links Court Operations

A direct computer link between suburban court operations and the Cook County Circuit court's central data bank has been opened by Matthew J. Danaher, clerk of the court.

The link, accomplished via telephone lines, makes it possible for court personnel and judges to search out basic court records on a number of matters through a television-like device called a cathode ray tube.

Danaher demonstrated the computer link at a recent meeting of court officials in the court's 3rd Municipal Dist. which is headquartered in Niles.

Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, and Schaumburg are all located within the third municipal district.

Skokie is the headquarters for the 2nd Municipal Dist. which includes the communities of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling.

OTHER CATHODE ray tubes will be installed in the four other suburban district headquarters in Skokie, Oak Park, Oak Lawn and Midlothian during the next six months.

"This system, called teleprocessing, will greatly improve the operation of the suburban courts and make it possible for the suburban districts to absorb their burgeoning caseload more efficiently," Danaher said.

Each installation costs about $250 a month.

Information on court cases is retained on storage discs which look much like a phonograph record. These discs are called direct access storage devices.

THE INFORMATION is stored in the form of little magnetic "blips" much like the way that sounds on a cassette tape are stored.

The discs revolve at great speed and a reader arm passes back and forth from the tip to the center of the disc at right angles to the tracks of blips.

Through the keyboard on the cathode ray tube, an inquiry is fed into the computer.

In a hypothetical case, say the inquiry asks for the information on case number MC3 1106. The number indicates that it is a municipal case (M) and criminal in nature (C) from the 3rd Dist. (3).

THE READER ARM searches out the criminal cases from the 3rd Municipal Dist., finds number 1106 and flashes the information on the screen all in a matter of seconds.

Congregation Dedicates Its 'Storefront Synagogue'

The Woodfield Jewish Congregation dedicated its storefront synagogue Sunday afternoon with Hoffman Estates Mayor Fred Downey present as guest.

The new facility offers Hebrew school, Sunday school and religious observation in a traditional Jewish mode from a store in the Weatherway Shopping Center, 661 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

Downey said the founding of Woodfield Jewish Congregation helps "cement relationships between people of different groups."

He also offered assistance from the Village of Hoffman Estates "in finding land for a permanent facility."

Mei Budish, congregation president, reflected on the group's first year of growth, saying there now are 65 member families with a new family joining every week. "Next year there will probably be between 125 and 130 families," he added.

BUDISH ALSO expressed hope and expectation that as the congregation grows it will remain close and "always be a family."

During the ceremony a plaque was awarded to Ken Feldman for his work in the congregation's behalf.

Rabbi Michael Meyers then spoke on the congregation's role in the community, saying it should stress the value of a Jewish education.

He took exception to the term "melting pot," often used to describe the United States, adding that the nation should best be a place where different people "blend" harmoniously into a community without a sameness.

Police Seminar Set On New Implied Consent Law

Police from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Schaumburg are among law enforcement officials invited to a seminar on the Implied Consent Law this week.

The legal seminar, sponsored by the Cook County state's attorney's office, will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday in Des Plaines.

Richard J. Hackett, assistant state's attorney in charge of traffic division courts will be the instructor for the seminar for police departments within the 3rd Municipal Dist. of the Cook County Circuit Court.

The seminar is the first of five which will be sponsored by the state's attorney's office. Funds for the program come from an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant.

The seminar this week will deal with the new Implied Consent law that went into effect Oct. 1. The law means that any motorist, by the act of driving a vehicle in the state, agrees to take a breathalyzer test upon request by police. A breathalyzer measures the per cent of alcohol in a person's blood stream. The new law allows police to invoke the implied consent provision whenever they have probable cause to believe that the motorist is a drunk driver. If a motorist refuses to take a breathalyzer test under the implied consent law he faces the possibility of a three month suspension of his driver's license.

The seminar Thursday evening will be held in the 3rd Municipal Dist. courtroom in the Des Plaines City Hall at Grace-land and Miner streets in Des Plaines.

Hearing Quality

by Ed Landwehr

Speakers in electronic systems are an important part of satisfaction and it's surprising that many folks equate number of speakers with quality. Actually, many poor speakers would not be an improvement over one excellent quality speaker. Multiple speakers only have advantages when the quality is high and when they are designed to work together. Better hi-fi systems use two or more quality speakers.

We service and maintain many different electronic systems at LANDWEHR'S HOME APPLIANCES besides television, and speaker service is part of it. We have greatly improved record playing systems with better speaker installations. Phone us at 255-0700 for this, or any kind of electronic service.

Browse through our fine display of nationally-advertised brands of TVs and hi-fidelity equipment at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. If you don't see what you want, chances are we can order it through our descriptive catalogs.

Here's Correct Phone Number For Tax Hearing

An article in yesterday's Herald gave an incorrect telephone number to call in making reservations to speak at state public hearings on tax assessments which will be held in Arlington Heights Nov. 28.

Residents or organizations who want to reserve time to speak at the hearings conducted by Richard Kissel of the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs may call 793-5544.

The hearing in Arlington Heights will begin at 10 a.m. at Hershey High School. It will deal with proposed changes to the way tax assessments are made public and to the procedures taxpayers must follow to appeal an assessment they feel is unfair.

Romance Starts New Year

New Year's Day 1971 kicked off not only a new year but also a romance for Kathryn Ann Larson and Werner Arthur Snelder. The couple met at the home of Wally's cousin, Mary Ann Kohut of Arlington Heights, where they had both dropped in to extend the wishes of the day.

Kathy and Mary Ann were long-time friends and so when she and Wally were married Oct. 7, naturally Mary Ann was maid of honor. The service was held at 4:30 p.m. in Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Prospect Heights.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Larson, 18 E. Robert Ave., Prospect Heights, is a '71 graduate of Wheeling High School, and Wally, a '69 graduate of Wheeling High, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Snelder, 3401 N. Ellen Drive, Arlington Heights.

An old fashioned gown and a fingertip veil fastened to a headpiece entwined with pale purple ribbon was Kathy's choice in bridal attire. Her flowers were carnations and Stephanotis.

THE MAID OF HONOR and the bridesmaids, Norma Jean Hobbs, Prospect Heights, and Denise Bell, Mercer, Wis., were in purple gowns trimmed in white lace flowers, and they carried Stephanotis with purple-tipped carnations. Deborah Ann Dougan, 6, a cousin of the bride from Arlington Heights, was flower girl, and John J.

Haboush, 6, a cousin of the bride from Mount Prospect, was ring bearer for the double ring service.

Best man was the groom's brother Robert Snelder, Arlington Heights, and ushers were the bride's brother, William A. Larson, Prospect Heights, and Ric Sisi, Arlington Heights.

A reception for 150 guests was held in the Northbrook Holiday Inn where the bride's brother also celebrated his Oct. 7 birthday.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week at Shenandoah National Park, Virginia, and they are now living in Wheeling. Kathy is employed by Commonwealth Edison, Northbrook, and Wally, who also studied a year at Harper College, is with Northshore Distributors, Wheeling.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My husband will invariably order Steak Poivre when we go out for dinner and it's on the menu. Do you have this recipe so I could try it at home?—Mrs. Paul G.

Steak Poivre is one of our favorites, too. While I can't promise that it will be the same as that served by your husband's favorite restaurant, you might want to try it. I use a two-pound-plus sirloin tip, heavily marbled, and poke it all over with the roasting fork. Then unflavored meat tenderizer is rubbed in, plus a favorite meat seasoning — on both sides. Then a handful of peppercorns goes into a bag and is crushed with a rolling pin. This makes enough to press in on both sides with the palm of the hand. Let it sit on the counter for about 15 minutes, then put it in a 400-degree oven for 40 minutes, uncovered. It comes out rare and delicious — and makes wonderful sandwiches the next day if any is left over.

Dear Dorothy: This may be of help to those who sew a lot. I clean the bobbin case and underparts of my sewing machine weekly with the soft brush that comes with my vacuum cleaner. It takes care of the lint problem, too.—Mrs. Phyllis Fitzgerald.

Dear Dorothy: If the perspiration odor doesn't come out in the laundering, is there anything else I can try?—Tom Anderson.

First try our household faithful — baking soda. Make a paste with water and apply it to the area. Let set for about 30 minutes, brush off, then launder again. If that doesn't work, you can still try a dab of household ammonia mixed with water — first trying on an inside seam to see that the material is colorfast. If the test checks out okay, rub with the solution, then launder.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Soldier Battalion Sold For Charity

Recalling the nostalgia of past Christmases, Mount Prospect Infant Welfare has created a battalion of miniature wooden soldiers packaged with a 1972 message. Created by Mrs. J. William Cameron and Mrs. Guy Courtney and their committee, the soldiers may be purchased from any member of the Center or by calling 255-2419.

Designed as tree ornaments the base of these decorations is the humble wooden clothespin, but the charm of the finished soldier is his classic red and blue dress uniform complete with gold braid and topped off with fluffy white shako. Since the Infant Welfare Society benefits from the pre-holiday sale the package enclosure states: "A needy child will have health care free, when you hang these soldiers on your tree."

The soldiers, sold in sets of three and ready to hang on the Christmas tree, are priced at $3 per package.

It's Fashion

by UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Teen-agers who look good in the battle tube dress or a knee-length sweater must be thin. For those who aren't thin the A-line or tent is a better silhouette.

It's smart to look in a full-length rear-view mirror when trying on new clothes. A dress or skirt or slacks may look fine from the front and horrible from the rear. Seeing for yourself is the only way to find out.

New shoes can look pretty on but pinch or slip when you walk. In such a case don't be guided by looks. Base your decision on comfort.

When buying a coat, make sure your own shoulders fit the shoulderline. And the neckline. Does it fall in a natural place or does it ride high in back and at sides, nudging your ears?

If you're buying a coat-dress costume make sure the coat fits easily over the dress, even when buttoned. Otherwise, it won't be of much use to you.

A Special Time Of Year

Autumn is many things, depending on who you are.

If you're an incurable romantic, it is things that might not even be anymore — fields heavy with squash, pumpkins and Indian corn; smoke wisping up from brush piles; a succession of golden days and clear, frosty nights; landscapes painted with the impeccable splash of nature.

If you're a dour realist — as so many of us are — it is the end of summer and the prelude to winter; a transitional time too often wet and gray and chilly; a time to return to life's grueling pace and pack away the grill and the lawn chairs and render the back yard as barren as the fields.

But if you're a boy like Bill Friskides, an eighth grader at Palatine's Immanuel Lutheran School, autumn is what it is — a special season all its own; a time of zest even when it's drizzling; a time for things no more profound than trying to catch a falling leaf; a time to record the little adventures and untroubled joy that all the years of realism can never wash away.

The Doctor Says

By Lawrence Lamb

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would like some information on the milk I'm using. It is supposed to be a lower calorie milk than regular milk. I am a diabetic and I drink about one glass a day. The grandsons love it and will drink it in preference to any other. I want to know if it is bad for heart or cholesterol. I am sending part of the carton so you can see the contents.

Dear Reader — According to the ingredients listed on the carton it contains hydrogenated coconut oil. There are a number of milk products on the market that are filled with coconut oil. There is no health advantage to using this type of milk instead of ordinary whole milk. As far as fat is concerned, coconut oil is one of the foods with the highest amount of saturated fat. It is generally thought that the saturated fats should be limited in the interest of preventing high cholesterol and heart disease. Although the label does not say how many calories the filled milk contains, I doubt very much that it is significantly lower in calories than ordinary whole milk.

About the only thing you could say for the product you are using is that it may contain less cholesterol than whole milk. However, since there isn't that much cholesterol in milk anyway and since using coconut oil is thought to cause the body to form cholesterol, this isn't a worthwhile trade-off.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm a 12-year-old boy who has been smoking cigarettes regularly (1/2 pack per day) for over a year. My parents and coaches notice that I don't run as fast as I used to and blame smoking for making me run slower. Do you think smoking cigarettes could affect me that much in so little time?

Dear Reader — Yes, I do. Carefully designed research studies of the effects of cigarette smoking on athletic training have shown that it can and does significantly decrease a person's exercise ability, specifically in regard to running. Cigarette smoking causes the heart to work harder at rest and limits its ability to further increase its work when you exercise.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

About a hundred years ago a writer named James Clay proposed a double dummy whist problem with the statement that the most celebrated player in Vienna looked at it and instantly said, "South makes all the tricks."

It turned out to be surprisingly difficult for the whist players of that day and the key play in the hand has since been called the "Vienna coup." The Vienna coup consists of setting up a trick for an opponent and then squeezing him out of it.

There was no bidding at whist, so we have changed the cards slightly and proceeded to misbid the hand all the way up to seven no-trump.

The term "double dummy" means that all four hands are exposed and everyone takes full advantage of this.

South wins the heart lead in dummy and runs off four clubs, while discarding a spade from dummy. West discards a diamond on the third club; his best discard on the fourth one is a heart.

Now comes the Vienna coup. South must cash his ace of spades! Next comes the parade of the rest of dummy's hearts. South winds up with the ace-queen and a small diamond and West must either unguard his jack of diamonds or discard the king of spades.

Either way the grand slam wheels in because East started with just king and one diamond.

Low-Cost Flood Insurance May Now Be Bought

Elk Grove Village residents and businessmen will be able to purchase low-cost flood insurance starting Friday when the village becomes eligible for a subsidized insurance program sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under the program homeowners may insure their houses for up to $17,500, and small business structures may be insured up to $30,000. Contents may be covered up to $5,000.

Policies are effective immediately during the first 30 days the insurance becomes available, but policies purchased after the initial 30 days will be subject to a 15-day waiting period.

PROPERTY OWNERS can buy the flood insurance through their local insurance brokers. State Farm Insurance Co. is the designated underwriter for the flood insurance policies in Illinois, but any licensed broker can sell the flood insurance.

Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, said residents in areas approved for the federally subsidized flood insurance program will not be eligible for federal disaster relief funds for flooding after Dec. 31, 1973. He said the program specifies that communities which have qualified for insurance are eliminated from disaster relief consideration.

Last month village trustees voted to apply for federal designation as a flood-prone area so residents could buy insurance against flood loss at reduced rates.

To qualify a community must demonstrate it is attempting to handle flooding problems in the area. According to HUD, the municipality must adopt land use and control measures to guide future development away from flood hazard areas.

Annual insurance rates for homes and buildings range from 25 to 60 cents per $100 of insurance, based on the value of the structure. Contents may be covered for rates running from 35 to 45 cents per $100 of insurance for homes and 75 cents per $100 of insurance for nonresidential property.

For example, the maximum coverage of $17,500 for the building and $5,000 for contents would cost the owner of a home valued over $35,000 about $84 a year for insurance.

Rural Fire Protection Cost May Be Increased

Residents of the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District may pay 30 per cent more for fire protection next year if a proposed $13,500 contract with the Des Plaines City Council is signed.

Last week the city council's fire committee reviewed the proposed contract for backup fire protection for the rural district which extends northeast from Elk Grove Village to Des Plaines and Mount Prospect in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

"We still have a few questions," Ald. John Seitz, committee chairman, said of the contract. "We want a clear understanding of the area to be served."

The current city fire protection district contract expires Dec. 31, and Seitz said he wanted the agreement prepared early to avoid negotiations after the 1972 contract expires Dec. 31, and Seitz said he wanted the agreement prepared early to avoid negotiations after the 1972 contract expires. Although the new contract under consideration is $4,500 more than the present agreement of $9,000, the rate increase will not mean any additional services for the residents. The rural fire protection district also has a fire protection contract with Mount Prospect.

IAN McHATTIE, president of the district's board of trustees, said the rate hike was "pressured" by Des Plaines

$2.3 Million Plan To Aid Junior Highs

A $2.3 million plan to remodel Dempster and Grove junior high schools was presented to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board Monday night.

The plan was presented by the Berger Kelley & Associates architectural firm at a special meeting of the board.

District Supt. James Erviti said the plans call for "a basic reorganization of space and a very small addition to the schools."

Erviti said one serious problem, if the school board agreed to remodel the schools, was to find the time for the work to be done.

"This is not something that could be done in one summer, or one season," said Erviti.

SHARIE HILDEBRANDT, school board member, said according to the architect's report the schools would have to be closed for 14 months each.

Erviti said the work could be phased over a period of time, "or some way to free the buildings for some length of time" would have to be found.

One possibility for getting needed time that was discussed by the board was going to double shifts at the schools. Children from Grove would be bused to Dempster for 14 months, then children from Dempster would be bused to Grove.

According to Mrs. Hildebrandt, Erviti said that busing and double shifts could be used, but this was not a sound idea in terms of education.

THE BOARD WILL TOUR the schools with the architects on Nov. 11 to inspect and discuss the proposed changes.

The school board contracted for the architectural study because it felt the Grove and Dempster junior high schools were below the standard of the newer junior high schools in the district, Holmes, Lively and Friendship, which is scheduled to open next year.

If the remodeling work is done, Dempster and Grove would be "comparable, as far as possible, given an existing building," with the newer junior highs, said Erviti.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Hospital Study Very Detailed

by STEVE BROWN

An in-depth analysis of the recently released report on the assessment of health care needs of the Northwest Cook County area reveals that planners went into much greater detail than had been planned in reaching their conclusions.

Originally planned to include Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover townships, the preliminary draft of the report indicates the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst increased this area sizeably.

The enlarged area is bounded by the Cook-Lake County line on the north, the Cook-DuPage County line on the south, Rte. 53 on the east and Rte. 59 on the west. Two other sections, the Village of Roselle in northern DuPage County and portions of North Barrington in Lake County were also included.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm said the area was enlarged because the initial study area did not include all of the hospitals which served the study area, and allowed planners to obtain a clearer picture of where residents go to receive hospital treatment.

THE PRELIMINARY study area includes the villages of Barrington, Barrington Hills, Inverness, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Bartlett, Streamwood and Roselle.

The study, which lists the need for two new hospitals in the area by 1975, observes that presently residents of much of the study area are forced to travel some distance to reach acute medical care facilities. The proposed hospital sites, at Barrington and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg Township and at routes 59 and 22 near North Barrington in Lake County, would reduce the travel distance, the report states.

While the report does not directly comment or evaluate the proposals by Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center and a group of physicians to build two hospitals in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates respectively, it stated, "this study is intended to provide an objective basis for the evaluation of these proposals and other alternatives to providing quality health care to the residents of the area both currently and for 1975, 1980 and 1985."

KASTEN DID HOWEVER state that the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Lukes facility was "too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and would neglect a large area to the west." The site, which just west of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is about three miles from the site recommended by the study.

The fact that the preliminary draft does not recommend either of the already proposed hospital sites, could result in difficulty in obtaining state and federal funding. Various governmental health planning agencies would probably place much emphasis on the study when awarding any grants, several committee members said.

Board Will Be Polled On Resuming Pact Talks

Representatives for the board and teachers in Elkhart School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Folk And Gospel Music Program Set

The "Lost and Found" will give a folk and gospel music program 6 p.m., Sunday, at Elk Grove Baptist Church, 19W625 Devon Ave., "Lost and Found" is a group of students from Judson College, Elgin. They will be appearing at Elk Grove Baptist Church as part of a Mid-western tour.

Auto Pollution Tests At Shopping Center

Free auto pollution tests will be offered from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Friday and Saturday, at the Goodyear Tire Shop in the Grove Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Biesterfeld roads in Elk Grove Village.

The tests will be conducted by technicians from the Chicago Lung Association. The amount of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons in a car's exhaust will be measured on direct reading gauges.

A written report will be given to each motorist on the car's performance, with a list of suggestions for improvement if the exhaust gas has too high a reading in pollutants.

Neither of the proposed hospitals have indicated that efforts to obtain government funding would be made.

Some members of the study committee, which include representatives from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Alexian Brothers Medical Center and Northwest Community Hospital, suggested that the population projects, which foresee 550,000 persons in the area by 1985 were too low.

Kasten admitted that the tremendous growth of the study area makes it difficult to estimate population so far into the future, but he said the statistics presented should be considered reliable.

"I would assume that additional studies will be made in the future in order to better estimate the needs for the 1980's," Kasten explained.

In establishing the general locations for the hospital, Kasten told the committee that a number of factors were used to construct a model of the medical care needs for the area.

THESE FACTORS WERE:

—These hospitals may be located within the study areas in a way that would substantially reduce the driving time for much of the study area populations.

—Location of these facilities within the study area would relieve the problem of inadequate emergency care for many residents by improved accessibility.

The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed in the area.

—The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed in the area.

—Population growth and resulting traffic congestion may make driving to existing hospitals more difficult by 1980 and 1985. The construction of new hospitals by 1975 should relieve this problem initially.

—With proper location, the construction of new hospitals within the study area could be accomplished without resulting in significant reductions in the occupancy of existing institutions. Although ancillary and support facilities must be duplicated in the construction of new hospitals, it is likely that major expansion of these ancillary and support facilities, it is likely that major expansions of existing institutions would also require some expansion.

KASTEN SAID these factors were then coordinated with maps and known traffic patterns to make recommendations for sites.

The study goes on to state that by 1980, the newly proposed Schaumburg Township and Alexian Brothers Medical Center should plan to add about 250 to 300 beds.

Committee members plan to prepare comments to be included in the final draft of the study within the next three weeks. The committee has scheduled a meeting on Nov. 27 to review the final report.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chlerico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $8,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finder's recommendation of $8,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the extended 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $8,300. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

From A Hunter's Palette

Gene Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHSMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '50s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitally seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

To be very successful at selling paintings Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in and Mount Prospect and prompted the district to request a tax levy of $100,000 next year.

However, McHattie said that next year's levy, based on the $100,000 revenue request, will not be known until the district's assessed valuation is calculated next spring.

"We're subject to continued annexations by surrounding areas. We may get a dozen notices a year (annexing away the district). There's also a lot of building. We're just never sure what our tax base will be," he said.

Des Plaines officials have been trying for several years to discontinue contracts with neighboring fire districts. Recent figures have indicated that residents in Park Ridge Manor and Waycinden subdivisions are charged lower rates than Des Plaines residents for fire protection from the city's fire department.

Des Plaines residents paid 22.77 cents per $100 assessed valuation last year for fire services. The fire district rate in the same year was 13.60 cents, or $13.60 on a home assessed at $10,000.

McHattie said the rural fire protection district can not tax Waycinden residents "preferentially" for service received from Des Plaines. He additional expense would have to be spread throughout the district to all residents, he said.

Last year the Des Plaines Fire Department answered 37 calls in the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District.

Board Reinstates Home Ec Teacher

Diane Schwartz has been reinstated, with tenure, as a home economics teacher for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59.

The school board dismissed Mrs. Schwartz May 1 for an unauthorized absence, April 17 to 23, from her job at Lively Junior High School. Mrs. Schwartz will be reinstated effective today. The time from May 1 to today will be considered as leave without pay.

A letter of reprimand for the absence will be placed in Mrs. Schwartz's personnel file.

The action to reinstate Mrs. Schwartz, with the letter of reprimand, was taken at a special meeting of the school board Monday. The vote to reinstate was 4-3. No further details were available.

A joint meeting of the plan commission chairmen of nine area villages is being organized by Ramond McArthur, chairman of the Schaumburg Plan Commission.

McArthur said yesterday he hopes to form a permanent organization with regular gatherings of the commission chairmen in which mutual planning matters can be discussed.

The first session would be held in Schaumburg sometime after New Year's Day, if the other municipal representatives react favorably to the idea, said McArthur.

"It's up to the chairmen of the other plan commissions. If we all agree that we can get something out of it, there is no reason why it shouldn't be a contin-

Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

Open House At Rupley

Rupley School will hold its annual open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the school, 305 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village.

The open house will be a family affair. Each child will be able to escort his parents through the school, introducing them to his teachers and explaining school projects.

Communities to be invited, some of which already have been contacted, are Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Roselle, Bloomingdale, Hanover Park and Bartlett.

The subject of the first meeting will be transportation problems through and between villages, said McArthur. The aim will be to coordinate traffic "in and out of all the villages in this area." Road problems are "sure not going to get any better unless somebody does something," said McArthur.

Among points he mentioned for consideration at the meeting was coordinating street patterns so they do not dead-end at village lines, but instead connect with through streets in adjoining villages.

Panthers Talk Here Is Canceled

Two representatives of the Black Panther Party will not speak at Arlington High School this week.

The appearance by the Panthers had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon after school in a student government sponsored forum.

The program was cancelled Tuesday morning by Prin. Bruno Waara after the school received about a dozen "hate calls" protesting the appearance.

Waara explained he met with Arlington student body president after receiving calls from parents, the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, and radio broadcaster Howard Miller.

Waara said the student body president agreed to cancel the Panthers appearance because "she recognized that this is a pretty sensitive issue right now with the election coming up and with Hanrahan being found not guilty."

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan was acquitted last week of conspiracy charges arising from a 1969 raid on the Black Panthers headquarters.

Waara explained students have been sponsoring after-school forums on controversial issues for about four years. He added, "I guess this community is not ready for this even in an after-school setting. There's so much hate we have to cancel."

Referendum For Library District Set For Nov. 18

by RICH NONACK

The Wheeling Library District will hold a referendum Saturday, Nov. 18, in hopes of annexing portions of Buffalo Grove and unincorporated Cook County south of Wheeling.

Library officials said they are holding the referendum at the request of residents of Mill Creek, Berkshire Trace, and the Strathmore subdivision on Arlington Heights Road between Dundee Road and Lake-Cook Road. Residents of the Lamplighter Apartment Complex south of Wheeling have also asked to join the district.

If these areas are annexed by the referendum it will broaden the tax base of the district and the residents of these areas will be taxed for use of the library. If the referendum fails, residents of the affected areas will have to pay a fee of $35 for use of the library. It will take a simple majority to pass or defeat the motion.

PRESIDENT RESIDENTS of the district will vote on two ballots, one for each portion to be annexed. Residents of the affected areas will vote on separate ballots for their own areas. Therefore, the Buffalo Grove portion could be voted in and the portion south of Wheeling not approved, or vice versa.

Last week the Buffalo Grove Village Board denied support of the referendum, since it has hopes of someday starting its own district. The vote on the matter was 4 to 3, with Village Pres. Gary Armstrong casting the deciding vote.

Library officials said yesterday they felt the vote was negative because of an identity crisis that exists between Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. Joyce Finnegan, a library board trustee and resident of Buffalo Grove, said the village doesn't want to be called the Wheeling Library District.

"It's part of the village pride," she said. "That keeps the board from endorsing our referendum. However, we are considering changing the name of the district so no one is offended and everyone is given an opportunity to belong and get the services of a library."

Mrs. Finnegan said it would take a while before Buffalo Grove got its own district. "They think a library will help unify the Cook and Lake County portions of the village, but will raise taxes," she added.

SHE SAID further that, "If they form a district for the village it will cost them more and the residents of Wheeling more because it will cut the tax base. Then you have two fair libraries instead of one good one that will serve the community to the fullest."

The reaction of the Buffalo Grove Village Board was surprising since over half of the 9,600 persons who have cards with the library are from Buffalo Grove, library officials said.

Library officials also said the people along Arlington Heights road between Dundee and Lake-Cook roads have been getting free service for the last five years.

"We thought the 150 families along there were part of the district, since Arlington Heights Road was the dividing line," said Librarian Kenneth Swanson.

"However, we have since learned that the dividing line is an imaginary line drawn from south Arlington Heights Road (south of Dundee Road) from Dundee to Lake-Cook roads. Therefore, everyone west of that line is not in the district and will have to vote in favor of the referendum in order to keep getting service," said Swanson.

Turnout for the election is expected to be high, since residents will have voted only two weeks before in the general elections.

"We hope that people will surprise us and turn out in full strength in favor of the motion," said Swanson.

PONDERING THE THOUGHT of who to vote for the presidency is a young Jack London Junior High School student. Students at that school held a mock election yesterday, but results will not be known until this afternoon. Students took the role of the adults in the election and will show their choice for the country's leader. Several schools in the area are having mock elections and rallies this week for the upcoming general election Tuesday.

No Decision On Cuts For 4 Panels

by LYNN ASINOF

No decision was reached Monday night on a proposed membership reduction for four village commissions despite 1½ hours of heated discussion between members of the commissions and village trustees.

At the end of the committee meeting of the village board, the trustees were divided in their feelings about the membership cut. Trustees Bill Hein, Ed Berger and Michael Valenza said they favored allowing the commissions to determine their own size, ranging from a minimum of five to a maximum of nine.

TRUSTEES AL LANG and Ron Bruhn said they would still like to have the membership reduced to make the commissions more workable. Trustee John Koeppen and Village Pres. Ted Scanlon were not present.

The meeting was called to discuss the proposed membership cut with members of the four commissions that would be affected. Representatives of the public relations, youth and industrial commissions attended the meeting. No one from the human relations commission was present.

The membership reduction was proposed by Lang in July to reduce the commissions' quorum requirements and make them more efficient. At the meeting, the trustees worked from the rough draft of an ordinance reducing the commissions to five, and giving each member a two-year term.

"Basically what it amounts to is almost dismantling the commissions and reforming them," Lang explained.

MEMBERS OF two commissions expressed strong objections to the membership cuts. June Orlovski, youth commission chairman, said her commission could not operate with only five members. She said that because the commission was expanding into new areas, there were not enough people to cover each area properly.

"I have to agree that I can't operate with three or four members, or even five," Mrs. Orlovski said. "One of us can't be spread in that many directions."

Currently there are four active members serving on the youth commission, which has seven seats. Mrs. Orlovski said she would like to have nine members on the commission, if possible.

Members of the public relations commission also asked for more members. "We cannot survive with five members and come up with fresh ideas," said Lillian Stiller, secretary of the public relations commission. "We all have things to do. A nine-member commission allows you to delegate the responsibility, and it works beautifully."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Editor's Notebook

Don't You Dare Vote Next Week!

by STEVE FORSYTH

DON'T VOTE! When the polls open next Tuesday, stay home and don't vote.

This advice is not treason. It is the only sure way of getting the maximum number of voters to the polls on election day.

Admittedly, it seems like a complicated theory, but it has to be better than the pseudo-patriotic admonishments of both major political parties.

They would have you believe they don't care which way you vote, as long as you vote. That sounds good, but party workers are undoubtedly more careful to get voters of their own persuasion out on the big day.

IT'S HARD TO imagine a Democrat precinct worker trying to convince anyone that he doesn't care if you vote Republican.

Thus, my theory gains substance, and becomes simpler.

At first, people are told not to vote so time and paperwork can be saved. After all if the number of voters can be cut proportionally, the elections would have the same results, but there would be other benefits. Returns could be counted faster, less time would be spent on paperwork.

Suppose a husband plans to vote Republican, and his wife is going to cast a Democratic ballot. Obviously, they are going to cancel each other's votes, so why bother?

NOW, IF THAT theory could be expanded — a lot of votes would be saved.

For example — a Republican finds a Democratic neighbor, a Democratic office worker finds a Republican co-worker — and no one votes.

Now for the stroke of genius.

After the husband has left for work, wife gets a little suspicious. She never did trust him anyway. So she calls the office to make sure he didn't stop to vote on the way to work. If he is there, she will just ask where it was she wasn't supposed to vote. A sickly efficient secretary informer perfunctorily that he hasn't arrived yet.

AHA! She knew he couldn't be trusted. She slips on her coat and races to the polls.

MEANWHILE, HUSBAND gets to work after struggling through an unusually heavy rush hour. He, too, is suspicious, and calls home. Wife is gone. She must be voting. And at lunch, husband goes to vote also.

Thus we have two votes from two persons who might not otherwise have bothered — two persons who might have found some reason they couldn't take time that particular day.

Neighbors can only be trusted so far, and they will obviously go to the polls early, thinking they have outsmarted each other. One can only imagine the surprise when they meet at 7 a.m. outside the precinct voting place. And two more votes go into the system.

The co-workers? What is the first to think when the other takes what seems like an interminable lunch hour? Perhaps it's taking him longer because he is not just eating lunch.

PRESTO. Two more votes, because the first worker came back, saw his co-worker gone, and headed right back out the door. He hadn't been voting, but he is now.

If this system could be expanded nationwide, it wouldn't be long before every registered voter was counted at the ballot box.

And it's all based on mutual lack of trust of members or voters of the opposing parties. Maybe they'll even think of Watergate or the River Wards in Chicago.

It's all very simple, but if you plan to vote a split ticket, you'll have to make your own arrangements. That could be too complicated.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

From A Hunter's Palette

Gene Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHSMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '50s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

An Early Halloween

For Chained Students

Halloween started early in Wheeling when two Elmhurst College students became the victims of a fraternity prank.

Wheeling police found Art Rech of Oak Lawn and Brian Brynjolfsson of Lombard chained together near Wheeling High School at about 1:30 a.m. Monday. Police said the two 19-year-olds were chained around their necks.

Police took them to the Wheeling fire station, where the chains were removed. According to police, the prank was part of a fraternity initiation.

No charges were filed in connection with the incident.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitally seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

To be very successful at selling paintings Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

Tentative OK To Resume Teacher Talks

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $3,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finder's recommendation of $3,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the extended 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $3,200. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

1 More Chance Given To Area Fisherman

Buffalo Grove residents will get one more chance to use their fishing poles this season tonight at Willow Stream Park pool.

There are still 100 trout remaining in the pool after the game fishing derby conducted by the park district on Saturday and Sunday.

No limit has been placed on the number of fish an individual may catch.

The fee is 25 cents for children, 50 cents for high school students and $1 for adults for one hour. Anyone wanting to fish longer will be required to pay again.

Anglers must supply their own fishing equipment. Bait will be provided by the park district.

Plan Commission To Eye Otis Development Plans

The preliminary plan for the first phase of the multi-family development proposed by the James Otis Development Co. will be considered tonight by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The 128-unit project is located in the northwest corner of the village next to Long Grove.

The plan commission may decide to defer a recommendation on the Otis project by supporting building moratorium requested by the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove (CCBG).

Members of the organization appealed to the plan commission two weeks ago to urge the village board to halt construction of projects of more than one acre in the community until the master plan is completed.

The moratorium proposal is listed on the agenda of tonight's meeting.

In a workshop session following the regular meeting the commissioners are scheduled to discuss proposals by Levitt & Sons, Inc., to develop two parcels of land north of Mundelein Road.

Also on the workshop agenda is discussion of the village's flood plan ordinance.

Boys' Informal Gym Session Will Be Kicked Off Tonight

Tonight marks the beginning of the high school boys' informal gym sessions at Willow Grove School. The program, which will continue through spring vacation, is sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Park District.

The emphasis of the program will be on informal floor hockey and basketball. Teams may be organized later.

Boys wanting to participate in the program must purchase a $1 Teen Council identification card, available at the gym. The sessions, to be supervised by Terry Nigrelli, will be from 7 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday.

Later in November, north and south teen councils will be organized with members to plan activities such as trips to sporting events, visits to Old Town and parties. The councils will also set up informal drop-in centers at Willow Stream Park and Emmerich Park.

In addition, a Junior High Council composed of seventh and eighth graders will soon organize similar activities with Emmerich Park as their main headquarters.

For further information, call the park district office, 537-0356.

No Decision On Cuts For Panels

Hagemann concurred with Mrs. Stiller. "We have never had any problem getting a quorum," he said. "And I feel the more members we have the more ideas we can come up with."

The public relations commission currently has six of its nine positions filled. The commission members asked their ordinance not be changed.

Harold Fagan, member of the industrial commission, said that given the present responsibilities of his commission, he favored a membership reduction. "Either let's do something constructive or let's call it quits," he said. "You don't need any members right now because we're not doing anything."

Trustee Ron Bruhn said there are several village commissions that are having difficulty defining their roles because of changes in village government.

"ONE OF OUR main problems is that the village, maybe 10 or 15 years ago, didn't have so many professional people on its staff," he said. "The commissions played a more important part then. Now we're almost a city."

Lang agreed, saying, "There are a good many commissions that it is hard to figure out what to do with."

The village trustees also emphasized their feeling that commission members should be full-time boosters of the village. They said that as such, commission members should promote the village image instead of criticizing it.

Sheila Schultz of the public relations commission, challenged this view. "According to you, your idea of boosting is to sit back and say it's great while you have no part in making it great," she added that commission members do not have the sense of participating in village government.

OTHER COMMISSION members asked if supporting the village meant always agreeing with the village trustees. The board members said this is not what they meant.

Mrs. Orlovski said it seemed to her most of the commission members were feeling neglected. "What I'm hearing is that most of the commissions are feeling a lack of recognition," she said. Other commission members agreed.

The board members said they would take the evening's discussion under advisement at the next meeting of the judiciary and purchasing committee on the third Monday of the month. They planned to consult the attorney about possible ways of revising the commissions' ordinances.

Lang and Bruhn said they would still like to have the commissions' membership reduced. "I feel I would like to have the commissions function with as few people as they need to function," Lang said.

Bruhn said reducing the commissions would also reduce the amount of interviewing to fill vacant positions on the commissions.

Sproull, Diane Koenig and Nancy Felde. Mrs. Metasar is the only candidate who has volunteered to let the Girl Scouts help with her campaign — but their help is not a political endorsement.

Referendum For Library District Set For Nov. 18

by RICH NONACK

The Wheeling Library District will hold a referendum Saturday, Nov. 18, in hopes of annexing portions of Buffalo Grove and unincorporated Cook County south of Wheeling.

Last week the Buffalo Grove Village Board denied support of the referendum, since it has hopes of someday starting its own district. The vote on the matter was 4 to 3, with Village Pres. Gary Armstrong casting the deciding vote.

Library officials said yesterday they felt the vote was negative because of an identity crisis that exists between Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. Joyce Finnegan, a library board trustee and resident of Buffalo Grove, said the village doesn't want to be called the Wheeling Library District.

"It's part of the village pride," she said, "that keeps the board from endorsing our referendum. However, we are considering changing the name of the district so no one is offended and everyone is given an opportunity to belong and get the services of a library."

Mrs. Finnegan said it would take a while before Buffalo Grove got its own district. "They think a library will help unify the Cook and Lake County portions of the village, but will raise taxes," she added.

SHE SAID further that, "If they form a district for the village it will cost them more and the residents of Wheeling more because it will cut the tax base. Then you have two fair libraries instead of one good one that will serve the community to the fullest."

The reaction of the Buffalo Grove Village Board was surprising since over half of the 8,600 persons who have cards with the library are from Buffalo Grove, library officials said.

Library officials also said the people along Arlington Heights road between Dundee and Lake-Cook roads have been getting free service for the last five years.

"We thought the 150 families along there were part of the district, since Arlington Heights Road was the dividing line," said Librarian Kenneth Swanson.

"However, we have since learned that the dividing line is an imaginary line drawn from south Arlington Heights Road (south of Dundee Road) from Dundee to Lake-Cook roads. Therefore, everyone west of that line is not in the district and will have to vote in favor of the referendum in order to keep getting service," said Swanson.

Turnout for the election is expected to be high, since residents will have voted only two weeks before in the general elections.

"We hope that people will surprise us and turn out in full strength in favor of the motion," said Swanson.

PONDERING THE THOUGHT of who to vote for the presidency is a young Jack London Junior High School student. Students at that school held a mock election yesterday, but results will not be known until this afternoon. Students took the role of the adults in the election and will show their choice for the country's leader. Several schools in the area are having mock elections and rallies this week for the upcoming general election Tuesday.

Phoenix Land May Be Zoned Wrong

by JILL BETTNER

Claims that land around the Buffalo Grove Golf Course has never been zoned for multi-family residences have proven partially true after a check of village records.

Gordon Tierney, whose home is across the street from the area around the golf course the Phoenix Construction Co. proposes to develop, made the charge last Wednesday at a plan commission public hearing.

Phoenix plans to develop 12 acres at the northwest corner of the golf course at Checker Road (parcel A) and 36 acres at the southwest corner of the golf course on Lake-Cook Road (parcel B) with condominiums. Apartments and condominiums are planned for a 16-acre plot (parcel C) bordering the east end of the course.

IN ADDITION, the company also plans to develop a 33-acre parcel north of Ill. Rte. 83 with townhouses.

Tierney drew applause from a capacity audience at the hearing when he quoted from a letter he wrote to Village Atty. Richard Rayss in 1970. In the letter, Tierney said: according to his interpretation of the original pre-annexation agreement dated Feb. 20, 1964, all of the land Phoenix now proposes to develop was zoned "special use" for the golf course, or for single-family dwellings.

A check of the agreement showed parcels A and B were indeed originally designated for special use, but parcel C was zoned for multi-family housing. All of the Phoenix parcels are now zoned for single-family homes.

Tierney said he was afraid that part of the land Phoenix proposes to develop was once zoned for multi-family dwellings and might be considered a precedent if the matter were ever taken to court by citizens in an effort to block the development.

HAROLD FRIEDMAN, one of several owners of the land Phoenix proposes to develop, is also part owner of the Buffalo Grove Golf Course. He has offered to sell the course to the village as part of his donation to school and park districts. If the village board rejects the offer, Friedman has said he will abide by the Buffalo Grove resolution that determines developer donations.

Referring to Friedman's offer, Tierney quoted from an article entitled "Zoning is not for sale," written in 1955. That article said the courts have consistently held the rezoning of property "based in

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Editor's Notebook

Don't You Dare Vote Next Week!

by STEVE FORSYTH

DON'T VOTE! When the polls open next Tuesday, stay home and don't vote.

This advice is not treason. It is the only sure way of getting the maximum number of voters to the polls on election day.

Admittedly, it seems like a complicated theory, but it has to be better than the pseudo-patriotic admonishments of both major political parties.

They would have you believe they don't care which way you vote, as long as you vote. That sounds good, but party workers are undoubtedly more careful to get voters of their own persuasion out on the big day.

IT'S HARD TO imagine a Democrat precinct worker trying to convince anyone that he doesn't care if you vote Republican.

Thus, my theory gains substance, and becomes simpler.

At first, people are told not to vote so time and paperwork can be saved. After all if the number of voters can be cut proportionally, the elections would have the same results, but there would be other benefits. Returns could be counted faster, less time would be spent on paperwork.

Suppose a husband plans to vote Republican, and his wife is going to cast a Democratic ballot. Obviously, they are going to cancel each other's votes, so why bother?

NOW, if THAT theory could be expanded — a lot of votes would be saved.

For example — a Republican finds a Democratic neighbor, a Democratic office worker finds a Republican co-worker — and no one votes.

Now for the stroke of genius.

After the husband has left for work, wife gets a little suspicious. She never did trust him anyway. So she calls the office to make sure he didn't stop to vote on the way to work. If he is there, she will just ask where it was she wasn't supposed to vote. A sickly efficient secretary informs perfunctorily that he hasn't arrived yet.

AHA! She knew he couldn't be trusted. She slips on her coat and races to the polls.

MEANWHILE, HUSBAND gets to

work after struggling through an unusually heavy rush hour. He, too, is suspicious, and calls home. Wife is gone. She must be voting. And at lunch, husband goes to vote also.

Thus we have two votes from two persons who might not otherwise have bothered — two persons who might have found some reason they couldn't take time that particular day.

Neighbors can only be trusted so far, and they will obviously go to the polls early, thinking they have outsmarted each other. One can only imagine the surprise when they meet at 7 a.m. outside the precinct voting place. And two more votes go into the system.

The co-workers? What is the first to think when the other takes what seems like an interminable lunch hour? Perhaps it's taking him longer because he is not just eating lunch.

PRESTO. Two more votes, because the first worker came back, saw his co-worker gone, and headed right back out the door. He hadn't been voting, but he is now.

If this system could be expanded nationwide, it wouldn't be long before every registered voter was counted at the ballot box.

And it's all based on mutual lack of trust of members or voters of the opposing parties. Maybe they'll even think of Watergate or the River Wards in Chicago.

It's all very simple, but if you plan to vote a split ticket, you'll have to make your own arrangements. That could be too complicated.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Gene Wasmer of Arlington Heights spends many a winter night in the basement of his home doing what he likes best — painting game birds. And though Wasmer may spend little more than a dozen hours on this painting, he may have taken years to develop the idea. Wasmer is very particular about detail, and he has a clump of weeds in his studio for reference.

From A Hunter's Palette

Gene Paints The Outdoors

by DAVID MAHSMAN

To Gene Wasmer, there's no feeling like the feeling he gets watching a flock of ducks or geese gliding over a lake, taking off in a flurry of flapping wings or simply flying in formation.

That feeling is hard to explain, Wasmer says. So he follows the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Wasmer is a painter. His specialty is birds, game birds in particular. And in his paintings, he tries to get across to the viewer something of the thrill he experiences while out hunting or just bird-watching.

During the day, Wasmer heads up the art department of General American Transportation Co.'s research division in Niles. At night, he returns to his home at 15 S. Orchard St., Arlington Heights. And in a small, cramped corner of his workshop in the basement, Wasmer relaxes by painting his loved ducks and geese.

Although it may seem strange that a man who works with art all day would relax by painting, Wasmer says it isn't strange at all. His bird paintings are fine art, not at all like the work he does at the office, he says.

WASMER'S HOBBY is the natural combination of his love of art and love of the outdoors. As a boy growing up in Murphysboro, the small-town county seat of Jackson County in southern Illinois, Wasmer enjoyed plenty of time outdoors — and there was plenty of the outdoors to enjoy.

"Birds have always fascinated me, just their ability to fly more than anything," Wasmer said in his slow, quiet manner. Wasmer's paintings reflect his statement. He usually paints birds in flight.

And when Wasmer paints a bird in flight, he wants to get it right. He said, he spends a lot of time outdoors, just looking through his binoculars. He also takes photographs and keeps a notebook of when and where he sighted a particular bird.

Wasmer is a stickler for detail. A clump of foxtail grass sits in the corner of his small studio so that Wasmer can get the detail right on the painting he's working on now. He also uses "stuffed" birds for models. Wasmer is a taxidermist as well as painter and photographer.

Because of all the research that goes into one of Wasmer's paintings, each painting represents more time than just painting hours. He said that his current painting will take some 13 hours to complete. But a painting may start in Wasmer's head years before he is ready to put it on canvas. For example, Wasmer did some paintings in 1965 of scenes he remembered from his Air Force days in Alaska — in the early '50s.

AND WASMER is not easily satisfied with a painting. He says he will keep working on it until it is right — or he will throw it away or hide it.

An Early Halloween For Chained Students

Halloween started early in Wheeling when two Elmhurst College students became the victims of a fraternity prank.

Wheeling police found Art Reeh of Oak Lawn and Brian Brynjolfsson of Lombard chained together near Wheeling High School at about 1:30 a.m. Monday. Police said the two 19-year-olds were chained around their necks.

Police took them to the Wheeling fire station, where the chains were removed. According to police, the prank was part of a fraternity initiation.

No charges were filed in connection with the incident.

It's only natural to ask a bird painter his opinion of the work done by John J. Audubon, the father of bird painting. Wasmer said that he thinks Audubon's paintings were "great for his day," but that they are unnatural and stiff.

"I hesitate to criticize Audubon, but vitally seems to be lacking (in his paintings)," Wasmer said, looking somewhat embarrassed.

Wasmer began to specialize in bird paintings in 1967. He cannot remember how many he has done since then, but he says he is still relatively new in a field, a field that is highly competitive.

To be very successful at selling paintings Wasmer says a painter has to build a reputation, something he claims he hasn't done yet.

But at least one of Wasmer's paintings has been circulated nationally. A painting done by Wasmer of a flock of Canada geese flying over a cornfield — a scene inspired by Horseshoe Lake in southern Illinois — appeared as the cover of a recent issue of Ducks Unlimited. The magazine is the journal of the 60,000-member conservation society of the same name. Wasmer is also a member.

EIGHT OR NINE other Wasmer originals hang in his home, and another three are for sale at Abercrombie and Fitch in Chicago. Wasmer said that as soon as he builds up his supply of paintings — he will paint more during the winter months — he plans to enter exhibits of wildlife paintings. Other paintings will be auctioned to raise funds for Ducks Unlimited.

Wasmer seems to have a greater goal in mind than simply making money off his hobby, though.

"It's a shame the way some wildlife is disappearing," Wasmer mused. "Maybe if more people get an appreciation of its beauty, it will better their chance for survival."

Plan Commission To Eye Otis Development Plans

The preliminary plan for the first phase of the multi-family development proposed by the James Otis Development Co. will be considered tonight by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The 128-unit project is located in the northwest corner of the village next to Long Grove.

The plan commission may decide to defer a recommendation on the Otis project by supporting building moratorium requested by the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove (CCBG).

Members of the organization appealed to the plan commission two weeks ago to urge the village board to halt construction of projects of more than one acre in the community until the master plan is completed.

The moratorium proposal is listed on the agenda of tonight's meeting.

In a workshop session following the regular meeting the commissioners are scheduled to discuss proposals by Levitt & Sons, Inc., to develop two parcels of land north of Mundelein Road.

Also on the workshop agenda is discussion of the village's flood plan ordinance.

Boys' Informal Gym Session Will Be Kicked Off Tonight

Tonight marks the beginning of the high school boys' informal gym sessions at Willow Grove School. The program, which will continue through spring vacation, is sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Park District.

The emphasis of the program will be on informal floor hockey and basketball. Teams may be organized later.

Boys wanting to participate in the program must purchase a $1 Teen Council identification card, available at the gym. The sessions, to be supervised by Terry Nigrelli, will be from 7 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday.

Later in November, north and south teen councils will be organized with members to plan activities such as trips to sporting events, visits to Old Town and parties. The councils will also set up informal drop-in centers at Willow Stream Park and Emmerich Park.

In addition, a Junior High Council composed of seventh and eighth graders will soon organize similar activities with Emmerich Park as their main headquarters.

For further information, call the park district office, 537-0356.

Land May Be Improperly Zoned

whole or in part upon agreements or deals with owners" is "unauthorized and discriminatory." This practice is commonly known as "contract zoning."

Answering the charge, Ken Campbell, representing Phoenix said: "This is not contract zoning. We're perfectly willing to meet the guidelines if this proposal is unacceptable."

VILLAGE MGR. Dan Larson commented on Tierney's statement later, saying, "We told Phoenix they would have to come up with a Class A project or the whole deal is off. We've said all along that any zoning around the golf course must stand on its own and meet our requirements for a top development," he added.

Tierney was just one of several residents who voiced objections as the public hearing.

Khalid E. Cosmo, first vice president of Strathmore Homeowners Association (SHA), presented a letter saying the residents of that development feel the Phoenix project will add to their water problem, create flooding problems and overcrowd local school and park facilities.

A letter was also read by Carl Genrich, plan commission chairman, from a homeowner on Springdale Lane who said he felt the Phoenix project would be detrimental to current and future property values.

FATHER DONALD Duffy, pastor of St. Mary's Church, discussed the church's flooding problems and voiced concern that too many multi-family developments were being built in the village. The church is across Lake-Cook Road from the Phoenix project.

"If we take a look at the history of Buffalo Grove, it is a community that has grown because of family life," Father Duffy said. "My objection to multi-family developments is that people in this type of housing are not part of a community — they only live in the community."

Genrich said several more workshop sessions will be conducted to discuss aspects of the Phoenix development before the plan commission makes its recommendation to the village board.

Sproull, Diane Koenig and Nancy Felde. Mrs. Matasar is the only candidate who has volunteered to let the Girl Scouts help with her campaign — but their help is not a political endorsement.

Tentative OK To Resume Teacher Talks

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $3,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finder's recommendation of $3,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the extended 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $3,300. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

1 More Chance Given To Area Fisherman

Buffalo Grove residents will get one more chance to use their fishing poles this season tonight at Willow Stream Park pool.

There are still 100 trout remaining in the pool after the game fishing derby conducted by the park district on Saturday and Sunday.

No limit has been placed on the number of fish an individual may catch.

The fee is 25 cents for children, 50 cents for high school students and $1 for adults for one hour. Anyone wanting to fish longer will be required to pay again.

Anglers must supply their own fishing equipment. Bait will be provided by the park district.

Trustee Out To Convince Board To Hold Tax Down

A Palatine village trustee will make another try next week at convincing other members of the village board not to raise local taxes next year.

Wendell E. Jones, who has made the suggestion on numerous previous occasions, will once again base his argument at Monday's village board meeting on revenue sharing.

The response from other trustees may be more receptive than on the previous occasions, now that the federal revenue sharing plan has been approved.

Earlier, when Jones suggested keeping the tax levy at this year's level of 56.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation because of funds anticipated through the revenue sharing program, other trustees expressed skepticism that revenue sharing funds would be available.

THE BUDGET approved by the trustees for 1973-74 would call for a 12-cent increase in taxes per $100 assessed valuation.

Jones said the increase would not be necessary if the $89,000 earmarked for Palatine in the latest revenue sharing agreement is obtained. The compromise measure was signed recently by President Nixon.

Jones, a Republican whose term as trustee expires in April, said an official in the Cook County clerk's office told him the village could "abate" its 12-cent increase by Jan. 1.

In addition to revenue sharing, increased assessed valuations were cited by Jones as reasons for retaining the 1971 tax level.

"The assessments have gone up 19 per cent," he said. "By raising the taxes, the taxpayers would get hit twice."

Mayor Jack Moodie, however, disputed Jones' reasoning.

"He doesn't understand the tax levying procedure in the State of Illinois," Moodie said.

die said.

The village levies not a tax rate, but the amount of dollars needed to sustain its budget, based on a projected figure of assessed valuation, Moodie said.

According to the village's estimates, the levy would have yielded a 12-cent increase in taxes per $100 assessed valuation.

IF, HOWEVER, the valuation goes up 19 per cent, and the amount of money sought by the village remains the same, the tax increase would be spread thinner, and thus would be less than 12 cents, Moodie said.

As far as the argument relating to revenue sharing, he said he hadn't seen the official figures of what Palatine will be receiving.

And even if the money does come in this year, Moodie said he believes it should be spent on sewer improvements rather than decreasing taxes.

She's Knee-Deep In Township Battle

by JULIA BAUER

Local government is where it's at for Ann Scollay, the League of Women Voters spokesman who is knee-deep in the battle to abolish Palatine Township government.

She has been attending township meetings for nearly two years, and by now, she's convinced that the area could get along better without that level of government.

For one thing, Illinois has too many taxing bodies.

"If you're going to eliminate one level of government, it should be the one who has limited functions and already duplicates services provided by other bodies," Mrs. Scollay said. That description fits Palatine Township perfectly, according to the LWV.

THE PALATINE chapter voted in June to challenge the need for township government. In their resolution, the LWV members stated they "believe all township residents should be provided with necessary services without the expense of the township level of government, and should pay in fair measure for those which they receive."

All township residents, including those in the villages, pay taxes to their township. But village residents also pay to the village government. Very few other states have this kind of "unfair set-up," according to Mrs. Scollay.

"In general, if you're living in a city, you don't have to pay taxes to the township," she said of other areas. And Cook County is the only county commissioner-township auditor combination in Illinois. Other areas are ruled by either the county or the township, but not both.

Although Mrs. Scollay and her fellow township observer, Alice DeViney, aren't precisely the wild-eyed radical types, a crusading gleam in their eyes can be detected when they get on the topic of Palatine Township and its inadequacies.

HOW DID MRS. SCOLLAY get so involved in the township and its problems?

"Where do you start? You can't complain about state and federal government spending if you have your own local halliwick of inefficiency," she said. "Local government is where you can really effect changes for the good."

Effecting those changes is taking longer than most league members would prefer. A petition drive requesting a referendum on the township issue succeeded in August, but township auditors refused in September to allow the referendum on constitutional grounds.

No form of government has been designated by the state legislature to take over if the township government is voted down. Township attorneys claim the referendum can't be held until this matter is settled. But league members say the vote should be held as the right of the Palatine Township electorate.

THE PERSONAL property tax issue was decided by voters before the legislature figured out another source of funding, Mrs. Scollay noted. The Illinois legislature has enough to do just acting on immediate necessary measures, she added.

"When do they do anything about flooding? When it floods," Mrs. Scollay reasoned.

In the league's view, state representatives will act on the township issue when voters demonstrate that they don't want that level of government by passing the abolition referendum.

Prospects are dimming for such a vote on Nov. 7. Legal action to force township officials to include the referendum on the upcoming ballot began in late September. Last week, a circuit court judge dismissed the case on a township preliminary motion. Fervish appeals are in the works now, with LWV Atty. Richard J. Troy attempting to get a hearing with the Illinois Supreme Court.

Since no ballots have been printed by the township for the referendum, it is at (Continued on page 3)

Vehicle Tags, Pet Licenses To Be Sold

Vehicle sticker and pet licenses for 1973 will go on sale next week in Palatine Village Hall.

Residents may purchase the stickers and licenses, beginning next Wednesday, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays or 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

Applications also can be sent by mail to the village collector's office at village hall.

The vehicle stickers are $9 a car until Jan. 15 and $10 a car after that date. The stickers can be displayed on vehicles after Dec. 1 and must be displayed by Feb. 15.

The fee for motorcycles registered in the village is $5 each. Trucks are billed according to size. Trailers need not display local stickers.

TYE PET LICENSES for the first time must be obtained by cat owners, as well as by dog owners.

The fee is $5 per pet, and a current certificate of rabies inoculation must be presented with the application.

Previously, only dog owners had to secure licenses for their pets, at a fee of $2. Cat owners did not have to obtain licenses.

The new fee schedule is part of the Palatine animal ordinance approved last week by the village board. Pets in the village must be licensed by Jan. 1.

Break-In Reported

The David F. Kweiss home at 1401 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine, was broken into for the second time in the past several days, Kweiss told Palatine police.

Gum, cigarettes and a table lighter were reported missing on Monday. Entry was gained through a den window after the window pane and frame were removed.

Kweiss said the home also was entered on Saturday, when cigarette butts were found in a bird cage, the refrigerator door was left open and basement lights were left on. The rear door was partially open, Kweiss said.

Juveniles are suspected.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Smokers Hope He Can Hypnotize Them Into Quitting

by DAVID MAHSMAN

Fred Schiavo put on quite a show. He pointed at the crowd, his speech was animated. You might say he had the crowd in a trance.

The basement of the Recreation Park Field House was full of smoke. Cigarettes were being devoured by the fiends in the audience, fiends that hoped Schiavo might, just might, be able to do something for them.

Schiavo is a hypnotist, president of the Arlington Heights-based National Hypnotic Research Center. And for the hundred or so smokers in his audience, Schiavo was one more gimmick, one more chance to kick the habit. And oh, how they wanted to kick the habit.

The crowd listened to Schiavo tell them how hypnosis works, how it would help them quit smoking. They listened like flyers ready to go into combat, getting their battle plan. Indeed, they were about to go into combat against what they see as an enemy that takes their money, their health, perhaps eventually their lives.

"WHATEVER YOU accept will happen," Schiavo threw at the crowd. "The subconscious mind is like a computer. You put in a suggestion, and the subconscious accepts it for fact."

Did you ever say, "Boy, this is gonna be a lousy day," and it was? Schiavo asked that and a half dozen questions like it. He tried to convince the crowd that lousy days are their own faults, brought on by the suggestion to the subconscious that it would be a lousy day.

The same goes for smoking, he said. You just think you can't quit. You just convince yourself you need a cigaret. But you don't. Not really.

"I smoke four packs a day. I flip out if I don't have a smoke," someone shot at Schiavo from the audience.

"You will only become more nervous if you want to," Schiavo shot back. And he added hypnosis may be just the answer for such people. He said fewer people who quit smoking via hypnosis return to the habit than people who quit by any other method.

BUT THE crowd was more concerned about what hypnosis would do for them — no, do to them — than it was about Schiavo's statistics.

"What makes you qualified to hypnotize me?" someone asked through the smoky haze that hung in the room.

"Experience," Schiavo replied. But that wasn't enough for the man. He didn't want some "quack" playing with his mind.

Schiavo went through his background. He said he picked up hypnosis to use in an act when he was in the army 27 years ago. Since then, he has realized it is more serious than a good party game.

HE TALKED ABOUT his organization, formed a year and a half ago to explore hypnosis and dispel myths about it.

Hypnosis can't make you do anything you don't want to do, he said. And it's not dangerous.

Schiavo then told the people in the audience to clasp their hands, and no matter how hard they try, they wouldn't be able to pull them apart. The idea of this exercise was to find some particularly good subjects, subjects who follow suggestion easily.

He called the ones with their hands still clasped up front. All 10 of them were smokers. Schiavo would demonstrate how hypnosis would help these people. He wouldn't even put them in a trance.

"Are any of you hypnotized?" Schiavo asked.

"NO, BUT I wish I was," one nervous woman answered.

Schiavo tried to get the woman to believe her next cigaret would taste terrible. He used a good deal of suggestion on the woman before he allowed her to take a puff.

"Tastes good," she said in wonder. The crowd broke up. But Schiavo was undaunted. He went on to the next fellow.

He was tall, with dark curly hair. Schiavo had a hard time convincing him his cigaret would taste like castor oil, but he finally succeeded.

The first cigaret tasted okay, the man said. Schiavo got him another brand, saying the man couldn't possibly believe his own brand would taste bad.

THIS TIME the man gaged, coughed and turned red. Schiavo had done it.

About this time, one fellow had really gotten into the spirit of things. All eyes shot toward him as he fell off his chair with a crash. He had fallen asleep. Schiavo had seen his type before.

But the big moment had arrived. The crowd broke up into groups of four or five. Some 20 hypnotists would do their work on them. This is what the people had paid their three dollars to get.

The lights were dimmed, the room filled with a kind of rumbling as each hypnotist attempted to put his or her subjects into a trance.

THEY WEREN'T always successful, primarily because most of the subjects didn't know what to expect. When in a trance, a subject is still highly aware of what's going on around him. He is not really asleep, and it's not a weird feeling. It's just a very relaxed feeling.

After convincing the subjects that cigarettes would taste like castor oil, gasoline or whatever else tastes bad, the hypnotists taught them to hypnotize themselves, to reinforce the suggestion implanted in their subconsciousness.

Not everyone was convinced, but all thought it was worth a try. And there were a lot of half-full cigaret packs crumpled on the floor when the crowd was gone.

Analysis Reveals Area Hospital Study Reported Very Complex

by STEVE BROWN

An in-depth analysis of the recently released report on the assessment of health care needs of the Northwest Cook County area reveals that planners went into much greater detail than had been planned in reaching their conclusions.

Originally planned to include Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover townships, the preliminary draft of the report indicates the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst increased this area sizeably.

The enlarged area is bounded by the Cook-Lake County line on the north, the Cook-DuPage County line on the south, Ilte. 53 on the east and Rte. 59 on the west. Two other sections, the Village of Roselle in northern DuPage County and portions of North Barrington in Lake County were also included.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm said the area was enlarged because the initial study area did not include all of the hospitals which served the study area, and allowed planners to obtain a clearer picture of where residents go to receive hospital treatment.

THE PRELIMINARY study area includes the villages of Barrington, Barrington Hills, Inverness, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Bartlett, Streamwood and Roselle.

The study, which lists the need for two new hospitals in the area by 1975, observes that presently residents of much of the study area are forced to travel some distance to reach acute medical care facilities. The proposed hospital sites, at Barrington and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg Township and at routes 59 and 22 near North Barrington in Lake County, would reduce the travel distance, the report states.

While the report does not directly comment or evaluate the proposals by Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center and a group of physicians to build two hospitals in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates respectively, it stated, "this study is intended to provide an objective basis for the evaluation of these proposals and other alternatives to providing quality health care to the residents of the area both currently and for 1975, 1980 and 1985."

KASTEN DID HOWEVER state that the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Lukes facility was "too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and would neglect a large area to the west." The site, which just west of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is about three miles from the site recommended by the study.

The fact that the preliminary draft does not recommend either of the already proposed hospital sites, could result in difficulty in obtaining state and federal funding. Various governmental health planning agencies would probably place much emphasis on the study when awarding any grants, several committee members said.

Neither of the proposed hospitals have indicated that efforts to obtain government funding would be made.

Some members of the study committee, which include representatives from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Alexian Brothers Medical Center and Northwest Community Hospital, suggested that the population projects, which foresees 550,000 persons in the area by 1985 were too low.

Kasten admitted that the tremendous growth of the study area makes it difficult to estimate population so far into the future, but he said the statistics presented should be considered reliable.

"I would assume that additional studies will be made in the future in order to better estimate the needs for the 1980's," Kasten explained.

In establishing the general locations for the hospital, Kasten told the committee that a number of factors were used to construct a model of the medical care needs for the area.

THESE FACTORS WERE:

—These hospitals may be located within the study areas in a way that would substantially reduce the driving time for much of the study area populations.

—Location of these facilities within the study area would relieve the problem of inadequate emergency care for many residents by improved accessibility.

The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed.

—The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed in the area.

—Population growth and resulting traffic congestion may make driving to existing hospitals more difficult by 1980 and 1985. The construction of new hospitals by 1975 should relieve this problem initially.

—With proper location, the construction of new hospitals within the study area could be accomplished without resulting in significant reductions in the occupancy of existing institutions. Although ancillary and support facilities must be duplicated in the construction of new hospitals, it is likely that major expansion of these ancillary and support facilities, it is likely that major expansions of existing institutions would also require some expansion.

KASTEN SAID these factors were then coordinated with maps and known traffic patterns to make recommendations for sites.

The study goes on to state that by 1980, the newly proposed Schaumburg Township and Alexian Brothers Medical Center should plan to add about 250 to 300 beds.

Committee members plan to prepare comments to be included in the final draft of the study within the next three weeks. The committee has scheduled a meeting on Nov. 27 to review the final report.

Soil Control Ordinance To Be Discussed

A proposed ordinance regulating soil control during construction periods will be discussed tonight by the Palatine Environmental Control Board (ECB).

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the village health department, 49 S. Greeley St.

The proposed ordinance is similar to an ordinance being considered by the Village of Hoffman Estates, which is modeled after an ordinance drafted by the Lake County Soil and Water Conservation District and the Lake County Plan Commission.

The ordinance is designed to prevent soil erosion while projects are under construction.

Often, because proper water retention basins are not provided during construction, the loosened topsoil is carried into Salt Creek by rainfall. The sediment builds up in the creek, reducing the creek's ability to carry water downstream.

NO ACTION on the proposed ordinance is expected until the U.S. Soil Conservation Service completes its list of standards and specifications for erosion control.

The ECB's action would come in the form of a recommendation to the village board, which then would take final action.

Also on tonight's agenda is discussion of the village blood donor program and animal ordinance.

Any Palatine residents interested in being on the Environmental Control Board are asked to attend the meeting. Two vacancies exist on the board, which will be filled by appointments by Mayor Jack Moodle.

She's Knee-Deep In Township Battle

ready too late for absentee voters to get their votes cast on the issue.

"MORE WOULD still vote now that in a special election," Mrs. Scollay said. The league has been aiming for next week's presidential election because of the traditionally-higher voter turnout.

Township officials are up for reelection in April, another reason for immediate action.

"If we elect officials in April, then we'll have to pay them for four more years," Mrs. Scollay said. There is a possibility that some township residents favoring abolition of the township level may run for an auditor position. Mrs. Scollay could be one of those candidates, but she's not ready to commit herself to the race.

What about unincorporated residents if the township government is defeated? There seem to be two choices — rely on county government or annex to the nearest village.

"The people in the unincorporated areas have chosen to live there. Why should they be afraid of Cook County? They're already getting some county services," Mrs. Scollay said.

The LWV has a philosophy about certain other services provided by the township — "We feel that anything that's good will continue," Mrs. Scollay said, such as The Bridge youth counseling service who could apply for government or private funding.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS and the LWV observers have been thorns in each other's sides for many months. In the league's view, the township has balked at providing complete, accurate information about their activities. And the township officials seem to feel LWV members are wasting township time by asking highly-technical, unnecessary questions.

Ann Scollay has spent most of two years asking those questions. And even if the referendum doesn't make it on next week's ballot, chances are Palatine Township hasn't heard the last of the abolition movement.

"We're just going one step at a time," Mrs. Scollay said. As far as she's concerned, the referendum can still make it next week.

Homeowners Slate Education Panel

Residents of developments surrounding Lincoln School in Palatine are participating in a panel discussion featuring staff members of the school and district educators Friday.

Sponsored by the Heatherlea Homeowners Association, the discussion is set for 7:30 p.m. at the school, 1021 Ridge Ln. Subdivisions included in the school district are Roseda, English Valley, Pepper Tree, Pinehurst Manor, Russell Way and Heatherlea.

Topics will center on problems and educational achievement at the school, including safety, cleanliness, the lunch program, overcrowding and other areas of concern.

The program is open to all parents in the area, not just those whose children attend the school. More information is available by calling Mrs. John Pinder, 359-3570.

Fire Department Dance Saturday

The annual Palatine Fire Department dance will be held Saturday.

The event is scheduled for 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the station at 117 W. Slade St. Two bands will perform, and party-goers can get tickets for $1.50 per person.

Tickets are available before the dance from any Palatine fireman or at the Slade Street station. They may also be purchased at the door. Proceeds from the dance are used to buy specialized fire equipment, Chief Orville Helms said.

The Fire Department dance dates back to the 1930's, Chief Helms estimated. In some years, a carnival substituted for the dance, but one event or another have been held annually for several decades.

That tradition continues Saturday for Palatine residents.

Most 'Key Precinct' Voters Undecided About Top Races

and
JOANN VAN WYE

A survey of voters in Rolling Meadows Precinct 13, which has been designated one of 100 "key precincts" in the state by ABC-TV, shows an overwhelming number of voters still have not decided for whom they will vote in the three major races next Tuesday.

The poll also indicates that what was thought to be a traditionally strong showing for Republican candidates has not yet manifested itself with only one week remaining in the campaign.

According to the results of the Herald poll conducted yesterday, 51 per cent of the respondents have not yet made a choice between President Richard Nixon and Sen. George McGovern. Of those who had made a choice, 33 per cent said they will vote for Nixon and 16 per cent said they would vote for McGovern.

In the senatorial race between incumbent Republican Sen. Charles Percy and Democratic challenger U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, only half the persons questioned had decided for which candidate they will vote. Percy received 39 per cent of the votes, Pucinski only 9 per cent, while 52 per cent were undecided.

SIMILAR RESULTS were reported in the race for governor, in which more than half those answering the poll had not decided between Gov. Richard Ogilvie and Democratic challenger Daniel Walker. Of those who had decided, Ogilvie received 28 per cent and Walker received 20 per cent.

Of those who have made decisions in the three races the poll reflects a tendency cy toward ticket-splitting rather than straight party voting. Most of the respondents said they preferred to vote for the man rather than for a party label.

Only five persons contacted said they would not go to the polls at all on Nov. 7.

A number of the voters responding indicated only lukewarm support for their presidential choices. "We don't particu-

Residents Represent State Vote Patterns

There are 491 persons living in a Rolling Meadows precinct who will help determine the outcome of the Nov. 7 election long before the final votes are tallied.

They have been selected by ABC television in Chicago along with persons living in 99 other "key" precincts in the state to represent voting throughout Illinois — to predict the way all voters in Illinois will cast their ballots.

The Herald contacted 100 persons in 76 households during a survey of this Rolling Meadows precinct.

Reporters asked several questions: Will you be voting? Have you made a decision on who you will vote for? If you have decided, who will you select for president, governor and senator?

lary care for Nixon but we prefer him to McGovern," Mrs. Donald Brown, 2500 Park, said. "If the Democrats had put up Humphrey or Muskie, we would have voted for them."

Mrs. Gunnar Jacobsen, 2600 Park, called the presidential race "a matter of the lesser of two evils," although she called herself a Democrat who will probably vote for McGovern. Mrs. Otto Novak, 2601 George, indicated a similar reaction, but also said she would most likely be voting for McGovern.

Mrs. Esther Grunwald, 2503 South, said she would be voting for McGovern "because of the war."

James Anderson, 2501 Park, said he was voting for McGovern "because I want to see him President," but Mrs. Joseph Mesch, 2406 Park, said she intends to vote a straight Republican ticket. "They blame the Republicans for everything and they've only been in the White House 12 years out of the last 40 years, so who are you going to blame for things?" she said.

Mrs. Robert Ebenroth, 2411 George, said she would be voting a straight Republican ticket because "I have always voted Republican and I guess I'm too old to change."

IN THE GUBERNATORIAL race, the results do not indicate the kind of suburban strength Ogilvie is said to have. Walker received a number of votes from persons who said they would be voting for Republicans in other races.

"I like some of the things Walker has said and I think he should be given a chance," Mrs. Daniel Prekel, 2402 Park, said.

Mrs. Christian Sittner, 2604 Park, said that although her family plans to vote for Nixon and Percy, they will vote for Walker "because we like what he says." But Mrs. Rowland Ecker, 2501 Sigwalt, said she was "disappointed" that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon had not won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and would probably vote for Ogilvie as a result.

Respondents indicated far greater familiarity with Percy in the senatorial race than with Pucinski, the long-time representative of the 11th District in Chicago. Percy, like Walker in the governor's race, seems to be the recipient of Democratic cross-over votes, with a number of persons who said they would vote for McGovern and Walker saying they planned to vote for Percy rather than Pucinski.

Complete results of the poll in the presidential race were:

Nixon — 33 votes .....33%
McGovern — 16 votes .....16%
Undecided — 51 .....51%

In the gubernatorial race the results were:

Ogilvie — 28 votes .....28%
Walker — 19 votes .....20%
Undecided — 49 .....52%

The race for senator polled:

Percy — 35 votes .....39%
Pucinski — 8 votes .....9%
Undecided — 48 .....52%

Class Officers

Freshman class officers for Rolling Meadows High School have been elected. They are Dave Hayden, president; Jay Dallmann, vice president; and Eileen Hand, secretary-treasurer.

Results from this city precinct will be used to determine the outcome of voting throughout Illinois.

Tentative OK To Resume Teacher Talks

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 800 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "they might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $8,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finders recommendation of $8,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the extended 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $8,200. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

Highrise Housing Planned Here

A proposal by the Astor Development Co. to build four condominiums on 13½ acres on Algonquin Road just west of New Wilke Road will be discussed tonight at 8 p.m. by the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission.

According to Bernard Gold, architect for the project, the development will consist of four 4-story condominium buildings that will house 276 apartment units. The majority of the units will be two-bedroom types, with a small percentage of one and three-bedroom units.

The units are expected to sell for $40,000 to $50,000, Gold said.

The property in question is within the city limits and is zoned R-6, which allows multi-family apartment dwellings. THE PRESENTATION tonight will be the company's first appearance before the commission concerning the project.

The commission is also expected to grant final approval to the Kenroy Development Co.'s plan to construct a hotel-office complex on Algonquin Road and Rte. 53.

The plan was given preliminary approval last month.

Pending city council approval, the Kenroy project will entail the construction of a motor hotel, two 10-story buildings and one 20-story building to be connected by a two-story rotunda.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

She's Knee-Deep In Battle Against Twp. Government

by JULIA BAUER

Local government is where it's at for Ann Scollay, the League of Women Voters spokesman who is knee-deep in the battle to abolish Palatine Township government.

She has been attending township meetings for nearly two years, and by now, she's convinced that the area could get along better without that level of government.

For one thing, Illinois has too many taxing bodies.

"If you're going to eliminate one level of government, it should be the one who has limited functions and already duplicates services provided by other bodies," Mrs. Scollay said. That description fits Palatine Township perfectly, according to the local LWV.

THE PALATINE chapter voted in June to challenge the need for township government. In their resolution, the LWV members stated they "believe all township residents should be provided with necessary services without the expense of the township level of government, and should pay in fair measure for those which they receive."

All township residents, including those in the villages, pay taxes to their township. But village residents also pay to the village government. Very few other states have this kind of "unfair set-up," according to Mrs. Scollay.

"In general, if you're living in a city, you don't have to pay taxes to the township," she said of other areas. And Cook County is the only county commissioner-township auditor combination in Illinois. Other areas are ruled by either the county or the township, but not both.

Although Mrs. Scollay and her fellow township observer, Alice DeViney, aren't precisely the wild-eyed radical types, a crusading gleam in their eyes can be detected when they get on the topic of Palatine Township and its inadequacies.

HOW DID MRS. SCOLLAY get so involved in the township and its problems?

"Where do you start? You can't complain about state and federal government spending if you have your own local bailiwick of inefficiency," she said. "Local government is where you can really effect changes for the good."

Effecting those changes is taking longer than most league members would prefer. A petition drive requesting a referendum on the township issue succeeded in August, but township auditors refused in September to allow the referendum on constitutional grounds.

No form of government has been designated by the state legislature to take over if the township government is voted down. Township attorneys claim the referendum can't be held until this matter is settled. But league members say the vote should be held as the right of the Palatine Township electorate.

THE PERSONAL property tax issue was decided by voters before the legislature figured out another source of funding, Mrs. Scollay noted. The Illinois legislature has enough to do just acting on immediate necessary measures, she added.

"When do they do anything about flooding? When it floods," Mrs. Scollay reasoned.

In the league's view, state representatives will act on the township issue when voters demonstrate that they don't want that level of government by passing the abolition referendum.

Prospects are dimming for such a vote on Nov. 7. Legal action to force township officials to include the referendum on the upcoming ballot began in late September. Last week, a circuit court judge dismissed the case on a township preliminary motion. Fervish appeals are in the works now, with LWV Atty. Richard J. Troy attempting to get a hearing with the Illinois Supreme Court.

Since no ballots have been printed by the township for the referendum, it is already too late for absentee voters to get their votes cast on the issue.

"MORE WOULD still vote now that in a special election," Mrs. Scollay said. The league has been aiming for next week's presidential election because of the traditionally-higher voter turnout.

Township officials are up for reelection in April, another reason for immediate action.

"If we elect officials in April, then we'll have to pay them for four more years," Mrs. Scollay said. There is a possibility that some township residents favoring abolition of the township level may run for an auditor position. Mrs. Scollay could be one of those candidates, but she's not ready to commit herself to the race.

What about unincorporated residents if the township government is defeated? There seem to be two choices — rely on county government or annex to the nearest village.

"The people in the unincorporated areas have chosen to live there. Why should they be afraid of Cook County? They're already getting some county services," Mrs. Scollay said.

The LWV has a philosophy about certain other services provided by the township — "We feel that anything that's good will continue," Mrs. Scollay said, such as The Bridge youth counseling service who could apply for government or private funding.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS and the LWV observers have been thorns in each other's sides for many months. In the league's view, the township has balked at providing complete, accurate information about their activities. And the township officials seem to feel LWV members are wasting township time by asking highly-technical, unnecessary questions.

Ann Scollay has spent most of two years asking those questions. And even if the referendum doesn't make it on next week's ballot, chances are Palatine Township hasn't heard the last of the abolition movement.

"We're just going one step at a time," Mrs. Scollay said. As far as she's concerned, the referendum can still make it next week.

Analysis Reveals Area Hospital Study Reported Very Complex

by STEVE BROWN

An in-depth analysis of the recently released report on the assessment of health care needs of the Northwest Cook County area reveals that planners went into much greater detail than had been planned in reaching their conclusions.

Originally planned to include Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover townships, the preliminary draft of the report indicates the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst increased this area sizeably.

The enlarged area is bounded by the Cook-Lake County line on the north, the Cook-DuPage County line on the south, Rte. 53 on the east and Rte. 59 on the west. Two other sections, the Village of Roselle in northern DuPage County and portions of North Barrington in Lake County were also included.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm said the area was enlarged because the initial study area did not include all of the hospitals which served the study area, and allowed planners to obtain a clearer picture of where residents go to receive hospital treatment.

THE PRELIMINARY study area includes the villages of Barrington, Barlington Hills, Inverness, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Bartlett, Streamwood and Roselle.

The study, which lists the need for two new hospitals in the area by 1975, observes that presently residents of much of the study area are forced to travel some distance to reach acute medical care facilities. The proposed hospital sites, at Barrington and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg Township and at routes 59 and 22 near North Barrington in Lake County, would reduce the travel distance, the report states.

While the report does not directly comment or evaluate the proposals by Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center and a group of physicians to build two hospitals in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates respectively, it stated, "this study is intended to provide an objective basis for the evaluation of these proposals and other alternatives to providing quality health care to the residents of the area both currently and for 1975, 1980 and 1985."

KASTEN DID HOWEVER state that the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Lukes facility was "too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and would neglect a large area to the west." The site, which just west of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is about three miles from the site recommended by the study.

The fact that the preliminary draft does not recommend either of the already proposed hospital sites, could result in difficulty in obtaining state and federal funding. Various governmental health planning agencies would probably place much emphasis on the study when awarding any grants, several committee members said.

Neither of the proposed hospitals have indicated that efforts to obtain government funding would be made.

Some members of the study committee, which include representatives from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Alexian Brothers Medical Center and Northwest Community Hospital, suggested that the population projects, which foresees 550,000 persons in the area by 1985 were too low.

Kasten admitted that the tremendous growth of the study area makes it difficult to estimate population so far into the future, but he said the statistics presented should be considered reliable.

"I would assume that additional studies will be made in the future in order to better estimate the needs for the 1980's," Kasten explained.

In establishing the general locations for the hospital, Kasten told the committee that a number of factors were used to construct a model of the medical care needs for the area.

THESE FACTORS WERE:
—These hospitals may be located within the study areas in a way that would substantially reduce the driving time for much of the study area populations.

—Location of these facilities within the study area would relieve the problem of inadequate emergency care for many residents by improved accessibility.

The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed.

—The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed in the area.

—Population growth and resulting traffic congestion may make driving to existing hospitals more difficult by 1980 and 1985. The construction of new hospitals by 1975 should relieve this problem initially.

—With proper location, the construction of new hospitals within the study area could be accomplished without resulting in significant reductions in the occupancy of existing institutions. Although ancillary and support facilities must be duplicated in the construction of new hospitals, it is likely that major expansion of these ancillary and support facilities, it is likely that major expansions of existing institutions would also require some expansion.

KASTEN SAID these factors were then coordinated with maps and known traffic patterns to make recommendations for sites.

The study goes on to state that by 1980, the newly proposed Schaumburg Township and Alexian Brothers Medical Center should plan to add about 250 to 300 beds.

Committee members plan to prepare comments to be included in the final draft of the study within the next three weeks. The committee has scheduled a meeting on Nov. 27 to review the final report.

Panthers Talk Here Is Canceled

Two representatives of the Black Panther Party will not speak at Arlington

High School this week.

The appearance by the Panthers had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon after school in a student government sponsored forum.

The program was cancelled Tuesday morning by Prin. Bruno Waara after the school received about a dozen "hate calls" protesting the appearance.

Waara explained he met with Arlington student body president after receiving calls from parents, the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, and radio broadcaster Howard Miller.

Waara said the student body president agreed to cancel the Panthers appearance because "she recognized that this is a pretty sensitive issue right now with the election coming up and with Hanrahan being found not guilty."

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan was acquitted last week of conspiracy charges arising from a 1969 raid on the Black Panthers headquarters.

Waara explained students have been sponsoring after-school forums on controversial issues for about four years. He added, "I guess this community is not ready for this even in an after-school setting. There's so much hate we have to cancel."

Joint Meeting Slated For Plan Board Chiefs

A joint meeting of the plan commission chairmen of nine area villages is being organized by Raymond McArthur, chairman of the Schaumburg Plan Commission.

McArthur said yesterday he hopes to form a permanent organization with regular gatherings of the commission chairmen in which mutual planning matters can be discussed.

The first session would be held in Schaumburg sometime after New Year's Day. If the other municipal representatives react favorably to the idea, said McArthur.

"It's up to the chairmen of the other plan commissions. If we all agree that we can get something out of it, there is no reason why it shouldn't be a continuing liaison," he said.

Communities to be invited, some of which already have been contacted, are Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Roselle, Bloomingdale, Hanover Park and Bartlett.

The subject of the first meeting will be transportation problems through and between villages, said McArthur. The aim will be to coordinate traffic "in and out of all the villages in this area." Road problems are "sure not going to get any better unless somebody does something," said McArthur.

Among points he mentioned for consideration at the meeting was coordinating street patterns so they do not dead-end at village lines, but instead connect with through streets in adjoining villages.

Weaver Trial Delayed To First Of The Year

The trial of indicted Schaumburg state Bank Pres. Ward Weaver will not start until after the first of the year according to an assistant U.S. attorney handling the case.

A date for the trial was to have been set last week, but other court matters forced the government's attorney Frank Murtha to request a continuance. He said he is involved in another trial which may take several months to complete.

Weaver, who has taken a leave of absence from the bank and Erwin D. Oosting were indicted in May by a federal grand jury. They have been accused of altering bank records concerning loans allegedly made to a Kankakee firm.

Both men have pleaded innocent to the charges.

Developer Plans Highrise For Senior Citizens

Plans for a 13-story apartment building in downtown Mount Prospect to house low and moderate-income elderly persons were revealed Monday by Kenroy, Inc., an area development firm.

Kenroy wants to build the structure on the 2.6-acre Central School site at Main Street and Central Road. The school building currently there would be torn down.

Details of the plan as well as several alternative funding proposals were outlined to village trustees by a series of speakers in a special committee-of-the-whole meeting Monday.

Currently two proposals for the building are being considered according to Roy Gottlieb, a Kenroy official. One involves a single Y-shaped building. The other calls for a twin-tower structure. In either case the structure would be 13 stories tall. The building would contain 400 living units with up to 40 per cent of the low-income type and the rest for moderate-income elderly persons.

GOTTLIEB SAID if Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA) funding is available for the project, rents would range from about $115 to $125 for the small one-bedroom units, $130 to $145 for the large one-bedroom units, and $175 to $180 for the two-bedroom units. These, said officials, are all within the range of moderate-income persons. (A moderate-income is defined as between $5,600 and $7,290, according to development officials.)

The IHDA is a state-operated agency. Under the IHDA program, financing of the project would come from the sale of low-interest revenue bonds. The owners of the building agree to rent to moderate-income tenants and to limit their profit to six per cent.

At Monday's meeting was John McCoy of the IHDA who said his group's guidelines called for tenants to pay about 22.5 per cent of their gross annual income on rent. Included in the rent are all utilities except telephone.

But McCoy said his group has not yet agreed to finance the proposal. "We have had the application only four days." Before agreeing to the project, McCoy said the IHDA would have to investigate the need for such housing: "I don't know what your needs are here. We haven't done a market study. I can't say we would finance this project."

KENROY OFFICIALS also said they would make up to 40 per cent of the units the low-income type. He estimated that typical rents would be $40-$70.

Gottlieb said he hoped to set up the low-income units by leasing them to the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) which would in turn lease them to low-income tenants. But, Victor Walchirk, CCHA director, indicated at the meeting that it was unlikely his agency would get involved in the Kenroy plan. Walchirk acknowledged the CCHA lease program does exist, however.

If village board members had opinions on the proposal, they gave no indication of them Monday. Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert said he would call another special board meeting in about two weeks for the board to give their opinions (Continued on page 3)

Low-Income For Elderly Study By HUD Complete

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has completed a market study in Mount Prospect which shows that 125 units of low-income elderly housing would be feasible.

This information was given to the village board Monday night by Victor L. Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA). Mount Prospect and the CCHA have applied to HUD for funds to construct low-income housing for the elderly in the village.

The market study and feasibility determination are the first steps toward obtaining a program reservation for the units and the federal funding. Walchirk said he had received only informal notification on the study results.

The request to HUD had asked for 250 units but that figure was deliberately double the actual number sought because of HUD's reputation for cutting requests in half.

MOUNT PROSPECT Police Chief Bert Giddens reviews his men as the department holds its first annual uniform inspection. Everything worked well Saturday during the inspection, according to Giddens. The rain held off and the men looked "very good," he said. There were even some new haircuts.

Architect: $2.3 Million Is Needed For Junior Highs

A $2.3 million plan to remodel Dempster and Grove junior high schools was presented to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board Monday night.

The plan was presented by the Berger Kelley & Associates architectural firm at a special meeting of the board.

District Supt. James Erviti said the plans call for "a basic reorganization of space and a very small addition to the schools."

Erviti said one serious problem, if the school board agreed to remodel the schools, was to find the time for the work to be done.

"This is not something that could be done in one summer, or one season," said Erviti.

SHARRIE HILDEBRANDT, school board member, said according to the architect's report the schools would have to be closed for 14 months each.

Erviti said the work could be phased over a period of time, "or some way to free the buildings for some length of time" would have to be found.

One possibility for getting needed time that was discussed by the board was going to double shifts at the schools. Children from Grove would be bused to Dempster for 14 months, then children from Dempster would be bused to Grove.

According to Mrs. Hildebrandt, Erviti said that busing and double shifts could be used, but this was not a sound idea in terms of education.

THE BOARD WILL TOUR the schools with the architects on Nov. 11 to inspect and discuss the proposed changes.

The school board contracted for the architectural study because it felt the Grove and Dempster junior high schools were below the standard of the newer junior high schools in the district, Holmes, Lively and Friendship, which is scheduled to open next year.

If the remodeling work is done, Dempster and Grove would be "comparable, as far as possible, given an existing building," with the newer junior highs, said Erviti.

AREA MOTORISTS have had to contend with traffic for the last several days. The Cook County Highway Department is resurfacing part of the road east of Rte. 83.

Report Hospital Study Very Complex

by STEVE BROWN

An in-depth analysis of the recently released report on the assessment of health care needs of the Northwest Cook County area reveals that planners went into much greater detail than had been planned in reaching their conclusions.

Originally planned to include Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover townships, the preliminary draft of the report indicates the consulting firm of Ernst and Ernst increased this area sizeably.

The enlarged area is bounded by the Cook-Lake County line on the north, the Cook-DuPage County line on the south, Rte. 53 on the east and Rte. 59 on the west. Two other sections, the Village of Roselle in northern DuPage County and portions of North Barrington in Lake County were also included.

Richard Kasten of the consulting firm said the area was enlarged because the initial study area did not include all of the hospitals which served the study area, and allowed planners to obtain a clearer picture of where residents go to receive hospital treatment.

THE PRELIMINARY study area includes the villages of Barrington, Barrington Hills, Inverness, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Bartlett, Streamwood and Roselle.

The study, which lists the need for two new hospitals in the area by 1975, observes that presently residents of much of the study area are forced to travel some distance to reach acute medical care facilities. The proposed hospital sites, at Barrington and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg Township and at routes 59 and 22 near North Barrington in Lake County, would reduce the travel distance, the report states.

While the report does not directly comment or evaluate the proposals by Rush Presbyterian-St. Lukes Medical Center and a group of physicians to build two hospitals in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates respectively, it stated, "this study is intended to provide an objective basis for the evaluation of these proposals and other alternatives to providing quality health care to the residents of the area both currently and for 1975, 1980 and 1985."

KASTEN DID HOWEVER state that the proposed site of the Presbyterian-St. Lukes facility was "too close to Alexian Brothers Medical Center and would neglect a large area to the west." The site, which just west of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is about three miles from the site recommended by the study.

The fact that the preliminary draft does not recommend either of the already proposed hospital sites, could result in difficulty in obtaining state and federal funding. Various governmental health planning agencies would probably place much emphasis on the study when awarding any grants, several committee members said.

Neither of the proposed hospitals have indicated that efforts to obtain government funding would be made.

Some members of the study committee, which include representatives from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Alexian Brothers Medical Center and Northwest Community Hospital, suggested that the population projects, which foresees 550,000 persons in the area by 1985 were too low.

Kasten admitted that the tremendous growth of the study area makes it difficult to estimate population so far into the future, but he said the statistics presented should be considered reliable.

"I would assume that additional studies will be made in the future in order to better estimate the needs for the 1980's," Kasten explained.

In establishing the general locations for the hospital, Kasten told the committee that a number of factors were used to construct a model of the medical care needs for the area.

THESE FACTORS WERE:

—These hospitals may be located within the study areas in a way that would substantially reduce the driving time for much of the study area populations.

—Location of these facilities within the study area would relieve the problem of inadequate emergency care for many residents by improved accessibility.

The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed.

—The operation of general hospitals within the study area should contribute to the attraction of additional physicians needed in the area.

—Population growth and resulting traffic congestion may make driving to existing hospitals more difficult by 1980 and 1985. The construction of new hospitals by 1975 should relieve this problem initially.

—With proper location, the construction of new hospitals within the study area could be accomplished without resulting in significant reductions in the occupancy of existing institutions. Although ancillary and support facilities must be duplicated in the construction of new hospitals, it is likely that major expansion of these ancillary and support facilities, it is likely that major expansions of existing institutions would also require some expansion.

KASTEN SAID these factors were then coordinated with maps and known traffic patterns to make recommendations for sites.

The study goes on to state that by 1980, the newly proposed Schaumburg Township and Alexian Brothers Medical Center should plan to add about 250 to 300 beds.

Committee members plan to prepare comments to be included in the final draft of the study within the next three weeks. The committee has scheduled a meeting on Nov. 27 to review the final report.

on the plan. This, he said, would indicate to Gottlieb whether the board considered the plan acceptable. Teichert asked Gottlieb to submit a written outline of the proposal and alternate funding possibilities to the trustees for their consideration prior to the upcoming meeting.

Meanwhile, Gottlieb has already set up a formal public hearing Nov. 17 on the zoning change needed for the project before the Mount Prospect Plan Commission. But he will seek a postponement if the board fails to meet again on the plan before Nov. 17.

CURRENTLY Mount Prospect has a request pending with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for funds to have the CCHA build and operate 250 units of low-income elderly housing in the village.

How the Kenroy proposal will affect the village's own housing plans is uncertain. Based on Monday's discussions, the two plans would not overlap. The village plan deals with low-income senior citizens housing, while Kenroy's proposal is primarily for moderate-income elderly housing units.

Whether both projects could be built appears to hinge on the need in the area for such housing. Gottlieb said Kenroy's preliminary studies have shown a need for between 4,000 and 5,000 elderly housing units in the Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines area.

This leads to another difference be-

Pipe Bender Stolen

A $1,500 hydraulic pipe bender was stolen sometime since Monday from a building under construction at 1720 S. Busse Rd. Mount Prospect police said the bender belonged to the Steward Electric Co. of Chicago.

Police also reported that $400 worth of tools and other items were taken sometime Tuesday from a Wiggall Electric Co. trailer. The trailer was located at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., when the theft occurred.

Reach Tentative Accord

Teacher Talks May Resume

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Westbrook Teachers Named 'Outstanding'

Two teachers at Westbrook School in Mount Prospect have been selected Outstanding Teachers of Illinois.

Marilyn Ziebell, a kindergarten teacher for 11 years, started the first kindergarten motor facilitation program in the district. The program is now being included in several other districts in the area, according to John Gatto, principal.

Phoebe Hager, a learning disability resource teacher, was a pioneer in work with the perceptual handicapped child.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $8,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finders recommendation of $8,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the expired 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $8,300. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

Panthers Talk Here Is Canceled

Two representatives of the Black Panther Party will not speak at Arlington High School this week.

The appearance by the Panthers had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon after school in a student government sponsored forum.

The program was cancelled Tuesday morning by Prin. Bruno Waara after the school received about a dozen "hate calls" protesting the appearance.

Waara explained he met with Arlington student body president after receiving calls from parents, the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, and radio broadcaster Howard Miller.

Waara said the student body president agreed to cancel the Panthers appearance because "she recognized that this is a pretty sensitive issue right now with the election coming up and with Hanrahan being found not guilty."

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan was acquitted last week of conspiracy charges arising from a 1969 raid on the Black Panthers headquarters.

Waara explained students have been sponsoring after-school forums on controversial issues for about four years. He added, "I guess this community is not ready for this even in an after-school setting. There's so much hate we have to cancel."

Jaycee 'Info' Night Slated

The Mount Prospect Jaycees will hold an informational meeting tomorrow night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the town hall room in the lower level at Randhurst. Jaycee officers will explain the Jaycees and discuss benefits of membership, according to Jaycee Dick Caygill.

"The main purposes of the Jaycees is to develop individual leadership ability and to provide service to the community," Caygill said.

Each year the Jaycees sponsor the Miss Mount Prospect contest, Oktoberfest, Junior Sports Jamboree and a sand sale.

Rural Fire Protection Cost May Be Increased

Residents of the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District may pay 30 per cent more for fire protection next year if a proposed $13,500 contract with the Des Plaines City Council is signed.

Last week the city council's fire committee reviewed the proposed contract for backup fire protection for the rural district which extends northeast from Elk Grove Village to Des Plaines and Mount Prospect in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

"We still have a few questions," Ald. John Seitz, committee chairman, said of the contract. "We want a clear understanding of the area to be served."

The current city fire protection district contract expires Dec. 31, and Seitz said he wanted the agreement prepared early to avoid negotiations after the 1972 contract expires Dec. 31, and Seitz said he wanted the agreement prepared early to avoid negotiations after the 1972 contract expires. Although the new contract under consideration is $4,500 more than the present agreement of $9,000, the rate increase will not mean any additional services for the residents. The rural fire protection district also has a fire protection contract with Mount Prospect.

IAN McHATTIE, president of the district's board of trustees, said the rate hike was "pressured" by Des Plaines and Mount Prospect and prompted the district to request a tax levy of $100,000 next year.

However, McHattie said that next year's levy, based on the $100,000 revenue request, will not be known until the district's assessed valuation is calculated next spring.

"We're subject to continued annexations by surrounding areas. We may get a dozen notices a year (annexing away the district). There's also a lot of building. We're just never sure what our tax base will be," he said.

Des Plaines officials have been trying for several years to discontinue contracts with neighboring fire districts. Recent figures have indicated that residents in Park Ridge Manor and Waycinden subdivisions are charged lower rates than Des Plaines residents for fire protection from the city's fire department.

Des Plaines residents paid 22.77 cents per $100 assessed valuation last year for fire services. The fire district rate in the same year was 13.60 cents, or $13.60 on a home assessed at $10,000.

McHattie said the rural fire protection district can not tax Waycinden residents "preferentially" for service received from Des Plaines. He additional expense would have to be spread throughout the district to all residents, he said.

Last year the Des Plaines Fire Department answered 37 calls in the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District.

Appeal Filed In Zenith Fight

An appeal has been filed in the court battle over the rezoning of Zenith Radio Corp. property at Central and Mount Prospect roads.

Attorney Leonard Bosgraf, who represents Zenith and the Dominion Development Co., said yesterday he has filed the appeal "on grounds that the judgment was wrong." That judgment came Sept. 11 in Cook County Circuit Court and it defended the village's single-family residential zoning of the property.

Dominion has been trying to build a neighborhood convenience shopping center on the property for about a year. When both the plan commission and the board of appeals failed to act favorably on their request, they instituted a suit which they lost on the Circuit Court level.

The case will now be heard on the Appellate Court level but Bosgraf said, "It will be several months before the case will be read to be argued."

Candidates To Speak At School Tonight

Three Republican candidates for state offices will appear tonight in the Indian Grove School gym, 1340 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. The program, which begins at 8, will feature John Nimrod, candidate for 4th Dist. senator; Bob Juckett and Gene Schlickman, both incumbent state representatives.

'No' Vote On Theater May Cause Backers To Leave

by CINDY TEW

A vote against including a 425-seat theater building in the Dec. 16 Arlington Heights Park District referendum Monday may be all the impetus local theater groups need to leave the village.

"My guess is that next year the park district will probably reconsider the vote and put a theater building on another referendum," said Hank deGroh, president of Village Theater, Inc., which includes about 100 players and 1,000 patrons.

"But in the meantime if someone else offers us a building, or land, we may take them up on it — whether or not the site is in Arlington Heights," said deGroh.

THE MAJOR problem for the four theater groups is space — both performance and storage space. According to the groups, the problem becomes more and more acute with each passing year.

"If the current trend continues, in a couple of years we won't be able to use high school theaters because of increased student use," said deGroh. During the past year some performance days were lost as student projects pre-empted the theater groups.

According to deGroh, high schools are the only place the groups can perform, and they need 105 performing days per year. Once when the group was desperate, however, it used the Des Plaines Theater Guild theater.

"The Des Plaines theater is a nice little 318 seat theater, which is adequate," said deGroh. "At the time we used the place, the guild asked us to merge with them, but we said no — then."

Storage is another problem. While Village Theater stores its costumes and props under the Olympic Park Pool, Cameo Players and Music on Stage store equipment in a factory of which a Cameo player is president.

"Best Off Broadway has their storage facilities in a barn in Schaumburg.

But despite all the inconveniences, deGroh would like to stay within the village or park district, and have a theater the entire community could use.

"THE PARK district should provide drama programs for the community and the theater should be an educational tool," said deGroh. "If we went off by ourselves and built a theater, it would be a little selfish and we would be defeating our own goal of offering an educational program."

The park district board, however, decided that the $12,000 already spent by the village Cultural Commission on studies for a center would go to waste if a theater was constructed by the district. The commission is trying to build a facility to accommodate all art interests in the village.

"The theater groups and Cultural Commission members should get together and hammer out plans for a facility," said Board Member Kay Muller.

But many members of the theater bloc are tired of waiting, and their patience has worn so thin that they say they will never be able to get together with the Cultural Commission.

"We do not believe that the cultural complex as proposed by the cultural commission is economically feasible," said a position paper signed by all four theater groups.

After a cooling off period, however, Mrs. Muller, along with Sidney Rosenfeld, chairman of the cultural commission, think the theater group will work with the cultural commission.

"I am confident we will be able to work together," said Rosenfeld.

Village Theater Sought Building Since 1962

Since 1962, the Village Theater, Inc., has been trying to spearhead a drive to build a small theater.

Since 1969, the Arlington Heights Cultural Commission has been trying to build a center to accommodate all art groups in the village.

For several months, the Village Theater has worked together with the three other theater groups in the area to convince the park district to construct a $500,000, 425-seat theater. They had essentially given up on the Cultural Commission's plans for a center.

However, the park board has not given up on the Cultural Commission. By voting not to include the proposed theater in the Dec. 16 referendum, the board tossed the ball back to the commission.

The four theater groups have a total membership of about 300 players and 2,500 patrons. For the past several years they have been performing in local high schools, always looking forward to a day they could have a community theater in which to perform.

The Cultural Commission was extremely active for its first two years of operation. They completed a voluminous report on the feasibility of a cultural center in the village, which included two citizen surveys.

IN JANUARY, 1971, when the study was completed, the commission asked the village board for funds to hire a consultant to proceed with a program study. The board did not comply with that request until February, 1972.

"Some members of the theater groups have said we've been sitting on our hands," said Sidney Rosenfeld, chairman of the Cultural Commission. "We were shut down by the trustees and now we are moving again."

The commission is currently waiting for a complete report on a theater design which is being prepared by George C. Izenour, a theater consultant from Yale University.

The Izenour study, which was recently released in rough form, includes a two-phase convertible center building at a total cost of about $2 million. The center would include a 500-seat theater and would open into a 1,848-seat concert hall.

The Cultural Commission plans to finance the center through contributions.

HANK deGROH, president of Village Theater, calls the cultural center plan "a very nice concept." But, along with most other theater advocates, thinks a $2 million complex is "not economically feasible."

"Our research has proven that a 425-seat theater will maintain itself," according to the theatre group. "Maintaining a 1,800-seat auditorium would cost a fortune."

And so the sides remain divided — about $1.5 million and 1,375 seats apart, deGroh says "dialogue never hurts," and Rosenfeld says he's "confident the groups will be able to work together."

Panthers Talk Here Is Canceled

Two representatives of the Black Panther Party will not speak at Arlington High School this week.

The appearance by the Panthers had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon after school in a student government sponsored forum.

The program was cancelled Tuesday morning by Prin. Bruno Waara after the school received about a dozen "hate calls" protesting the appearance.

Waara explained he met with Arlington student body president after receiving calls from parents, the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, and radio broadcaster Howard Miller.

Waara said the student body president agreed to cancel the Panthers appearance because "she recognized that this is a pretty sensitive issue right now with the election coming up and with Hanrahan being found not guilty."

Waara explained students have been sponsoring after-school forums on controversial issues for about four years. He added, "I guess this community is not ready for this even in an after-school setting. There's so much hate we have to cancel."

In Flight Training

Navy Ensign Hugh J. Zito, husband of Lynne B. Zito, 15 S. Princeton Ct., Arlington Heights, is in flight training at Pensacola, Fla. He is a 1965 graduate of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights, and a 1971 graduate of the University of Illinois.

"THE CRUCIBLE" by Arthur Miller, a play based on the 17th Century witch-hunts in Salem, Mass. will be presented this weekend at Prospect High School. Here Bob Hoeg, Barb Janszen and Terri Boxleitner rehearse a scene. Other stars are Janet McLeod and Ulysses Grosset. Curtain time will be 7 p.m. Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Tickets may be reserved by calling the high school.

New Motions In Fender Case To Be Heard Today

Three new motions will be heard this morning by Circuit Court Judge F. Emmett Morrissey in the case of John D. Fender, former language arts teacher at Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights.

Fender was fired by the Dist. 25 School Board in June for "a continued pattern of cruelty in his relationships with students." The decision was recently appealed by Fender's attorneys.

The suit, filed by Atty. Ralph Miller for the school board, included a motion to strike part of the Fender appeal, a motion to make Fender pay for a transcript of the school board hearing, and a motion to set a date for a decision in the appeal.

"I don't expect anything much to come of this, but I want to make a record of the fact that I object to portions of the appeal," said Miller.

In the appeal, Fender's attorneys asked for a review of the five-day school board hearing in the case. The 15-page appeal also said the hearings in the case were prejudiced and the outcome was known in advance.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Smokers Hope He Can Hypnotize Them Into Quitting

by DAVID MAHSMAN

Fred Schiavo put on quite a show. He pointed at the crowd, his speech was animated. You might say he had the crowd in a trance.

The basement of the Recreation Park Field House was full of smoke. Cigarettes were being devoured by the fiends in the audience. Fiends that hoped Schiavo might, just might, be able to do something for them.

Schiavo is a hypnotist, president of the Arlington Heights-based National Hypnotic Research Center. And for the hundred or so smokers in his audience, Schiavo was one more gimmick, one more chance to kick the habit. And oh, how they wanted to kick the habit.

The crowd listened to Schiavo tell them how hypnosis works, how it would help them quit smoking. They listened like flycatchers ready to go into combat, getting their battle plan. Indeed, they were about to go into combat against what they see as an enemy that takes their money, their health, perhaps eventually their lives.

"WHATEVER YOU accept will happen," Schiavo threw at the crowd. "The subconscious mind is like a computer. You put in a suggestion, and the subconscious accepts it for fact."

Did you ever say, "Boy, this is gonna be a lousy day," and it was? Schiavo asked that and a half dozen questions like it. He tried to convince the crowd that lousy days are their own faults, brought on by the suggestion to the subconscious that it would be a lousy day.

The same goes for smoking, he said. You just think you can't quit. You just convince yourself you need a cigaret. But you don't. Not really.

"I smoke four packs a day. I flip out if I don't have a smoke," someone shot at Schiavo from the audience.

"You will only become more nervous if you want to," Schiavo shot back. And he added hypnosis may be just the answer for such people. He said fewer people who quit smoking via hypnosis return to the habit than people who quit by any other method.

BUT THE crowd was more concerned about what hypnosis would do for them — no, do to them — than it was about Schiavo's statistics.

"What makes you qualified to hypnotize me?" someone asked through the smoky haze that hung in the room.

"Experience," Schiavo replied.

But that wasn't enough for the man. He didn't want some "quack" playing with his mind.

Schiavo went through his background. He said he picked up hypnosis to use in an act when he was in the army 27 years ago. Since then, he has realized it is more serious than a good party game.

HE TALKED ABOUT his organization, formed a year and a half ago to explore hypnosis and dispel myths about it.

Hypnosis can't make you do anything you don't want to do, he said. And it's not dangerous.

Schiavo then told the people in the audience to clasp their hands, and no matter how hard they try, they wouldn't be able to pull them apart. The idea of this exercise was to find some particularly good subjects, subjects who follow suggestion easily.

He called the ones with their hands still clasped up front. All 10 of them were smokers. Schiavo would demonstrate how hypnosis would help these people. He wouldn't even put them in a trance.

"Are any of you hypnotized?" Schiavo asked.

"NO, BUT I wish I was," one nervous woman answered.

Schiavo tried to get the woman to believe her next cigaret would taste terrible. He used a good deal of suggestion on the woman before he allowed her to take a puff.

"Tastes good," she said in wonder. The crowd broke up. But Schiavo was undaunted. He went on to the next fellow.

He was tall, with dark curly hair. Schiavo had a hard time convincing him his cigaret would taste like castor oil, but he finally succeeded.

The first cigaret tasted okay, the man said. Schiavo got him another brand, saying the man couldn't possibly believe his own brand would taste bad.

THIS TIME the man gagged, coughed and turned red. Schiavo had done it.

About this time, one fellow had really gotten into the spirit of things. All eyes shot toward him as he fell off his chair with a crash. He had fallen asleep. Schiavo had seen his type before.

But the big moment had arrived. The crowd broke up into groups of four or five. Some 20 hypnotists would do their work on them. This is what the people had paid their three dollars to get.

The lights were dimmed, the room filled with a kind of rumbling as each hypnotist attempted to put his or her subjects into a trance.

THEY WEREN'T always successful, primarily because most of the subjects didn't know what to expect. When in a trance, a subject is still highly aware of what's going on around him. He is not really asleep, and it's not a weird feeling. It's just a very relaxed feeling.

After convincing the subjects that cigarettes would taste like castor oil, gasoline or whatever else tastes bad, the hypnotists taught them to hypnotize themselves, to reinforce the suggestion implanted in their subconsciousness.

Not everyone was convinced, but all 'thought it was worth a try. And there were a lot of half-full cigaret packs crumpled on the floor when the crowd was gone.

Board Will Be Polled On Resuming Pact Talks

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

The major issue separating the two sides at this point is whether to continue the index system, which ties pay for all teachers in a direct proportion to the base pay. The board has offered a two-year contract, with a base pay of $8,600 this year, that would do away with the base for 1973-74.

The teachers have said they will accept the fact-finder's recommendation of $8,650 base pay, but do not want to commit themselves to abolishing the index next year.

The teachers are now working under the extended 1971-72 contract which provides for a base pay of $8,300. The contract contains a no-strike, no-picket clause.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS 1973 vehicle sticker was designed to commemorate Arlington High School's 50th anniversary by one of the city committee from a collection of art at Arlington last spring. Stickers Kevin's design was selected by a fact-school's students, Kevin Wiederhold. Sticker drawings done as an art project at Arlington last spring. Stickers go on sale Dec. 1 and will cost $10.

4-H Club Elects 1972-73 Officers

The Arlington Heights Nickels and Dimes 4-H Club recently held their election of officers for the coming year.

Elected were: Rory Crispin, president; Sue Crutcher, vice president; Patty Crutcher, secretary; Paul Mathey, treasurer; Mary Clare and Rick Rudd, recreation chairmen; Kurt Rudd, historian; and Bob Bradley, phone call chairman.

Junior leaders for the year are Sharon Bradley, Bill Bradley, Mariann Byerwalter and Bruce Mathey. Mrs. Tom Bradley is the group director.

Meeting Canceled

Tonight's previously scheduled meeting of the village board's transportation committee has been canceled. The meeting will be rescheduled.

Student's Art Work Hits Big Time

Kevin Wiederhold is not out of high school yet... but next year his art work will be viewed by thousands of people.

Kevin's design has been selected for display as the 1973 Arlington Heights vehicle sticker and as such will appear on the windshield of some 30,000 cars belonging to village residents.

The sticker commemorates Arlington High School's 50th anniversary and was selected by a faculty committee from 19 different designs done as a high school art project last spring.

Kevin a senior at Arlington this year, is scheduled to be presented with a plaque commemorating his work at next Monday night's village board meeting.

The sticker depicts a red brick outline of the high school flanked by green shrubbery. At the top of the sticker the numerals 50 appear in gold.

ACCORDING TO Kenneth Bonder, village finance director residents will again have an opportunity to purchase next year's sticker through the mail.

A letter to apply for up to two vehicle stickers and a dog tag will be mailed to all residents the last week in November, Bonder says.

The new stickers can be displayed after Dec. 1 and must be displayed, according to ordinance, by Feb. 15. The 1973 sticker price is $10, the same

Turning Point Celebrates First Anniversary Today

Today is the first anniversary of Turning Point, the Arlington Heights crisis intervention center.

For the past year, Turning Point has offered village residents a source of advice and an ear to listen to problems. From 4 p.m. to midnight seven days each week, Turning Point volunteers are on duty to help avert a crisis.

Turning Point volunteers — there are 36 working now — are trained at the Forest Hospital Post Graduate Center in Des Plaines. They are trained in basic principles of human behavior, techniques of handling crisis situations and awareness of drugs and drug abuse. Volunteers are also given periodic refresher courses.

Among the services offered by Turning Point are:

—Someone with whom to discuss personal problems, mull over thoughts and ideas, obtain drug information or just talk.

—A telephone referral service that includes over 30 agencies which can help with runaways, legal aid, counseling services, medical aid and other problems.

—A care program for the aged or infirm. At a pre-arranged time, a staff member will call to check the condition of the individual. If there is no answer, a friend or relative will be notified.

The Turning Point telephone number is 394-0404.

Historical Society To Meet Thursday

A lecture on "Sculpture and Illinois History," will be presented Thursday at a meeting of the Historical Society and Museum of Arlington Heights and two local Quaker groups.

The lecture, to be presented by James L. Riedy, assistant professor of humanities, City College of Chicago, will be held at the historical society building, 112 W. Fremont, at 8 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public, and costs $1 to non-members. The admission fee may be applied to membership in the society, which is $3 per individual a year, or $5 per family.

Present ABC Awards

The Arlington Beautification Council (ABC) has announced 1972 beautification awards in the village for 1972.

A special citation was given to Arlington Federal Savings and Loan, a firm that has taken many awards in past years. This year, ABC praised Arlington Federal's "pocket park" adjacent to the front door. Such parks are a high priority item on ABC's list of future projects.

Other award winners were the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; Arlington Heights Fire Station No. 4, 3100 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave.; St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St.; and the First Methodist Church of Arlington Heights, 1903 E. Euclid Ave.

Also cited were the First Arlington National Bank; Unigard Insurance Group, 1200 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; Joseph L. Bennett, 1800 E. Northwest Hwy.; Northern Illinois Farmers Mutual Insurance, 2120 Northwest Hwy.; and Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy.

INDUSTRY. AN AREA the judges feel needs encouragement for better landscape design, is represented by Weber Marking Systems, 711 W. Algonquin Rd., and Klockner-Moeller Corp., 210 Campus Dr. Apartment complexes receiving awards are Shalamar Apartments, 2200 Goebbert Rd., and Evergreen Court Apartments, 2222 Goebbert Rd.

The Arlington Heights Park District received an award for its Rose garden at Windsor Drive and Northwest Highway. Memory Garden Cemetery, 2501 E. Euclid Ave., also received an award.

Forerunners of what may become an entirely new category of beautification competition are First Service Arco, 1902 E. Northwest Hwy., and Payless service stations, Rand Road at Camp McDonald Road. ABC and the village planning department are developing a program to encourage landscaping of service stations in the village.

Honorable mention letters were sent by ABC to Robert Nelson Realty, K-Mart, Quinlan-Tyson Realtors, Hemick's Steak and Lobster Restaurant, Starck Realty, Haire Funeral Home, Barton Stull Realtors and Tollway National Bank.

Awards were made after ABC teams surveyed the village for award nominees from commercial, industrial, governmental and apartment building categories. Final selection was made by a jury composed of Erwin Page, village forester; Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks; Mrs. Thomas Dickenson, garden club president; and Jean Burns, ABC awards chairman. Excellence of design and high maintenance standards were judging criteria.

Urges Active PR Program

The chairman of the village board's public relations committee, Dwight Walton, has recommended that Arlington Heights embark on a "very aggressive program" of community relations in the coming year.

The committee met recently to discuss upcoming public relations projects but failed to reach a decision on whether to recommend the hiring of a full-time community relations officer.

"I think the timing is bad, financially," said Trustee James T. Ryan, who added that he thought the committee needed more time to consider the public relations program before it presented any recommendation to the village board.

Several programs were tentatively agreed upon. These include the mailing of four regular village newsletters with two more letters held in reserve for special issues; the printing of a village calendar, three to four village surveys and a series of special brochures.

This year's village budget included $14,000 for community relations activities.

Estimates of the cost of hiring a public relations administrator and to expand the program range from $33,000 to $50,000.

Supervisors Board Will Meet Tonight

Teacher Group Merger Voted; Hand Stronger?

High school teachers in Maine Township yesterday voted to merge two teacher organizations that have competed for members since February into a single union affiliated with the Illinois Education Association (IEA).

A constitution calling for affiliation with the IEA and the merger of the Maine Education Association (MEA) with the Dist. 207 Teachers' Association was passed 355 to 241.

The new organization, the Maine Teachers' Association (MTA), will elect officers on Dec. 1 when the two founding organizations formally disband.

Affiliation with the IEA could mean that Dist. 207 teachers will be more aggressive in bargaining and salary negotiations this year.

THE IEA has become an activist teachers' union in recent years and is currently challenging the Chicago Teachers Union for the right to represent teachers here.

The IEA also has become more politically active and has worked to get bills favoring education passed in the state Legislature.

Competition between the two teachers' organizations at Dist. 207 began last spring after 40 teaching positions were eliminated and the faculty at Dist. 207 was cut by 27 teachers to decrease spending in the district. Dist. 207 teachers also failed to get the full salary increase asked for in a series of tense negotiation sessions this summer.

The oldest of the two teachers' organizations, the Dist. 207 Teachers' Association, which has been the legal bargaining agent for Maine Township teachers for several years, was criticized for allowing the Dist. 207 board of education to place the burden of the district's austerity program on teachers.

THE MEA, already an affiliate of the IEA, was formed at Dist. 207 last February and has been increasing in membership ever since. MEA contended its affiliation with the IEA would provide teachers with better financial, legal, legislative and communications services than the local teachers' association.

MEA more than doubled its membership this fall while the local association failed to meet its usual number. Committees from the two organizations began merger talks early in October.

Richard Short, superintendent at Dist.

207, declined to comment on the merger yesterday.

Shirley Sandelands, president of the MEA, said yesterday that the results of the balloting showed that a "clear majority" of the teachers voted for the merger. She said voter turnout was good, adding that almost 100 per cent of the district's 650 teachers who were present yesterday voted in the election.

Karl Miller, president of the Dist. 207 teachers' association said yesterday the vote showed that a majority of the teachers in the local organization voted for the merger and affiliation. He said the success of the new organization will depend on the number of members it is able to enlist.

Miller said he is skeptical of the new organization and he does not believe affiliation is worth additional money in dues.

WHILE THE Dist. 207 teachers' association charged $10 annual dues, both the MEA and the new organization have set annual dues at $79.

Miller said it is not a question of whether the teachers are able to afford the additional expense, but he is "not sure the additional money will be worth it." He said teachers would have received adequate services at the bargaining table from the local organization.

Miller said that while he considered yesterday's vote "a defeat, not a victory," many members of the local association's executive board thought the merger was a good idea.

The new constitution provides for one faculty representative on the new organization's representative council for every 50 members and at least one representative from each of the four high schools.

Major officers such as president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and negotiations chairman would be elected from the entire membership. The nominating committee would be chosen in April, the slate would be presented in May, elections would take place in September and the winners would take office Oct. 1.

Election of officers and representatives will be held Dec. 1 this year. In the meantime, the Dist. 207 teachers' association continues as bargaining agent and the MEA will direct a membership campaign for the new organization. Both groups will appoint four representatives each on the nominating committee to choose candidates for office in the new organization.

SAM YOUNG DAY brought Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and 10th District Congressional candidate Sam Young to Des Plaines yesterday for some energetic morning campaigning. Young later visited downtown banks, a shopping center, industrial plants, and was guest of local officials for a luncheon at the Sheraton-O'Hare Hotel. His opponent in the 10th District race is US. Rep. Abner Mikva.

It Was Sam Young Day In City

'One-Two Punch' Greeted Commuters

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The train pulled into Des Plaines' downtown station. Sam Young greeted his teeth against the drizzle and cold train wind, grabbing the last commuter's hand.

It was the beginning of a typically energetic campaign day in the state's most expensive, busiest Congressional race. It was Sam Young day in Des Plaines.

As a tuba band blared, as Young boosters passed out coffee to shivering commuters yesterday at a portable tent, the Glenview attorney, 10th District Republican candidate, pushed greetings on employees venturing to the Loop.

The GOP offered an early morning one-two punch here yesterday — Young and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

"Hi, I'm Sam Young, 10th Congressional District candidate," was the greeting to commuters. "Hello, I'm Richard Ogilvie, governor," prompted another handshake.

Between greetings, handshakes and campaign literature Young philosophized about the mechanics of vote seeking. "I like to meet people," he said. No, as the campaign enters its last week, he's not tired and waiting for the end. "Of course, this is all new to me. I'm not like the governor who's been doing this for years," Young said.

Young's greetings, like those of other railroad platform candidates, drew few comments from commuters yesterday. "Every once in a while someone will pull me aside wanting to ask something," he said. "But, it doesn't happen often."

The Republican, who greeted the first Chicago & North Western Ry. trains around 7 a.m., after pushed from the station to a coffee and donuts reception at First Federal Savings and Loan.

By 9 a.m., Young was touring local banks, greeting employees and handing out more literature.

At Oakleaf Commons shopping center, Young encouraged his cold campaigners who battled a strong wind for control of plastic "straw" hats. Wearing Young posters like sandwich boards, Young workers handed out "apathy apples," urging shopping housewives and husbands to vote.

Young remembered all the basic campaign rules in Des Plaines — keep your hand warm by pocketing it when not shaking hands, always ask for a name or address to show interest in the voter.

As Young walked the shopping center food aisles with City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, he pushed his "think Young" campaign. "I've got to think young," one woman answered, winking. "As long as you're standing with President (Richard) Nixon, you're not too bad," another said.

"Most voters don't know the people running for office," Young said. "They want to see what the candidate looks like and they remember at the polls."

Many residents remember Young's district-wide mailings this year. More than 250,000 brochures showing Young and Nixon and listing his background and stands on election issues were printed.

Young talked politics with workers weighing fish at Monarch Consolidated Foods, 1794 Winthrop Dr., then urged employees of Union Bag and Camp Co., 100 E. Oakton St., to vote, despite the noise of cardboard corrugating machines.

A sign at the cardboard plant greeted Ogilvie who left Des Plaines 8 a.m. after railroad campaigning. Ogilvie's aides said the governor "didn't feel like campaigning" because of the Illinois Central train accident Monday.

At the plant's cafeteria, Young told employees that "you need a Congressman who will vote against taxes and waste if you're as-fed up as I am about government waste."

A Young $5-a-ticket luncheon yesterday in Rosemont drew 80 persons including Mayor Herbert Behrel, Sen. Howard Mohr, R-Forest Park, Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, and Maine Township Committeeman Floyd Fuller.

Wanted Man, 20, Injured

A 20-year-old Des Plaines man, wanted for public indecency, injured his back and cut his arm Saturday when he jumped out a second-story window while reportedly attempting to elude police.

According to reports, police went to the apartment of Jose Rodriguez, 1509 Ellinwood St., Des Plaines, to arrest him on four counts of public indecency. Rodriguez allegedly exposed himself to four women on separate occasions last December and January.

When Detectives Al Freitag and Bill Tarver went to Rodriguez' second floor apartment to make the arrest, one of them saw Rodriguez jump from a window in his apartment. He was taken to Holy Family Hospital and released after receiving 30 stitches in his arm and treatment for a back injury.

He was released on a $10,000 bond and scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Nov. 30 at 1:30 p.m.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The United States let pass the Communists' Oct. 31 cease-fire signing deadline and said President Nixon would not be rushed because he is seeking a lasting peace. Diplomatic sources in Paris said Hanoi had not yet accepted a U.S. proposal for a final secret meeting to wrap up an accord. There was no firm indication when a Vietnam cease-fire would be signed but White House officials said it was improbable there would be a signing before the election.

Sen. George McGovern said there was such a climate of fear in the United States that some people were afraid to tell the truth when questioned by workers for the national opinion polls. He said the result would be that the polls are proved wrong next Tuesday. Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Nixon will wind up his reelection campaign with a radio and television blitz but will continue to hold his personal appearances to a minimum.

The World

Northern Ireland was calm following Britain's announcement of its latest plan for a peaceful end to the three years of bitter bloodshed. Violence slackened and new political talks were planned.

A small but powerful time bomb planted by Arab guerrillas blew a three-foot hole in a wall and shattered windows in the 36-floor Shalom Tower building in Tel Aviv, the tallest in Israel. Three persons were slightly injured in the third such attack in five weeks.

The State

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, sought a court order to force incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan to reveal how he spent more than $300,000 in contingency funds since taking office.

A federal official said investigators studying a train collision that claimed 44 lives will take a hard look at Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's signal system, the practice of backing up trains that overshoot stations and the structural strength of new double-deck cars. He said public hearings would open within four weeks.

A torchlight parade starring Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern has been canceled altogether. Nixon supporters said the President will make a short stopover in Chicago Friday for a noon rally at O'Hare Airport.

The War

Communist troops attacked relentlessly throughout South Vietnam and American B-52 bombers responded with a near-record number of raids over the North. The raids and counter raids came on the day the communists had chosen for cease-fire.

Reach Tentative Accord

Teacher Talks May Resume

Representatives for the board and teachers in High School Dist. 214 reached a tentative agreement yesterday to return to the bargaining table to bargain on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

A two-hour meeting yesterday afternoon was held between Richard Bachhuber, head of the board bargaining team, Administrative Assistant Steve Barry and Representatives of the Dist. 214 Education Association, bargaining unit for the district's 900 teachers.

Following the meeting, Bachhuber said he had agreed to poll the rest of the Dist. 214 board to obtain permission for the three-member board bargaining team to hold a negotiations meeting with the teachers Thursday.

Last week, the board directed the team not to hold any more negotiations meetings after the teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's last contract proposal.

BACHHUBER explained he agreed to try to arrange permission for another negotiations meeting because "there might be some point at this time."

He added that representatives for the association "have indicated their willingness to negotiate. I can't see where the agreement is going to come at this time, but you can't get an agreement if you don't talk."

Richard Chierico, co-chairman of the association negotiations team, declined to comment on yesterday's meeting except to confirm that Bachhuber was trying to arrange the Thursday session.

The Dist. 214 board and association have been bargaining since last January on the current year's contract. Following presentation by a report from an American Arbitration Association fact-finder earlier this month, the board's final offer was presented to the teachers for a vote and received only six affirmative votes.

Panthers Talk Canceled

Two representatives of the Black Panther Party will not speak at Arlington High School this week.

The appearance by the Panthers had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon after school in a student government sponsored forum.

The program was cancelled Tuesday morning by Prin. Bruno Waara after the school received about a dozen "hate calls" protesting the appearance.

Waara explained he met with Arlington student body president after receiving calls from parents, the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, head of the Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, and radio broadcaster Howard Miller.

Waara said the student body president agreed to cancel the Panthers appearance because "she recognized that this is a pretty sensitive issue right now with the election coming up and with Hanrahan being found not guilty."

State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan was acquitted last week of conspiracy charges arising from a 1969 raid on the Black Panthers headquarters.

Waara explained students have been sponsoring after-school forums on controversial issues for about four years. He added, "I guess this community is not ready for this even in an after-school setting. There's so much hate we have to cancel."

Photos On Display

An exhibit of the photographs of Robert Doisneau, Parisian photographer, will be open to the public in the learning resource center at Oakton Community College throughout the month of November during school hours.

The college is open on Mondays through Thursdays from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.; on Fridays from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8 a.m. until noon.

Volkman To Speak At Grade School

Harry Volkman, NBC weatherman for WMAQ-TV in Chicago, will speak to fourth, fifth and sixth grade students tomorrow at Cumberland School, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. The classes have been studying weather and Volkman's presentation will mark the end of their unit on that subject.

A Glenview resident, Volkman has been a TV weatherman in Chicago since 1959.

City Ready To Slice The Revenue-Sharing Pie

Des Plaines aldermen will prepare to divide Uncle Sam's estimated $328,000 pre-Christmas gift to the city tonight.

The city council will meet as a committee of the whole to discuss priorities for spending anticipated federal revenue-sharing funds.

Mayor Herbert Behrel was non-committal at his weekly press conference yesterday when asked about the money. No comment, he said, holding up a copy of a "revenue-sharing" report completed Tuesday by City comptroller Duane Biletz.

The report lists 10 engineering projects totaling about $875,000 that the city could complete with revenue-sharing funds. The projects were recommended by City Engineer Robert Bowen, the Herald learned.

Seven of the proposals involve sewers and drainage, including an estimated $50,000 dredging of Higgins-Willow Creek. Three projects involve city streets.

OTHER PROPOSED city projects including construction of a proposed city hall, are not mentioned in Biletz's report which will be presented to the council.

Biletz currently is preparing next year's city budget after receiving estimated budget requests from city department heads.

Behrel told the Herald yesterday morning, "I still think we should have a committee to decide 'revenue-sharing' priorities. The mayor recommended formation of the committee at the Oct. 16 council meeting, but aldermen insisted on the committee-of-the-whole meeting. The city is required to publish a list of proposed revenue sharing projects in a local newspaper after Jan. 1, 1973, and report expenses to the federal government.

The city's share of revenue funds should top $570,000 for 1972 and 1973, but the final total is no official because of Congress' complicated revenue-sharing formula.

"They're going to mail 39,000 revenue checks," Behrel said. "It's a hell of a formula" — based on city taxes, population and community income.

BEHREL HAD predicted before he attended the signing of the revenue-sharing bill in Philadelphia two weeks ago that the funds would be available about Oct. 25. "I haven't even heard if the checks have been mailed yet," he said yesterday. "What's the difference? We can't spend it this year. The important thing is that we're going to get the money."

Behrel also said prospects for financing the proposed city hall with general obligation, non-referendum bonds improved this month when the Illinois Supreme Court upheld Chicago power to sell $10 million in bonds without voter approval. The court rejected a citizens suit challenging the non-referendum bond power which will finance remodeling of the Loop city-county building.

Des Plaines was denied a bond-power opinion from attorneys Chapman and Cutler last month because the high court had not ruled on home rule bond power.

In its Oct. 18 ruling, the court did not explain its decision. "We'll have to wait and see what the reasoning was before going to Chapman and Cutler again," Behrel said. The court, which usually explains its decisions when ruling, said its opinion will be released "at some future date."

BEHREL, WHO has said that flood control should be a revenue sharing priority, said that area officials met Monday in Rosemont to discuss relief of Higgins-Willow Creek flooding.

First phase projects to improve drainage will be changes in the creek's River Road and Orchard Place bridges, the mayor said.

The city project, which could cost $40,000, will replace the bridge with a higher structure, removing a restriction that forces water to backup during heavy rain.

A similar project on Soo Line R.R. and Washington Street bridges along Weller Creek aided flooding problems, Behrel said.

State officials attending the Rosemont meeting indicated that the emergency $30 million project to solve Salt Creek flooding will free about $473,000 in the waterways division budget for other projects in 1973.

"I don't want to raise false hopes," Behrel said. "Whatever bills are put in the hopper in Springfield in January — assuming they are approved and the governor signs them — are money appropriated for fiscal 1974." The funds will not be released until July 1, 1973, he warned.

Abner Mikva Hits Waste In Military

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, Democratic candidate in the 10th Congressional District, criticized waste in government spending and particularly in the military budget yesterday in a speech before the Des Plaines Kiwanis Club.

Mikva is running in a close race for the 10th District seat against Republican Sam Young, who spent the day yesterday in Des Plaines.

"No where does the waste turn out to be more horrendous and unjustified than in military spending," said Mikva. If the government had to budget its money like a private business, they would be out of business, he said. The government does not have to come up with a "hard nosed" profit and loss statement, he said.

In efficiency in government spending is one issue that cuts across party lines and no one can be proud of the waste in taxpayers' money, said Mikva. The build-up of the responsibility, he said, for present arms industry rests on the shoulders of both the Democratic and Republican parties. "There is enough glory to go around to both parties," he told the Kiwanians.

Mikva went on to criticize President Nixon for giving military spending top priority. The president has spent more money on the military than the Pentagon requested, has never vetoed a bill for military spending but has vetoed bills for education and health services, said Mikva.

THE UNITED STATES needs a military establishment that is "muscle and not fat," said Mikva. The United States is the only country in the world that still builds aircraft carriers and manned bombers.

Mikva said he and Sen. William Proxmire tried to cut back on funds two years ago for the Cheyenne helicopter because it was not an efficient combat weapon. The funds were spent but this year the Army dropped the helicopter project, he said.

"We might be able to tolerate this waste and inefficiency if it were necessary," he said.

Part of the problem, Mikva said, is that the power of Congress has been eroded since President Franklin Roosevelt took office. An isolationist Congress was looked on as the enemy in the 1930s and the President gradually assumed many of the powers of Congress. Now, Mikva said, Congress should fight to get those powers back and pointed to the recently passed War Powers Act, which restores the power of Congress to approve war plans, as move in that direction.

Commenting on the 1972 national elections, Mikva, 46, challenged the validity of the opinion polls. He said polls tend to decide the outcome of an election before any ballots are cast, making voting a "formality." The results of any election are not "pre-ordained or decided. I'm just old enough to remember the election of 1948," he said.

Maywood Girl Dies From Accident Injuries

An 18-year-old Maywood girl died Monday night at Holy Family Hospital as a result of head injuries sustained in an auto accident during the weekend on Golf Road 1.273 feet east of Rand Road in Des Plaines.

Phyllis DeParis, 301 N. First Ave.,

Maywood, was the second person to die in the accident. The driver of the car Miss DeParis was riding in, Gary Schremmer, 25, of 607 Jefferson, Elgin, was killed in the crash that occurred at about 11 p.m. Saturday.

Three other passengers in Schremmer's auto including his wife, Kay, 19, were also injured. One was treated and released, another is in fair condition at Holy Family Hospital and Mrs. Schremmer is listed in serious condition at the hospital.

Police said they found a plastic cup containing pink capsules in the front seat of Schremmer's auto after the accident. A plastic bag containing a tobacco-like substance was also found on the roadway directly behind the Schremmer car.

Police believe the pills and tobacco-like substance are drugs and have sent them to the Chicago Police Department's crime lab for tests.

An inquest will be held in the near future after autopsies are completed.

The crash occurred when Schremmer's westbound auto apparently veered into the eastbound lanes on Golf road colliding head-on with the auto of Joseph Bauer, 55, of Lombard.

Bauer and his wife, Agnes, 59, were released Sunday from Lutheran General Hospital. A passenger in the Bauer auto, Elynn Wynerd, 54, of Lombard, is listed in good condition at Lutheran General.

All former Footlighters are invited to attend a "first night" backstage party Friday, Nov. 17, to help celebrate the 10th anniversary of the young people's theater, only one of its kind in the Chicago area.

'Death Of Salesman' Slated At Oakton

Senior citizens will be admitted free of charge to all performances of "Death of a Salesman" at Oakton Community College.

Produced by the college drama club, the Arthur Miller play will be performed Friday and Saturday, at 8 p.m. and on Sunday, at 7 p.m., in Building No. 6 on the Interim campus, 7000 N. Nagle, Morton Grove.

The play will also be presented the following weekend at the same times.

Members of the cast include Dan Isaac, Willy Lohman; Marilyn Yablick, Linda; Jeff Shapiro, Biff; Phil Martin, Happy; Charles Kelly, Charley. Carole Kleinberg, Morton Grove, who is instructor in communications is directing the play.

Rehearsals are now under way every weekend for the Broadway musical based on the comic strip "Peanuts," according to Ken L. Johnson, resident director. Time of the play's action is "an average day in the life of Charlie Brown," says Johnson.

"It's a day made up of little moments picked up from all the days of Charlie Brown, from Valentine's Day to the baseball season, from wild optimism to utter despair, all mixed in with the lives of his friends (both human and non-human) and strung together on the string of a single day."

KEVIN MARQUETTE, Algonquin Junior High School seventh grader, plays the leading role of "Charlie Brown."

His friends are "Lucy," played by Sue Johnson; "Linus," played by Steve Smith; "Schroeder," played by Bill Wright; and "Peppermint Patty," played by Kelly Jones. Charlie's dog, "Snoopy," is portrayed by Rollyn Meyers.

Maine West freshman Linda Medrano, is assistant to the director for "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown." Other Des Plaines young people helping with the production are Lisa Wolf, Don Steffan, Laurel Tietze, Matt and Miles Miodoch and Darice Quinnett. Mrs. Grace Coash is musical director of the Footlighter musical.

Tickets at $1 for adults, and 75 cents for children, can be reserved by calling the park district office, 296-6106.

Howard Mohr, Republican

5th District State Senate

Forest Park Mayor Faces Oak Park Attorney

Two men are seeking the single State Senate seat in the 5th District and although a portion of Des Plaines is included, both candidates live far from the city boundary.

Incumbent Republican Howard Mohr of Forest Park received attention in the last session for his proposal to wrest O'Hare Airport away from the city of Chicago.

Democratic challenger William Riley of Oak Park is seeking to unseat Mohr and bring what he calls "better representation to the district."

The 5th District takes in 31 precincts of Des Plaines, all of them in Maine Township.

Howard Mohr:

'We're As High As We Can Go With Real Estate Tax. We Must Be More Efficient...'

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Illinois government will do an "about-face" if campaign goals of Sen. Howard Mohr win approval next year in Springfield.

Mohr, mayor of Forest Park and incumbent 5th District state senator, predicts that taxes will stabilize if state officials run government like business, leading to education, welfare, flooding, mental health and transportation problem solutions.

"We can keep taxes down if everybody practices what they preach... economy in government," Mohr contends. "We're as high as we can go with real estate tax. We must make operations as efficient as possible."

"The homeowners only voice is the representative he sends down there (Springfield)," Mohr, 50, said, adding that his eight years experience as a senator and eight years as a suburban mayor qualify him for reelection.

COMMUNICATION between local officials and representatives can lead to state participation in municipal problem solving. Mohr plans to continue monthly meetings with city officials to discuss legislation if elected.

"If we're going to expect people (legislators) to work, we've got to pay them," he said, explaining that "I would prefer to pay raise... one or two staff people to do research and work." Some legislators have proposed a salary hike to $22,500 a year while others argue for $30,000 and a fulltime legislature. The $8,000 a year Mohr is allowed for office expenses "just isn't enough to keep up with the load."

"I'm in business... I can't devote time to business so I consider myself a fulltime legislator now," said Mohr, who owns a heating-oil business in Forest Park.

Mohr will not resign as Forest Park mayor if reelected. "I'm committed for a term as mayor until 1973. It will be my last term," he said.

The senator was mayor from 1963 to 1967 and "became committed after a four-year absence because the programs we started weren't being carried out."

"I REALLY HAVE mixed emotions. I prefer not to serve in a dual capacity, but we worked too hard on these programs to let them slide now," he said. "I was classified as a double-dipper," said Mohr, who supported state ethics legislation. "I feel my conflict was for the good of my town and district."

The new 5th District was "horribly redistricted," Mohr said. "I don't like it. It isn't fair to the people." He predicted "very definitely" that the area will be reapportioned again by the new legislature.

"I will work hard to represent Des Plaines... the area is new to me... it's too far away to service the way I would like... I hope to get the map back where it was before," he said.

MOHR'S LEGISLATIVE priorities include:

Flooding — "a statewide problem." Release of $30 million in state funds recently should provide some relief.

"Weller Creek would get some attention, I assume... drainage laws are antiquated... we need more retention basins."

Taxes — "most increases come because of demands from constituents for services. We need restructuring and reorganization."

Education — "has had a free reign and hasn't been held accountable."

Mass transit — "I favor a mass transit authority. The need is there to reform." Private firms are attempting to end service and municipalities "can't afford" to continue the operations.

Low income housing — "should be left up to the local government." Forest Park, 115 years old with about 18,000 persons, "doesn't have any vacant land... if five lots are available that would be it." As mayor, Mohr worked with private firms to encourage low-cost condominiums for senior citizens. "I'm sorry to say it hasn't been as successful as I hoped and thought."

Drugs — "we need more drug centers statewide."

Welfare — "until we get welfare straightened out we're kidding ourselves thinking we can give more to education and mental health. We need relief from Washington. $1.5 billion in welfare (this year) is more than the entire state budget in 1961."

Equal rights — "I had mixed emotions... toughest decision." Mohr did not vote for the state's equal rights amendment. "Employment should have equal rights and equal responsibilities." Women want to be raised "to positions of authority" but pregnancy can "leave the employer in a bind. Most of my mail was opposed to equal rights."

Mohr gained attention in 1969 for a proposal to reduce welfare rolls by employing aid recipients as day-care center workers.

He recently proposed that Illinois form a state airport authority and take control of O'Hare Airport. Mohr will introduce the proposal in Springfield during the General Assembly's next session.

"We can't hope to pass it unless Republicans have a majority in both houses," he said. "I'm not trying to kid anybody. Chicago and Cook county are primarily concerned with themselves. If they inconvenience us, that doesn't bother them."

William Riley:

'We Must Get Flood Money Released As Soon As Possible...'

by JACK PENCHOFF

William Riley, the Democratic candidate for the 5th District State Senate seat, says Illinois has the money for needed flood control projects in the district but is not giving the money to the municipalities fast enough.

"The money is available. It's not important where it's coming from but it is important the money be sent to flooded areas as soon as possible," says the 50-year-old Oak Park attorney.

Riley, who has been active in Oak Park Township politics, has been endorsed by the Committee on Political Education of the AFL-CIO.

He says the state has been "deficient" in flood control matters because its zoning laws governing building on flood plains have not been strict enough.

RILEY ALSO IS against proposed pay raises for state legislators, and establishing a full-time legislature.

He says the operation of the legislature does not require a lot of time but "requires skill and talent."

According to Riley the state legislature won't have to increase taxes during the next session if "the fiscal policy is tightened."

He said the welfare program, which is "bankrupting" the state, is where the biggest budget cuts should come. The federal government should take over the welfare program because it is a national problem, according to Riley.

Riley agrees with ethics legislation requiring public officials to reveal their income and financial status upon request.

HE SAID he doesn't believe persons can legislate morals but adds income disclosures are a "duty owed the public."

Riley said more use of Midway Airport, curtailment of night flights and use of quieter jet aircraft are needed to reduce the noise problem at O'Hare Airport.

Riley also wants the City of Chicago to disclose the details of leases and contracts it has for the operation of the airport.

However, Riley says he is for the city maintaining control of the airport.

Riley's opponent, State Sen. Howard Mohr, has proposed legislation setting up a state airport authority to take control of local airports, including O'Hare.

RILEY SAID he is opposed to Mohr's bill. "There is no reason the state would be more effective in safeguarding the airports than the cities. It would also involve legal technicalities," says Riley.

Riley favors a mass transportation authority for metropolitan Chicago as a means of solving the public transit problems.

"I am against government being involved in any type of business, however, the problem is there. The people are confronted with a difficulty and a solution must be found. A mass transit authority which would encompass the entire metropolitan Chicago area is absolutely essential," said Riley.

He said the state should also take over more responsibility in financing education.

"THE CONSTITUTION says the state has prime responsibility in financing education but the law is not being carried out. Prime responsibility means more than 51 per cent," said Riley who believes the state should finance closer to 90 per cent of school costs.

He maintains that the local districts should have control over the money rather than the state.

"We have to be careful in the 5th District that the results won't be to make good schools mediocre and poor schools mediocre, resulting in a mediocre school system," says Riley.

Riley is opposed to low-income housing in the suburbs.

"It is wrong on the grounds that placing poor persons in an area not within their means is holding that individual and family up to ridicule," said Riley.

HE SAID LOW-INCOME housing should be set up in separate suburban areas rather than intersperse low-income families in established suburbs.

Riley said he would have voted in favor of the equal rights amendment. But now, said Riley, he would try to delay voting on the bill until all his constituents become familiar with what the bill entails. He says if the people in his district were still "leary" about the bill after studying it, he would vote against it.

Riley said he is in favor of enlarging the state environmental protection agency and feels the Environmental Protection Act should be strengthened.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

IF THE SKYBUSTERS and taxi hunters outnumbered the competent duck hunters over last weekend's opening of the Illinois water fowl season, few "regulars" worried about it, because the hunters also outnumbered the ducks in most areas.

Although breeding populations in 1972 were about level with last year's good crop in the Canadian wetlands, Illinois hunters spent much of their first weekend suffering from the same problems the Wisconsin gunners have been trying to cope with for three weeks.

There are, actually, thousands of ducks in the area, many of them "local" ducks that have summered here. There are also a good percentage of migrating ducks from the north. But for the most part, during this early part of the season, the ducks are rested and well-fed and anything but anxious to put down any place that looks suspicious to them.

Since flooded sloughs and farm lowlands have a plethora of food and water, and an absence of hunters, the cagey ducks are avoiding the duck blinds and filling their crawls as they rest.

Last weekend on the Chain of Lakes, in the Grass Lake management area, there were the usual hordes of long-shot artists, taxi-hunters, who arrive barchanded and empty headed, move into a rented blind and spend the day flaring ducks, and the merely inexperienced hunters who some day may learn not to blow a duck call at a duck until they've learned to properly exhale into a duck call.

We are of the school which believes that any man who breathes through a duck call and flares a duck should surrender either his duck call or his breath. And after the second such incident, he should have but 10 seconds to decide which.

On the Grass Lake refuge you can also see just about every type of decoy "set" imaginable . . . including some which you can't even imagine. There were a few blinds which seemed to have carefully planned "sets," and then there were some blinds with decoys tangled in each other's anchor line, alternately bobbing and sinking. We watched, probably with mouth agape, at four hunters standing in their blind throwing decoys around them. You can imagine the look of that spread by the time they were finished.

It also never, never fails: About 9:00 or 9:30 Saturday morning an aluminum jonboat came stealthily around a bend near our blind. The two occupants immediately shushed each other and began creeping silently up on our decoys. One of them had his shotgun leveled at our decoys. Last year the same thing happened and a guy actually shot one of my decoys. This year they were "warned" away before they harvested themselves a plastic mallard.

About noon on the same day another boat came leisurely down through the shooting area. It was powered by a rather noisy five hp. something-or-other. There were five "hunters" in the boat, four of them with duck calls strung around their necks and a shotgun at the ready. The reason we knew they were hunters is that every one of the five was wearing a brilliant, fluorescent orange hunting cap and matching vest.

This boatload spent the next half hour or so in frustration, trying to find a blindful of hunters who would allow them to park outside their decoys and wait for ducks. They never found accommodations to satisfy them and, when last seen, were motoring noisily toward the channel that would lead them to a resort.

Besides the pleasure boaters who happen to own shotguns and a hunting license, the duck callers who frighten ducks with their caterwauling, and the generally inexperienced or lazy duck hunters, perhaps the most frustrating neighbor hunter to have is the skybuster. This kind of guy also participates in other sports. He's the one who takes a 500 yard shot at a deer, who shoots into the brush at a crouching pheasant and who feels he must always have the first shot at anything.

He is the guy who would buy a radar control system for his shotgun if it were available.

He is the guy who figures if he can see the duck he can hit him. He can't keep his head down while you're calling, because he must begin sighting-in the moment the bird appears on the horizon. One of the things he will never experience is the thrill of having a duck circle overhead just out of gun range . . . call him back once, maybe twice, until he comes right into the decoys. The reason he will never experience that is because he will be hanging away as soon as the bird gets within what he considers shooting range the first time.

He may also hunt but once, since he also won't be able to identify the specie of the duck in his sights. Should he drop a redhead or canvasback, one must but hope there is a warden nearby to relieve him of his duck, his gun, his license and the contents of his wallet.

But the misery of opening weekend once passed, the waterfowl season looks good this week and should be even better next week. The ducks and geese-alike have pretty well stripped the fields of the leftover grain and will soon begin looking to their regular landing areas to rest and feed.

It is scheduled to turn colder in the next ten days, which will put more birds in the air. Pressure begins next week on the Horizon marsh geese, which should send a hundred thousand, or so, Canadas into northern Illinois. So, all in all, prospects are good for a decent season.

About the only thing that can prevent an excellent hunting season would be a sudden and hard freeze that would wipe out the open waters in the inland lakes. This will send the birds flying on a direct route to the Mississippi River sloughs and backwaters.

Hunters who don't have a duck blind to climb into, or a friend with a suitable hunting site, sometimes find some decent shooting during the week in the Grass Lake waterfowl management area. This area has sites for blinds that are allotted to lucky hunters in an annual drawing. Site winners are required to build and maintain their blinds on the appointed location. Most of them do.

Many of them turn the project over to others, preferring to let someone else do the hard work, in exchange for hunting privileges. All the blinds on the Grass Lake area are occupied during the weekends and many are occupied every morning during the week.

But hunters who need a place to hunt can occupy any of these blinds when they are not occupied by their owner/builder. In fact, if the owner/builder is not in his blind one half hour before sunrise, you can take over for that day.

Good sense tells you that if the owner shows up, you ought to make a friendly exit. But no one, other than the guy who drew the site location, can make you leave if you want to stay and hunt.

All you need is a boat, a license, a $5 duck stamp and a shotgun.

by GENE KIRKHAM

The Paddock Classic League in the position rolled at Des Plaines Lanes, saw Des Plaines Ace Hardware regain its lead by defeating Morton Pontiac 6-1.

The Des Plaines Ace Hardware bowlers won two games and the series as Morton Pontiac won their one point with a 947 tie game.

Joe Simonis

579 series and a 237 game. Kula's was led by Bob Kula who had a 233 game and a 590 series.

THE RIGHT FOOT AT ADDRESS

MINOR CHANGES IN THE POSITION OF THE RIGHT FOOT AT ADDRESS CAN HAVE A SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE TRAJECTORY OF A GOLF SHOT. FOR A NORMAL SHOT YOU SHOULD HAVE THE TOE OF YOUR RIGHT FOOT EITHER SQUARE TO THE FLIGHT LINE OR TURNED OUT TO THE RIGHT SLIGHTLY.

HOWEVER, IF YOU NEED A HIGHER THAN NORMAL SHOT, PERHAPS EVEN LONGER, YOU SHOULD POINT THE RIGHT TOE FARTHER TO THE RIGHT. THIS ENABLES YOU TO MAKE A BIGGER AND STRONGER TURN AWAY FROM THE BALL, AND KEEPS YOUR HIPS BEHIND THE BALL AT IMPACT — WHICH HELPS YOU TO BRING THE CLUBHEAD INTO THE BALL WITH MORE OF A SWEEPING MOTION (HENCE GETTING THE BALL INTO THE AIR HIGHER AND FASTER).
